Presbytery Appoints Commission of Five to Assist Officers of Bexley Church

SUPPLIES PULPIT

The Bexley Presbyterian Church will build a church on Drexel avenue in the near future. The Presbytery of Columbus has contributed $6,000, one-half the cost of the recent purchase of a site on Drexel avenue for the proposed church. Plans will be decided upon by the church and the Presbytery for the erection of the church.

The Bexley Presbyterian church was promised help and encouragement in its work by the Presbytery of Columbus at a special meeting Monday in Central church.

The congregation although not yet two years old has a membership of about 100, and conducts its Sunday School and services in the Bexley High school auditorium.

A commission of five, three ministers and two elders, was appointed to advise and co-operate with the Bexley officers in all matters of major importance.

The ministers are: Rev. H. F. White, pastor Nelson Memorial church; Rev. D. H. Cramer, pastor Kohr Memorial church and Rev. A. H. Limouze, pastor of Northminster church. M. W. McIntyre and L. C. Roy are the elders appointed.

Rev. W. J. Zuck is moderator of the session, and as chairman of the Presbytery's committee on vacancy and supply, will see that the pulpit is regularly supplied with a minister until one is chosen by the congregation with the approval of the special commission.

HOLDS COMBINED SERVICES SUNDAY

Family Day will be observed at the Miller Avenue Evangelical Church on Sunday morning at 9:15 A. M. in a special combined service of Family Day and Memorial Day. Special recognition will be given to the family present that represents 100% attendance, to the family that has the largest number of members present, and to the family present that represents the largest number of years of life. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Allen will speak on the theme, "Family Religion."

A special Father and Son service will be held on Sunday evening, the center section of the church being reserved for them. A large men's chorus and the Male Quartet will furnish special music. A "Tribute to Father" will be offered by one of the sons and a "Response" will be made by one of the fathers. The pastor will preach on the theme, "The Worth of a Boy."

At 6:30 P. M. the C. E. Society will hold a special Missionary Service at which time Mrs. Helen Lingo, will tell the story of her experiences of coming to America and of her conversion to Protestant Christianity. A special musical program has been arranged.

Celebrates First Anniversary Of Bexley Shop Tomorrow

Edward E. Looker of the Looker's Tire and Battery Service, is celebrating the first anniversary in the new shop at 2248 East Main street.

One year ago tomorrow, Mr. Looker opened his shop in Bexley where he is now located. Previous to this he had operated a tire and battery shop at Kelton avenue and Kent street, for six years.

"Eddie," as he is familiarly known, opened his first shop at Kelton avenue and Kent street at the age of seventeen years. Prior to the opening of his first shop, Eddie secured his experience in tires and batteries by working in tire shops after school hours. It has always been his ambition to own and operate a shop of his own where he could handle the products which he thought his class of trade would warrant.

Mr Looker builds his own make of batteries in his shop, they are known as Looker Batteries. He has built batteries since he first opened his Kelton avenue shop.

He carries a full line of Miller tires

EDWARD E. LOOKER

having purchased his first Miller tire in 1922 and has been selling Miller tires since that time.

During the past year Eddie has added a line of auto accessories to his stock as well as carrying Sherman-Williams paints, and Mazda lamps. With the steady growth of his business he has found it necessary to employ two men for full time work.

The shop at Kelton avenue and Kent street has been taken over by Eddie's father, Jack Looker, and is being operated by him.

Mr. Looker is not a native of Ohio, having been born in California. He came here with his parents from California when he was nine years old. He received his education at the Roosevelt Junior High school and at Trade High school. He is married and lives at 857 Sheridan avenue.

Mr. Looker owes his success in the business world to his keen insight, industry, and close attention to business.

THAT WE MAY NOT FORGET

Next Thursday we will lay aside our work in order that we may pay homage to the heroes who died that our country might be united and that the world might be safe for democracy.

The thirtieth day of May has been set aside as Memorial Day and on that day we decorate the graves of the soldiers who have paid their debt to their country with their lives, as well as the graves of our own loved ones who have also given up their lives.

So with humble hearts we slowly trek to the various cemeteries and lay our few flowers upon the graves knowing that this is not enough but that it is merely our way of saying, "We thank you, loved ones."

MERRY MOMENTS

Very Much So

"Is she addicted to a lipstick?"
"I should say so. Sticks her lip in every chance she gets."

Horrible Thought

"There comes that spring poet."
"Heavens, come on! He might spring one on us."

Mean Insinuation

"Mame says she's engaged to a man of letters."
"What does he do—carry 'em?"

Well Supplied With 'Em

Blinks—He's an interesting talker.
Jinks—Yes, he is as full of stories as a skyscraper.

Einstein Might Fix It

A man could save himself a lot of trouble by marrying his second wife first.—Judge.

Birdies

Slim—I've just spent $10 on a canary.
He—That's nothing. I spent $25 on a lark.

Busy

"What have you here?"
"A cider press."
"Running off an extra edition?"

Helpful

"You don't mind shoppers?"
"No, we like to keep our clerks in practice."

Broadcast

Bragg—What I say to my wife goes.
Blunt—Yes, all over the neighborhood.—Border Cities Star.

Modernism

"Gosh, what makes it so cold in here?" "The electric refrigerator just got struck by lightning."

No Soft Job, Begging, According to Vagrant

Something new to ponder over has come up in the Los Angeles courts. A man had been brought in on a vagrancy charge. He was apparently in good health, not too old to work and the court, after questioning him for several minutes, remarked: "I can't see any reason why you should be a beggar except that you're too lazy to work."

"Have you ever tried begging?" demanded the mendicant.

"Good gracious, no!" cried his honor.

"Then you don't know what work is," declared the mendicant, "and I claim that I am a hard-working man and not an idler as charged and that the police had no right to arrest me."

Nation's Paint Bill

The paint bill of the United States during 1927 reached the tremendous total of $510,009,842, according to a census of manufacture taken by the Department of Commerce. More than 1,000 establishments were engaged in the manufacture of paints and varnishes, and a total of 28,061 wage earners, other than salaried employees, were engaged in turning out the product. New York state led, with 102 plants engaged in the business, and Illinois ran second with 100.

Meow!

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Schroeder, well-known film folks, were trying to explain to their infant hopeful the wonders of talking pictures.

"Just think!" exclaimed Eddie. "You'll be able to hear Rin Tin Tin, bark, right on the screen."

"Yes, I'll like that," admitted the child, "but first I want to hear Felix, the cat, purr."

Bright Idea for Quilts

"Quotation quilts" are a new craze in Europe. On bedcovers are worked bright sayings, the reading of which passes the time before one goes to sleep. "Hope springs eternal in the human pest," is one. Another, for the unwelcome guests reads, "Travel educates; don't let us keep you."

Suppose There Were No Bids

Mabel—At the pictures the other night we were shown that in Morocco men bid for their wives. Just think of being put on the auction block and having men bid for you. It must be terrible!

Mildred—It must be; but just suppose there were no bids!

Doubting the Majority

"Do you believe in the rule of the majority?"

"Sometimes," said Mr. Chuggins, "but not when my wife and two daughters combine to drive this old flivver from the back seat."

Bear Without Forepaws

A monster black bear weighing over 400 pounds, that stalked upright through the woods seeking what or whom it might devour, and which had no forepaws, has just been trapped in New Brunswick, Canada.

Job

"Why don't you marry him to reform him, girlie?"

"Aw, let the government reform him."

The Sagacious Smile

"Whenever you speak, you smile?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "A smile doesn't commit a speaker to any political policy."

PEOPLE WE SERVE

Mr. Eli M. West is a large man, mentally, physically and financially.

Now Mr. West has elected to pay as much as two hundred dollars for his suitings so therefore, after he has worn these suits a while he is still interested enough in them to spend fifty cents more for a first class cleaning and pressing service.

You have guessed it, our business connection with him dates back ten years.

We spend the money and time to do the thing right.

Medical Sermonettes

By W. E. LEONARD, M. D.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Joy, temperance and repose
Slam the door on the doctor's nose.

This translation of a Spanish proverb, by the poet, Longfellow, is well worth remembering, for it brings home much truth in a few words. A cheerful outlook on life, in spite of all its discouragements, certainly adds to one's resistance at any age, and always prolongs the existence of the elderly and the aged. Just how cheerfulness works on the human economy we do not know, but that it tends to keep the bile and all the juices flowing freely, especially the "milk of human kindness," is confirmed by the experience of many. Temperance in all things, food as well as drink, and in all the habits of life, certainly pays a thousandfold. Excess never does. And sleep, plenty of it, undisturbed and reasonably prolonged, is essential to health and even life itself. One of the first indications of approaching insanity is continued inability to sleep. One should never attempt to overcome sleeplessness by drugs, but should consult a physician who will ascertain the cause and remove it.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HORSEHAIRS

IT IS a rather common practice for boys to place a horsehair in water with the belief that it will turn into a snake. A few years ago this superstition was very prevalent—perhaps it is as common now—and though no boy ever saw the expected transformation you could not convince the young necromancer that it was not liable to take place.

It is a curious fact that some superstitions engendered in the mind of primitive man, and brought over from his day, are continued through adult life in the "persisting primitive" in modern man; while others of like origin prevail only during childhood and are dropped as the "repressions" of advancing years cause the mind to become less distinctly and generally in harmony with that of the cave-dweller.

The horsehair superstition is one of the latter sort. In it the child exhibits a strong atavism. Our aboriginal ancestors were firm believers in the power of the hair to retain some sort of life after its severance from the body, and also in the reproductive power of water which was yearly exhibited before their very eyes when the rain made the crops grow. The combination of a hair and water ought, naturally, to produce some form of life. This is the atavism which the child has, but which he is unconscious of possessing. The child's mind is, in essentials, the primitive mind and the child conducts the rest of his experiment just as his skin-clad ancestor would have done had the idea occurred to him to try it. Perhaps the skin-clad ancestor did try it—who knows? A coarse horsehair suggests a small snake. Therefore the horsehair placed in the reproductive element of water will become a snake—a caveman's Q. E. D.

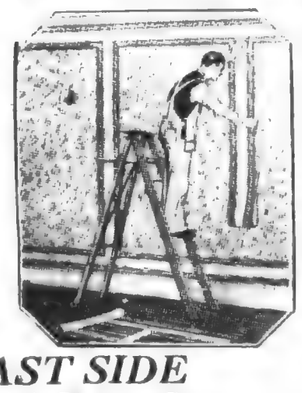
CARE OF MILK



Progressive milk plants and producers throughout the country are doing their utmost to supply clean sanitary, safe milk. They have spent fortunes for clean, sanitary buildings, for the installation of the most modern machinery, that your milk supply may reach you as quickly as possible and that it may be as clean and pure as science and inventive genius can make it.

But the condition of your milk when it actually reaches your table depends largely upon you. It must be borne in mind that milk is a decidedly perishable foodstuff. It is what scientists call "unstable"; that is, it has a tendency to change its chemical structure very easily. And the length of time it remains in its original state—what we call "sweet" depends largely upon the care it receives after its delivery to you. The following hints may prove useful in keeping your milk supply clean, sweet and pure.

First of all provide some sort of covered receptacle for the reception of the milk bottles. An improvised receptacle can be easily made from a wooden box with a hinged cover. At any rate make it a point to take your milk into the house just as soon as possible after delivery. Then place it in the ice box immediately. Keep the ice box COLD. Milk has a tendency to absorb odors very easily. For this reason it is necessary that it be kept in a section of the ice box away from such strong smelling foods as onions, strong cheese, mellons and etc.

Before removing the bottle cap be sure to wipe the mouth of the bottle carefully with a clean damp towel. If these instructions are followed closely, your milk supply should keep clean and sweet for twenty-four hours or more. Further instructions on care and use of milk, as well as recipes may be secured by writing to the Independent Milk Co., 533 Nicholas street, for their magazine, "Milk."

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE STALL

EVERYONE knows what it is to "stall." We do it at times because we hate to give in and admit defeat or else we are putting off the evil moment in the hope of finding a way out of the difficulty without admitting defeat. Also, we are sometimes caught unawares and are so flabbergasted that we do not know what else to do but to hem and haw. We stall in order to catch our breath, to regain our poise.

A recent writer refers to the following passage in Prophry, an ancient Greek author, who is describing a religious ceremony called ox-murder:

"They choose some girls as water carriers, who bring water for sharpening ax and knife. When the ax has been sharpened, one hands it, another hits the ox, another slaughters him, others flay him, and all partake of him.

"A trial is held about the murder and each person passes the blame for the deed to another. The water carriers accuse those who sharpened the knife, the sharpeners blame those who handled it, he passes on the guilt to him who struck, the striker blames the slaughterer, the slaughterer blames the knife itself, and the knife, as it cannot answer, is found guilty and is thrown into the sea."

This shows that stalling and passing the buck are ancient pastimes. We coin new words and phrases, but the human motives of conduct do not change preceptably in the course of a few thousand years.

There are any number of ways to stall and various occasions for doing so, but the chief purpose is always the same. We stall in paying a dinner check in the hope that we can "outfumble" our friend in pulling out the coin and paying the bill. We stall in order to save ourselves from ridicule, loss, punishment, pain. It is a way of tiding over an awkward situation in the hope of coming out at the long end of the deal.

Medical Sermonettes

By W. E. LEONARD, M. D.

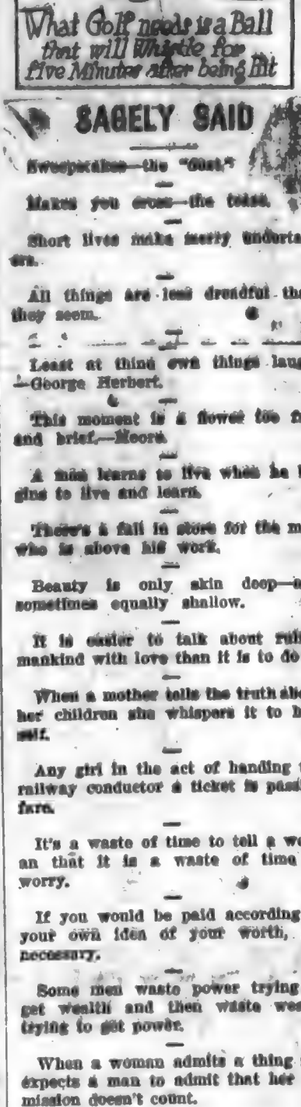
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Everybody loves a fat man." Why? Because he is generally jolly, and always looks so comfortable. Even in hot weather his perspiring face is enticing as he mops his forehead and smilingly seeks a cooler spot.

And yet Mr. Irvin Cobb affirms that the life of a fat man is not all a bed of roses. In a very amusing monograph he details the discomforts of obesity, not the least of which is getting fitted to clothes.

From a medical standpoint the very fleshy person is a liability. From lack of exercise, in most cases, fat takes the place of normal muscular tissues all over the body, and a general sluggishness of all functions results. If such a person will avoid entirely the use of starchy and sweet foods, eat only three times daily, leaving out too much meat and concentrated, rich articles, his machinery may move on smoothly for some time and permit great mental and other activities. But the danger lies chiefly in the heart muscle, which has to support all this extra weight and tends itself to become fatty and therefore weak. If this occurs, a catastrophe is sure to follow.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS



By H. IRVING KING

BUTTERFLIES

THE color of the first butterfly you see in the spring indicates the color of a dress you will have in the course of the year. That is a widespread superstition, both in this country and Europe. In some sections they say the new dress will be given you. In some sections they say that you must bite the head off the butterfly and throw it over your shoulder in order to be sure of the new garment. Another variant is that when you see the first butterfly of spring you must wish for a new dress and you will get it.

There are many other superstitions with regard to the butterfly based upon its ancient symbolism of the soul and as an insect into which souls transmigrate. Thus the Solomon Islanders frequently choose a butterfly as the creature into which they wish their souls to pass after death and in some sections of India the butterfly is supposed to contain souls in their last incarnation. In England a red butterfly is always killed in the rural districts as it is supposed to contain the soul of a witch. But the superstition with regard to the butterfly and a new dress arises from no such purely mystic conception. It would appear to be more largely materialistic and based on analogy, as the butterfly comes forth in the spring in a new dress. There is, of course, the ancient, primitive idea that mystic is a mystic creature entering into the superstition; otherwise it would not be able to thus control the future.

Beauty is only skin deep—and sometimes equally shallow.

It is easier to talk about ruling mankind with love than it is to do it.

It's a waste of time to tell a woman that it is a waste of time to worry.

Some men waste power trying to get wealth and then waste wealth trying to get power.

Chinese Study Journalism

See more, hear more, write more—such is the slogan of a Chinese school of journalism which has been founded in Shanghai. The head of the institution, a Chinese, intends to take his students for a tour of the country, lasting a year. The mornings will be devoted to class instruction, but in the afternoons the students will be turned loose to look for copy. The students will be expected to study the customs of the people, meet prominent individuals, learn economic conditions, so that by the end of the year they will not only be qualified to hold jobs on Chinese newspapers but will also have a first-hand knowledge of their own country.

The Widower's Grief

Senator Norbeck, discussing his bird bill, said in Washington:

"I hope there is no hypocrisy in the love for birds that is voiced everywhere. I hope there's nothing in it of the widower.

"This widower went on terribly, terribly, at the church services for his wife. A friend the next day condoled with him, saying he had never seen such awful grief.

"'Ah, George,' said the widower, 'it's a pity you didn't get out to the cemetery. If you could have seen the way I cut up there!'"

THE WIND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MY, THE wind's a funny fellow!—
Lots of times just wants to bellow,
Roars down chimneys, roars up streets,
Roars at everyone he meets,
Doesn't turn a corner rightly,
Doesn't speak a word politely,
Till you hear the people say,
"My, the wind is bad today!"

Then again, tomorrow maybe,
He doesn't even wake the baby,
From the country to the town
Brings a bit of thistledown,
Stirs the roses in the garden,
Whispers, "Rose, I beg your pardon,"
Till you hear the people say,
"Why, the wind is nice today!"

Yes, the wind is really funny,
One day sad, and one day sunny,
One day just a gentle breeze,
But the next an awful tease,
Sometimes singing, sometimes raining,
Either smiling or complaining,
Acts his best, or makes a fuss—
Very much, indeed, like us.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TALK OF THE DEVIL, HE'S SURE TO APPEAR"

"TALK of the devil, he's sure to appear!" From our schooldays we have all been familiar with this saying, used when a person who is being discussed, presumably in his absence, or to use the juvenile expression "behind his back," suddenly appears.

Whence came the saying? Was it originated by some wily schoolmaster in the hope of curing his charges of the obnoxious habit of talking about others who were absent? It might well have been so used many times in the interval of several hundred years since its origin. But its source is in a poem entitled "His Caroll" by Prior, the well-known English poet of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth century. The following are the lines in which it had its beginning:

"Since therefore 'tis to combat evil,
'Tis lawful to combat the Devil;
Forthwith the devil did appear,
For name him and he is always near."

FOR THE GOOSE—

NOWADAYS the hardest thing for a girl ain't pretendin' to know what she don't, but accountin' for what she does.

It's all right bein' haughty, if you enjoy playin' solitaire.

If you're afraid to suffer, you suffer from bein' afraid.

Lots of times a mother that's tied her boy to her apron strings, wakes up to find the apron gone, too.

FOR THE GANDER—

If you're lucky you have a lot of friends. If you're too lucky you have a lot of enemies.

You might surprise a woman with a kiss, but never on the mouth.

Tears ain't the earthquake most men think they are; they're only the breakin' up of a spell of bad weather.

It takes a smart parent to outwit a stubborn child; any fool can swing a stick.

A smart woman tries to fall in love. A smart man tries not to.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for June 2

LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 20:1-6; 37:11-21; 38:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing True in Hard Places.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Forms of Modern Persecution.

I. Jeremiah in Stocks (20:1-6).

He had predicted the downfall of Jerusalem because of the disobedience of the people (19:14-14, 15).

Pashur, an officer of the temple, heard him, Pashur gave Jeremiah a cruel beating and placed him in stocks. "Stocks" was an instrument of torture, confining the legs in a cramped position. On being released the next day, Jeremiah predicted the terror which was to be Pashur's portion. His words were literally fulfilled (vv. 4-6).

II. Jeremiah in Prison in Jonathan's House (37:11-21).

He was arrested by Irijah as he was about to leave Jerusalem on an errand. He was charged with deserting to the Chaldeans. While here in prison, King Zedekiah secretly consulted with him and ordered lenient treatment.

III. Jeremiah in the Dungeon (38:1-13).

1. He predicts the capture of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

(1) To whom (v. 1)?

Jeremiah had been taken out of the prison by the king (37:17) and ordered to the court of the prison (37:21). Here the people seem to have had free access to him (32:12). From this place of limited confinement Jeremiah announced to the people their approaching captivity.

2. Counsel given (vv. 2, 3).

a. All that remain in the city shall die by the sword, famine and pestilence.

b. He that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live. "He shall have his life for a prey," doubtless means that he shall escape with his life, though losing all else.

3. Jeremiah accused by the princes (vv. 4, 5).

(1) He weakened the hands of the men and all the people (v. 4). From a human standpoint what they said was true, but since Jeremiah was but the interpreter of God to the nation, they ought to have heeded his advice to surrender.

(2) This man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt (v. 4). This charge was utterly false. Jeremiah was the best friend of the people, for he faithfully proclaimed to them God's judgment and advised them how to make the best of their unfortunate situation.

4. The king's cowardly act (v. 5).

The very one whom Jeremiah was trying to help, deserted him. The king was afraid of the Chaldeans, the princes, Jeremiah, and God.

4. Jeremiah cast into the dungeon (v. 6).

This seems to have been a cistern which had been emptied of its water during the siege, leaving only mire. Into this mire he sank, possibly up to his neck. The purpose was to let Jeremiah die there. In this situation he is a type of Christ (Psa. 69). No one ever suffered more unjustly, save Jesus Christ.

5. Jeremiah rescued from the dungeon (vv. 7-13).

(1) By Ebed-Melech, an African servant (vv. 7-9).

The Jewish prophet, whom his own countrymen tried to destroy, is saved by a Gentile. Though Ebed-Melech had a colored skin, he was the whitest man in Jerusalem. He went to the king and boldly declared that the princes had done evil in imprisoning Jeremiah.

(2) The method (vv. 10-13).

The king yielded to his request and furnished a guard to prevent interference with the work of rescue. He let down soft rags and wornout garments by ropes and instructed Jeremiah to put them under his armholes and under the ropes to prevent injury to him as he was being lifted up. He was lifted out of the dungeon and given the freedom of the prison court.

IV. Jeremiah in Egypt (vv. 43:1-7).

His closing years were spent in Egypt. He was taken there by Johanan, where he continued his ministry. He seems to have been unpopular there. Tradition has it that he was stoned to death by the Jews in Egypt.

Rewards Awaiting

When we land on the bleak shore of disappointment we shall make the wonderful discovery that the Savior has anticipated our coming and has made ample provision. There will be heavenly cordials, and there will be comforts of grace, and there will be the exhilarating wine of a new hope. —J. H. Jowett.

WORLD ASKED TO MAKE WAR ON RAT

The government of Great Britain has started a world war on the rats. It is a world war because it is endeavoring to have the other nations of the world to follow her example, and the threat is made that if something in this direction is not done the result will be disastrous. If the rat population of the world is allowed to increase as it has done in the past few years, the world will be overrun with rats and civilization will topple. Man will be wiped from the face of the globe. All the great plagues of history are said to have been spread by rats. One of the remedies is absolute cleanliness. There is a close analogy between the number of rats to be found in a city and the sanitary condition of that city, one official declared. The more careful cities are about the disposal of garbage, the fewer rats they have, because lack of food will control the normal increase of the pests.

"Refuse" Made Valuable

Rubber interests are investigating a new source of revenue, extraction of oil from rubber seeds, which long have been treated as refuse on Malayan rubber estates. Net profits of $11 a ton is estimated with market prices approximately $22 a ton. Estate laborers earn about three cents a day collecting seeds in spare time.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

INFLUENCE OF COLOR

YOU may declare to your intimates that you are weary of the monotony of life; that for some inexplicable reason you fail to find pleasure in diversions which only a few months ago gave infinite joy, and that altogether your existence is becoming a dismal phantom from which you would gladly run away.

This sort of ennui is common, but not alarming. No one seems to escape its weariness and defatigation, especially in the season of falling leaves, when the skies are flecked with gray clouds, the hills are bare and the sward is devoid of brightness.

When the eye is entertained with glorious hues and the streams reflect purple and gold, the soul is apt to forget that it is imprisoned in clay. So it sings silent songs from dawn to starlight, unmindful of captivity, in its delightful environment.

When the dull, leaden days creep over the steel-blue hilltops, and the cold winds whip the naked branches of the trees, there is in all of us a natural inclination to become dejected and sad-hearted.

The reason for this mental state is that we are unconsciously influenced by color. The duns, bays and bistres for some psychological cause are depressing, while, on the other hand, the reds, greens and yellows are cheering, calling us away to happy realms and delightful visions.

We all know how we are stirred to our inmost being by a gorgeous sunset, a garden of beautiful blooming flowers, or an orchard when the verdure is new and the trees are laden with waving pink and white blossoms, and the atmosphere is tinged with subtle hues of violet.

What is there in our winter home life that gives us more acceptable cheer than the kindly blaze on the open hearth!

Who does not enjoy sitting before the orange flames to give himself or herself up to pleasant reflections while the shadows play hide and seek upon the walls and the snowflakes pelt the crystal pane!

It is not so much the genial warmth that we relish as the elusive colors. If you doubt this, blindfold your eyes and note how quickly your pleasure steals away and leaves you groping in a land of gloom!

J. Wanamaker of Nelson Memorial bested Pickens of Wilson, who weakened in the tenth inning. R. Wanamaker, Johnson and Albaugh fielded in nice fashion for Nelson, and Barr's hitting stood out for Wilson.

Al Heins sparkled in the short field for First U. P., while Ruh accounted for some real clubbing for Ohio.

"DROP THIS IN TH' LETTERBOX ON YA WAY!"

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TALK OF THE DEVIL, HE'S SURE TO APPEAR"

"TALK of the devil, he's sure to appear!" From our schooldays we have all been familiar with this saying, used when a person who is being discussed, presumably in his absence, or to use the juvenile expression "behind his back," suddenly appears.

Whence came the saying? Was it originated by some wily schoolmaster in the hope of curing his charges of the obnoxious habit of talking about others who were absent? It might well have been so used many times in the interval of several hundred years since its origin. But its source is in a poem entitled "Has Caroll" by Prior, the well known English poet of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth century. The following are the lines in which it had its beginning:

"Since therefore 'tis to combat evil,
'Tis lawful to combat the Devil:
Forthwith the devil did appear,
For same him and he is always near."

French Women Paupers Make Homes in Boilers

Two old Parisian women live in homes of iron. Their houses are big discarded boilers. In these one-room, solid iron homes the women have kept house in a primitive way for the past six years. However, they s[illegible]n charity. They obtain their food by a little foraging at the public markets. They claim that they have no expenses, since they are old and expect their clothes to last as long as they do. One of these boiler homes is square cornered, making a room eight feet long, five feet wide and four feet high. The other is tubular in shape, but about the same size. They have stoves in them and boxes are their cupboards, while gunnysacks cover the cracks left by the "lean-to" wooden doors.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE HAVE QUEER IMPULSES

DID you ever have a queer impulse to step on or to avoid stepping on the cracks in the cement sidewalks, to make faces at some one, to tell a person just what you think of him, to do any one or several of a thousand "crazy" things?

It is natural for all of us to have queer impulses at times. The normal person realizes the nature of the impulse and checks himself in time to avoid making a fool of himself. But now and then we slip up, and the impulse gets the better of us. This happens when the impulse stays at the focus of consciousness and dominates our motor reactions which control muscular action. It is a mild form of obsession.

In extreme cases the situation becomes pathological and the patient is unable to suppress the crazy impulse and many times has to be put away in an asylum.

Now and then the community is aroused over some poor fellow who runs amuck in his lack of control over some queer impulse. He is a moral pervert who has lost control over his impulses. He goes about doing some unnatural thing that is highly revolting to our senses and we are ready to lynch the poor offender without in any way realizing the cause of his offense.

We can understand conduct of this sort only as we bear in mind that they are merely the exaggerations of the very situations we find in normal people. We all have queer impulses but we are able to control them, whereas the so-called fiend is one who cannot control his impulses. It has the force of an obsession with him. He is really insane more than he is a criminal or a fiend. He is mentally and emotionally sick.

British Monarch's Title

James I wished to use the title of "King of Great Britain" instead of "King of England and Scotland," and even went so far as to have it placed on his coins. In 1603 he asked parliament to consent to the new title, but fears were expressed lest the laws and liberties of England might be jeopardized and the commons urged that some agreement as to the terms of union precede assumption of the title. James finally yielded to the advice of his minister, Robert Cecil, and the change was deferred. The title did not receive parliamentary sanction until the Act of Union, 1707.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE OPEN-HEARTED

WHO does not like the candor of the little child who has not yet learned the initial art of fabrication? There is something so frank, open, straightforward in the innocent one's prattle that even in the old Machiavelian disciple of deception will pause in his juggling with truth and wish he were less guilty.

He is conscious of a trait of character that once was his in his youthful days which he let slip from him when he first began to deal with a tricky world.

He tried sincerity, but found that nobody believed in it.

So he ventured forth into zones of thought still unsurveyed and became a lying innovator in the deft use of ambiguous acts and unpardonable words.

He forgot his mother's teachings, the little prayer which he uttered at his mother's knee, while she toyed lovingly with his dimpled hands and stroked his hair, picturing his future in glowing colors.

Do you think it is hard to tell the truth?

It is natural for the child, but when art steps in the difficulty to adhere to veracity causes us devious perplexities.

What has been discussed a dozen times before with sincerity and artlessness, assumes a new phase when we depart from probity and begin to color, retouch and reshape the words and sentences we must use in competition with the false and those who "commend the poisoned chalice to the lips."

We soon find language ready shaped to our purpose, and quickly become adept in forming a new vocabulary which enables us to beat round and round the truth without once touching it.

We have no defense for such conduct, except that we are associating and dealing with smooth-faced, double-tongued fibbers and must meet them on their own ground and surpass them at their own game.

We get the idea that if we cannot fly like a trooper we cannot march at the head of the regiment in gay uniform and brass buttons.

And these popular lies, you will find on reflection, are the basis of the major troubles of our sin-burdened world, likely at any moment to belch forth consuming fire of our own making!

What Does Your Child Want to Know ?

SOUNDS FISHY

The undergraduate sardines were out for their afternoon swim downstream.

"What ever happened to Tommy Bigfin?" asked a prominent student in the sardine school.

"I though you knew," answered his companion. "He couldn't seem to make the grade. He was always swimming about 5 to 10 feet in the rear. He wasn't alert or intelligent. So the usual happened."

"You mean—?"

"Yep. He got canned!"

Well!

At a military dance, one officer said to another as they adjourned for refreshments:

"I don't know how it is, but my wife's lipstick always tastes different from any other woman's," and he carefully wiped his lips.

"Yes, doesn't it," somerset the other, absent-mindedly.

PLAYING MOUTH-ORGAN

She—Oh, you kiss so wonderfully you must be used to doing it.

He—Oh, I've only been used to playing the mouth-organ, that's all.

A WISE OLD GEESER

There was an old geeser
Who had a lot of sense.
He started up a business
On a dollar eighty cents.
The dollar for stock
And eighty for an ad,
Brought him three lovely dollars
In a day, by dad!
Well, he bought more goods
And a little more space,
And he played that system
With a smile on his face.
The customers flocked
To his two by four
And soon he had to hustle
For a regular store
Up on the square
Where the people pass
He gobbled up a corner
That was all plate glass
He fixed up the windows
With the best that he had
And told them all about it
In a half-page ad.
He soon had them coming
And he never quit,
And he wouldn't cut down
On his ads one jit
And he's kept things humming
In the old town ever since
And everybody calls him
The Merchant Prince.
Some say it is luck
But that is all bunk—
Why he was doing business
When times were punk.
People have to purchase
And the geeser was wise
For he knew the way to get 'em
Was to advertise.

Auditor Thatcher Talks On Home Rule Taxation

County Auditor A. J. Thatcher has stated that approval of the city's Home Rule Taxation amendment to the charter not only forces increase in county rates applicable to all city property, but also gives the council (on a duplicate equal to the present one) the right to secure $3,900,000 tax revenue for its operation fund as against $2,676,000 available to it for 1929.

He declares that if the school authorities will not act to the relief of the city and tax papers it would then be better for people to vote for an extra levy of one mill or $600,000 rather than for the home rule.

Lesson for June 9

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES

(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 35:1-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—We will drink no wine.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Strong to Do the Right.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Loyal to Do the Right.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Accepting a High Moral Standard.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Forms of Modern Persecution.

I. Who Were the Rechabites? (I Chron. 2:55).

They were Kenites of Hemath of the family of Jethro, Moses' father-in-law (Num. 10:29-32, cf. Judges 1:16). They entered Canaan with the Israelites. It seems that in order to preserve their identity they chose a nomadic life. Saul was considerate of them (I Sam. 15:6). They were characterized by:

1. Abstinence from strong drink (35:8). 2. Voluntary poverty (35:9). 3. A nomadic life (35:10).

II. The Rechabites Tested (vv. 1-5).

In the days of Jehoiachim the Lord charged Jeremiah to bring the Rechabites into the house of the Lord and test them regarding the drinking of wine. This he did in a place where the people might behold them, the aim being to teach Judah by example. The father of the Rechabites had given the command that they should not drink wine. Their filial obedience put to shame the children of Judah for their lack of obedience to their Heavenly Father. Jonadab, the father of the Rechabites, was only a man, but the commands which Judah disregarded were from the Almighty God, their Creator and Savior. They stood the test. They were loyal to the traditions of their fathers, even turning away from the luxury and degeneracy of Judah and maintaining their simple life. It is God's plan that every man be tested. Being a free agent, he can have character only through testing. It was for this reason that God placed Adam and Eve in Eden and permitted the devil to test them. While we should be concerned about the removal of temptation from men, we should be more concerned with showing them how to overcome it.

III. The Filial Loyalty of the Rechabites (vv. 6-11).

Though they were out of their own country and among a foreign people, they refused to drink wine, declaring that they had been true to the instructions of Jonadab all their lives. Obedience to his instruction had been practiced by the men, women and children. It is a fine thing when children keep in mind their fathers and render obedience to their commands.

IV. The Loyalty of the Rechabites Contrasted with the Disloyalty of Judah (vv. 12-16).

1. The appeal (vv. 13, 14). This appeal was made on the basis of the filial loyalty of the Rechabites. He reminded them that though their father had been dead a long time, the Rechabites remained loyal to his command. The prophet appealed to them not only on the ground of this example, but on the ground of God's earnest entreaty through the prophets.

2. The ministry of the prophets (vv. 15, 16). When the people failed to render obedience to God, He sent them prophets who pleaded with them to amend their ways by turning away from idols. Matthew Henry indicates the points of contrast as follows:

(1) The Rechabites were obedient to one who was but a man. The Jews disobeyed the infinite and eternal God. (2) Jonadab was dead long since and could not know of their disloyalty or correct them concerning it. God is all-wise, lives forever and will punish the disobedient. (3) The Rechabites were never put in mind of their obligations, but God sent His prophets who rose up early to remind Judah. (4) Jonadab left the charge, with no one to bear the expense of the charge, but God gave Judah a goodly land and blessed them in it. (5) God never tied up His people to any hard task as did Jonadab, but God's people disobeyed Him, while the Rechabites obeyed their father.

V. Judgment Upon the Jews for Disobedience (v. 17).

God declared that He would bring judgment as pronounced against them.

VI. The Rechabites Rewarded for Their Loyalty (vv. 18, 19).

Because they had been true to the commands of Jonadab, they should have continued representation before God.

Walk While Ye Have Light

The people answered Him, We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever; and how sayest thou, the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man? Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you; for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be children of light.—John 12, 34 to 36.

Medical Sermonettes

By W. B. LEONARD, M. D.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Too many cooks spoil the broth." Of course this applies to the kitchen originally, but it has also a medical moral worth repeating. The choice of a physician either for the family or for oneself should be a more serious affair than simply going to the nearest grocery because it is very handy on the corner. All doctors are by no means equal in knowledge or ability and should not be chosen for appearance or convenience only. It means more to place your life and immediate happiness in the hands of a man you know little about, much more than to pick out a cigar at a new stand simply because it is near-by. And when you have chosen with some care, do not listen to every neighbor; or, when seriously ill, call in two or three more to a counsel over your condition. Doctors, like lawyers, seldom agree, and in a multitude of such counsel there is not necessarily much wisdom. Let your trusted family physician sound the alarm and ask for help, which he will do if he is worthy of your confidence.

Trees Don't Freeze

Notwithstanding the popular belief that trees freeze in the winter, scientific investigation has proved, according to a Boise Ida forester, that they cannot freeze but remain dormant during the winter much like certain wild animals. "Every day or so some one asks about the trees freezing," he said, "and they seem to doubt my word. Sap circulation stops in the winter and the cells remain inactive. The sap congeals and prevents freezing else the tree would die. Some times frost will split a tree trunk open but this is due to contraction and expansion and not to freezing." —Detroit News.

Aids to Cool Greeting

One of the prized curios found occasionally in England is the once popular hand cooler. These implements were spheroids of clear glass and were used 150 years ago by society favorites who considered it necessary to have their hands cool when the gallant men bent low and kissed the fair one's hand in greeting. If the lady had one of the cool glass balls in her hand, which was extended to cover the ball, she was supposed to be meeting the highest demands of social correctness. Some of the balls were striped in colors to conform with milady's costume.—Detroit News.

Severe Tests Prove Cricket Hard to Kill

Dr. Frank E. Lutz, curator of insects at the American Museum of Natural History, and Alfred E. Loomis, a physicist, put a cricket through a series of physical experiments that would have killed most creatures, but the little fellow survived the tests and seemed to chirp for more, the New York World tells us.

Its first experience was in a jar from which the air was rapidly exhausted until the pressure was equal to an altitude of ten miles above sea level. At first the insect was quiet, but in a few minutes it began to clean its hind legs. Then the tube to the jar was cut, permitting an instantaneous drop to the pressure of the outside air.

"The cricket," says Doctor Lutz, "merely gave a little twitch as though some one had frightened it a bit."

The insect's next adventure was with compressed air. It was put into a tank analogous to caissons used in tunnel building. The pressure was quickly raised and then as suddenly reduced, a procedure no human being could have survived. But the valiant cricket paid less attention to these adventures than to the previous ones.

The following day Gryllus, as scientists call the cricket, was treated to a merry-go-round ride in a centrifuge that whirled at 1,200 revolutions a minute for ten minutes. When the machine stopped the cricket shook itself and chirped as if in thanks for the buggy ride.

Dyers Making Use of Trees Once Condemned

Every country or section of a country as it grows casts about for more and more resources that can be converted into marketable finished products. The American Southwest has taken the common hedge apple tree otherwise known as the Osage orange, the bow wood or the bois d'arc tree. A row of these trees composes what farmers call a hedge fence.

In the old days its roots were smoked by boys to whom tobacco was forbidden. Otherwise, the hedge tree, with its manifold fruit of large green balls, was unpopular. Farmers condemned it because, when used as a hedge, it would not hold their cows and hogs. Motorists cursed it because it shut off their view at crossposts, the hedge tree appeared to be of little use. A few factories bought it to make wagon spokes and felloes.

A new day, however, is dawning for the hedge apple tree. It is being turned into the hoppers of some of the country's large dye factories. This is developing into a real industry in Texas and Oklahoma.

The hedge apple tree is also excellent material for telephone cross-arms and insulator pins. What is left of the tree is utilized in the making of fertilizer. Long ago the Indians made bows of this wood.

Absence makes the picture postcards accumulate.

The man who lives by his wits is not always a high liver.

SOUR MILK FOR SWEET

When proportions are given in terms of sweet milk and baking powder an equal quantity of sour milk may be substituted and enough soda used approximately to neutralize the acid, or a scant half teaspoon for each cup of milk. In the case of thin batters, the soda and sour milk generally furnish enough leavening, for for thick batters or doughs baking powder is substituted for all of the soda in the proportion of 4 teaspoons of baking powder for 1 teaspoon of soda if no other acid ingredients such as molasses is used. If such an acid ingredients is used, as in gingerbread, some soda is required.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

WATCH CHARMS

THE wearing of little figures as ornaments attached to the watch chain is an open and frank revival of a custom of the primitive man and of the peoples of the ancient civilizations who wore emblems and symbols by way of protection against evils which they believed might be averted through the intervention of the powers or divinities to whom the symbols especially appealed.

The wearing of charms was universal among the Egyptians and the Romans. With the spread of Christianity the custom was transformed into the wearing of religous emblems and so continued through the Middle ages. After the Reformation the custom of wearing any sort of charm was discountenanced by most of the Protestant sects and especially to our Puritan forefathers was it anathema. But it gradually revived again—in this country shortly before the Revolutionary war—and revived in its old, heathen form, the New England maiden, who would have considered it a mark of superstition to wear a gold cross strung around her neck, wore quite innocently a gold hand closed in a peculiar manner which, had she known its ancient, heathen significance, she would rather have died than allowed to repose upon her chaste bosom. Now we wear all sorts of symbols, Christian and pagan. That they have not entirely lost their original meaning for us is evidenced by the fact that we still call them "charms!" and many a man would have a vague fear of coming bad luck should he lose from his watch chain the little gold pig, the little gold hand or whatever is his pet "charm."

Abolition of Slavery

Either before or soon after the adoption of the Constitution all the northern states—beginning with Vermont in 1777 and ending with New Jersey in 1804—either abolished slavery or adopted measures to effect its gradual abolition within their territories.

When the Civil war broke out slavery had been completely abolished in all the states north of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. Slavery existed to some extent at one time in all the original 13 colonies.—The Pathfinder Magazine.

All Is Well!

If we see not yet how it is that all things work together for good, a quiet spirit sets the face in the direction whence cometh help, and deepens our belief that all is well with the universe. We may be sure that every soul that is patient in trial, faithful in duty, active and rejoicing in helpfulness, is adding one little stone of excellent pattern to the vast temple of life.—Exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. "Bill" Dueschle play golf like nobody's business and if you think golf is not a scientific proposition, just get yourself a bag of clubs and start out. Now Bill and the Missus are never too interested in the game to forget their personal appearance, hence our part in this story.

We have the honor of grooming this delightful pair on and off the links; their sense of discrimination certainly must be keen.

A WORD WITH WINGS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE are the words
Of common things,
And then there are
The words with wings;
And so I try,
Try even now,
To catch some word,
Some word somehow,
To send it forth
Across the blue,
A word with wings
To wing to you.

So if today,
Amid the buns
Of life some thought
Of love should come,
Or if tonight
Some word you find
That sings and sings
Within your mind,
Oh, do not bid
My bird depart,
But let him rest
Within your heart.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TO MAKE HAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES"

TO EXPRESS foresight, taking advantage of the opportunity when it appears, one of the most commonly used sayings in our language is "making hay while the sun shines."

In the use of the phrase today "hay" is figurative for money or place or love or health or any other matter in which it is desirable to improve the shining hours. But in its origin "making hay while the sun shines" had a literal application.

It goes back to the time of Henry VIII in England when it became the substance of a legal statute! At the time great damage resulted from the practice of careless farmers who left hay in the fields indefinitely after it was cut and frequently saw it ruined in rainstorms before they had it under shelter. To guard against such waste, the law was passed requiring farmers to take in their hay as soon as it was ready. It was from this statute that the expression "making hay while the sun shines" gained popularity in common speech.

SAWS

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—

A MAN forgets the last kiss long before a woman has forgot the first.

When a woman starts pannin' husbands, she's nearly always pannin' some particular husband.

The most hopeless day in a woman's life is the one when she realizes that the reason she can't get what she wants out of men ain't through any lack on her makeup—but in theirs.

FOR THE GANDER—

If you buy a pond you can swim; if you buy more than one you can drown.

Nothin' seems like a sin, once it gets to be a habit.

No matter how much a woman's lips lie when she speaks, they tell the truth when she kisses. On'y you can't get a man to disregard the former and pay attention to the latter.

SUPERSTITIOUS SUE

SHE HAS HEARD THAT—

DIETERICH SAYS FLOWER EXHIBIT LARGER THIS YEAR

School Display Held in Conjunction With Exhibit; All Grades Represented By Their Work

DRAWS LARGE CROWD

The annual Flower Show held in the Bexley High school from Friday, June 7, to Tuesday, June 11, was the largest and most beautiful ever held in the school, according to Supt. H. C. Dieterich. Beautiful bouquets were exhibited by students of all grades and by adults.

The Flower Show has become one of the most interesting features of the close of the school year at Bexley High school.

Two prizes were awarded in forty different classes. The judges were: Mrs. Carl Weber, president of the Flower and Garden Association of Franklin County; Carl Frye, landscape architect, and R. R. Connell, florist.

This Show was held in conjunction with the display of school work of the various grades. All grades were represented by some type of work from the work of the pupils of kindergarten to the senior high school work.

One of the outstanding features of this display were the two fairy health houses which were built of figs, oatmeal and beans. They were placed on display by the Cassingham Road school.

Tie-dyed and batik scarfs were made by the girls of the various classes. Art work was displayed by all grades and by high school students. Waste paper baskets, notebooks and various other articles were on display.

Members of the Latin classes made stadiums and old Latin ruins from cakes of soap, besides exhibiting clever note books.

The manual training department of the Junior and Senior High school had a fine display of tables, magazine racks, airplanes, bird boxes, hall racks, flower boxes, sewing tables, occasional tables, telephone stands chests, sewing tables, revolving book stands, desks, chairs, terneries, model boats, tilt-top tables, lamps, smoking stands, console tables and mirrors. In the making of this furniture, blue prints are first made in the mechanical drawing department. The manual training and mechanical drawing in the junior high is under the direction of H. H. Hutchison, while Mark Scofield has charge of the same departments at senior high.

The art display and the model gardens which were on display were under the direction of Miss Dorothy Arbuckle.

Sixth grade students made calico cats and gingham dolls in the home economics department. Silk quilted and old-fashioned designed pillows dressed of printed pique and silk washable material, as well as lounging suits and pajamas were on display as the work of the various grades of the Bexley schools. Mrs Miriam Nelson has charge of the home economics work in the junior high school. The work in the senior high is under the direction of Miss Marian Thomas.

The Flower Show and school exhibit was attended by large crowds from Bexley and Columbus. Teachers from various schools in Central Ohio attended the exhibition, for which Bexley is becoming well known.

GROCERS PICNIC TO BE JUNE 26

Bathing Girl Review is Feature Of Annual Affair Given by Columbus Association

East Side Grocers are taking a prominent part in the distribution of tickets for the annual picnic of the Columbus Retail Grocers Association, which takes place Wednesday, June 26, at Olentangy Park. PUBLIC TO START CAMPAIGN AGAINST TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

Council May Decide to Have Tennis Courts and Playground In Park

REPLACE SIDEWALKS

Council instructed the police department to rigidly enforce the traffic ordinance relating to the main thoroughfares at the meeting Tuesday night. Chief of Police R. A. Antle was instructed to detail one man for duty to see that all vehicles observe the stop signs. Violators of the main thoroughfare ordinance will be arrested and fined heavily.

Councilman Allen Pretsman declared that the violation of this ordinance was a grave menace to the residents of Bexley. He declared that if the main thoroughfares were not observed that it would be much better to tear the stop signs down.

The council approved the budget of $85,000 for the coming year subject to the public hearing on the distribution of the funds.

The village operated last year on $75,224.04.

Mr. Pretzman called to the attention of the members of council that the village park was doing no one any good and was only an expense to the village. He suggested that tennis courts and a playground would keep the children off the streets. A committee composed of Pretzman, Bonnett and Betz was appointed to consider plans for the playgrounds.

The bid of $37,086.80 for the construction of a sanitary sewer in the alley east of Chelsea avenue and of Gould road made by Harold M. Bright was accepted by council.

Central City Construction Company was awarded the contract for the laying of water mains in Maryland avenue, Gould road, Main street and Mound street at their bid of $57,242.

Upon the motion of Councilman Pretzman, council voted to relieve Mrs. Mary Edgell, 2419 Haverwood drive, of the assessments for the replacing of the sidewalks as a result of the changing of the grade of the street a year ago.

An ordinance for the regulation of the screening of porches extending beyond the set back line. Any one who wishes to screen their porch which extends beyond the set back line must get a permit from the building inspector.

A resolution introduced by F. H. Bonnett was passed by council declaring it necessary to construct an intercepting sanitary sewer without regard to sewer districts in Livingston avenue to furnish additional outlet for sewer districts number 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6.

Council passed an ordinance to proceed with the construction and installation of a system of lighting in Columbia avenue from Maryland avenue to Ruhl avenue and Mound street from College avenue to Euclaire avenue.

An ordinance by R. J. Wheaton was passed changing certain premises on Cassady avenue from Class 1 to Single Family House District to Retail Business District.

Engineer Harold Kennedy was instructed to prepare estimates of cost of resurfacing of Remington road from Main street to Fair avenue.

Council instructed Marshal Shadrach to erect a "dead end" sign on Park Hill drive. Shadrach was also instructed to buy a tar container and calcium chloride for use on the streets. Loose manholes in the village are to be fixed by the street commissioner.

Councilman Betz brought the condition of Aster avenue to the attention of council with the result that Shadrach was instructed to resurface Aster avenue from College avenue to Pleasant Ridge.

Engineer Kennedy was instructed to prepare plans for lights to be installed on Aster avenue from College avenue to Pleasant Ridge to replace the one light remaining of the old type street light.

P. G. Mettler, 818 Montrose avenue was awarded the contract for the painting of the 535 street light standards. The poles are to be painted with dark green metallic paint at a cost of 50 cents.

More WOMEN RIDE ON Goodyear Tires
than on any other kind

Tire-changing is not a woman's job. Women prefer Goodyear tires because they go farther without giving trouble, hold the car more securely on slippery roads and stop safely.

Millions more people ride on Goodyear tires — the percentage of Goodyear-equipped cars increases daily. It's safer, it's cheaper to always buy Goodyears.

Lesson for June 16

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 23:1-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Nation That Forgot God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Nation That Forgot God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paying the Price of Sinning.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—National Accountability to God.

Zedekiah was made king of Judah by the king of Babylon (II Kings 24:17), but in spite of this kindness and the word of the Lord spoken to him by Jeremiah (Jer. 34:17, 18, cf. Jer. 52:3), he rebelled against the king of Babylon. He relied upon the help of Egypt, but all that Egypt could do was to cause temporary interruption of the siege of Jerusalem.

I. The Siege of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. The time (vv. 1, 2).

It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign and lasted about eighteen months. The tenth month, according to the Jewish calendar, corresponds to our December, January, as their calendar year began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile.

2. The method (v. 1). Nebuchadnezzar came with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem and built forts against it round about. It is thought that siege walls were built around the city, shutting it in. On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city.

3. The famine (v. 3).

Geikie says, "It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mothers were at last driven to murder and eat their children. The richest citizens wandered about searching for scraps in the dung hills." It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem died of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate (vv. 4-7).

1. "The city was broken up" (v. 4).

The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do.

2. Zedekiah's flight (v. 4).

The king with his men of war fled by night toward the plain. His object no doubt was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of the river.

3. Zedekiah's fate (vv. 5-7).

(1) He was overtaken in the plains of Jericho (v. 5). When his flight was discovered, the Chaldean army pursued and captured him. (2) He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6), a town north of Damascus. It was the king's headquarters from which he directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Zedekiah was tried as a criminal before Nebuchadnezzar. (3) His fate (v. 7). His sons were slain in his sight; his eyes were put out; he was bound with fetters of brass and they carried him to Babylon where he remained prisoner until the day of his death (Jer. 52:11).

III. Jerusalem Destroyed (vv. 8-10).

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar, who was at Riblah.

1. They burnt of the house of the Lord (v. 9).

This was the sacred temple built by Solomon, with additions and modifications. Before burning it was despoiled of all its sacred contents.

2. Burnt the king's house (v. 9).

This was doubtless the palace built by Solomon.

3. Burnt all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9).

The implication is that the common houses were left for the people (v. 12).

4. They broke down the walls of Jerusalem.

IV. The Disposition of the Temple Furniture and Priests (vv. 13-21).

1. The temple furniture (vv. 13-17).

The pillars of brass and the brazen sea were broken into pieces by the Babylonians and were carried to Babylon.

2. Certain officers and priests (vv. 18-21).

Certain officers, priests and threescore men were taken to Riblah by the king of Babylon, and were slain.

Wedding to be Held Thursday

Miss Helen Irene Miller

The two small nieces of Miss Miller, Martha Virginia and Janet Yvonne Schleppi, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schleppi, will act as ringbearers at her wedding Thursday, when she will be married to Elmer K. Kastner. Dr. Otto Mees will read the marriage ceremony in Divinity Hall Chapel at 8 a. m. June 20 in the presence of the immediate families and close friends. A wedding breakfast will be served at the Willard immediately following the ceremony.

Miss Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Miller, 2359 Lockbourne road. For several years she has been the private secretary to Dr. Mees, president of Capital University. Mr. Kastner is field representative for Capital. He is a graduate of Capital and also of the Theological Seminary.

THE SNAIL ON THE WALL

"Well done, Tommy Brooks!" exclaimed the teacher in pleased surprise when the "dunce" of the school spoke his piece without omitting a single word.

The other boys and girls laughed when he arose to speak, for they expected a bad failure. But when the rest of the class had tried, the teacher said Tommy had done the best of all, and gave him the prize.

"And now tell me," said the teacher "how you learned the poem so well."

"Please, ma'am, it was the snail on the wall," replied Tommy timidly. At but the teacher said:

"You need not laugh, children, for we may learn much from such things as snails. How did the snail teach you, Tommy?"

"I saw it crawl up the wall a little at a time. It did not stop nor turn back to see how far he had gone, but went on and on, and I thought I would do the same with my piece. So I learned it little by little, and did not give up. By the time the snail reached the top of the wall I had reached the top of the wall I had learned the whole poem."

BE GOOD TO ANIMALS

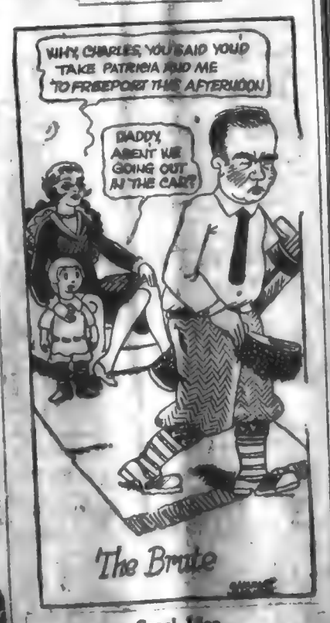
Cats love to be brushed the wrong way. If you want to give pussy a treat, give her raw fish.

Never pat a dog on his head. It is his one tender spot.

Rabbits love the roots of dandelions.

Birds love to find a little bit of suet among the breadcrumbs you throw out for them in the garden.

When a woman goes visiting nothing hurts her so much as her inability to impress upon her hostess the idea that she is used to something better at home.



SOCIETY WILL HOLD GARDEN PARTY

A garden party will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard E. Ackland 1471 Fair avenue, Thursday, June 20 from 7:00 to 10:00 p. m. It is being held under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Franklin Park M. E. church.

Miss Ruth Wilson, 504 Kimball Pl. who is a teacher in the Ironton High school, sailed Wednesday on the Levinthian for Europe. She was accompanied by Miss Gratia Flower of Ironton, who is also a teacher in the Ironton High school. They expect to return on the America, August 12.

Miss Wilson was honor guest last Friday when Miss Alma Heiner of the Ohio State University faculty, entertained at the Village.

Mrs. William E. Wilson entertained informerly for her daughter, last Sunday at their home, 504 Kimball Place.

"How long did the audience cheer you?"

"Almost an hour," answered Senator Sorghum. "It seemed the folks had their minds made up in advance, and would rather listen to their own voices than hear any remarks from me."—Washington Star.

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN CREAM

2 round tablespoons gelatin.
1 pt. strawberry pulp.
1 cup powdered sugar.
1 cup hot water.
½ pt. whipping cream.

Mix the strawberry pulp and juice with powdered sugar. Dissolve the gelatin in 2 tablespoons of the water, add the rest of the water and stir in the fruit. Whip the cream stiff. Chill and when beginning to thicken fold in the whipped cream. Turn into a mold and stand in a cold place.

STRAWBERRY OR RASPBERRY FOAM

1 cup berries, whole or mashed thru a sieve.
1 cup cream, whipped.
2 egg whites.

Beat whites stiff and add ½ cup of sifted powdered sugar, then beat again. Fold in the cream and berries (or juice) and chill.

STRAWBERRY CREAM

2 cups strawberries.
1 cup sugar.
2 cups water.
2 lemons.
2 tablespoons gelatin.

Soften the gelatin in cold water, then dissolve in 1 cup of hot water. Add the mashed berries, sugar and finally the juice of the lemons and place on ice to set.

UNCOOKED STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

For each pound of berries allow one and one-fourth pounds of sugar. Crush the berries and put a layer in a thoroughly clean and scalded stone crock. Over this sprinkle a layer of sugar, continuing in this way until the berries and sugar has been used. Cover and let stand for a day and night in a cold place. Stir them occasionally so that the sugar and berries will become thoroughly blended. Then transfer them without cooking at all to sterilized jars, filling them full to overflowing. Seal and keep in a cool place as other preserves. The sugar acts as a preserving agent, and the berries keep indefinitely.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

Hull, wash and mash four quarts strawberries and put them over the fire in a preserving kettle and bring slowly to a boil. Then strain through a jelly bag, pressing to extract the juice. To every pint add one pint of sugar and boil all together briskly about ten minutes, removing all skum that arises to the surface. Then add four quarts firm, ripe berries and simmer gently for 10 minutes, after which skim out the berries carefully and place into jars, fill with the boiling syrup and seal at once. Raspberries may be preserved in the same way, with the juice of one lemon added to every four pounds of raspberries.

STRAWBERRY SUNSHINE

1 pound berries.
1 pound sugar.

Let berries which have been hulled, and washed, stand in the sugar until it draws juice; then cook for 10 minutes. Put on platter and stand in sunshine until thick. Put in glasses.

PEOPLE WE SERVE

Mr. C. J. Penfield is the chief executive of a large mercantile concern composed of many units throughout the country. What impresses us the most about this man is his ability to see and appreciate the little things of life.

For instance his wearing apparel reflects his desire to beautify and harmonize what otherwise might be drab and colorless. Many business men neglect these little superfluities of life which go to make the journey more pleasant.

We have the honor of assisting Mr. Penfield to keep that well groomed appearance.

THINK IT OVER

A customer went into a drug store and ordered a five-cent glass of soda. He put down a dollar bill in payment. The druggist said, "I cannot change it."

The customer replied, "Sorry, but the only other money I have is a five-dollar bill."

If the druggist could not change the one dollar bill, how could he change the five? Don't worry about it, for worrying is old-fashioned, but if you can't figure it out, turn to another page for the answer.

That statesman with the studious expression is the great dictator, to whom the king is explaining the theory of divine right.

GENTLE rain from heaven, seeping through an old dead roof—bringing inconvenience, doing damage, causing buckets to be fetched.

The marriage of Miss Irene Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Elliott, 654 South Ninth street, to Alvin Fulgham, 631 Kelton ave. was solemnized at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday in the Independent Protestant church by Rev. J. F. Meyer.

The double ring ceremony was used by Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital University, in the marriage of Miss Helen Irene Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Miller, 2359 Lockbourne road to Mr. Elmer W. Kastner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kastner of Indianapolis, Thursday at 8:30 a. m. in Divinity Hall Chapel.

Nieces of the bride, Martha Virginia and Janet Yvonne Schleppi daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schleppi, carried the rings on a white satin pillow. Rev. Edward Fendt, pastor of Martin Lutheran church and Albert Rust of Indianapolis acted as ushers.

Rev. J. L. Sealing of Holland, Ind., sang "Old Refrain," and "Romance," before the wedding and "At Dawning" during the ceremony. Miss Ethel Weber, organist, accompanied him.

Miss Miller wore a white satin back crepe gown with a basque waist and a draped overskirt dipping to a train in the back.

Real lace hanging from a corsage of orange blossoms at the waist extended the length of the skirt in front. Her cap-shaped veil of tulle and lace was caught at the back of the neck with a wreath of orange blossoms.

The ring bearers were dressed in green taffeta frocks trimmed in black velvet ribbons.

Thursday, the twenty-eighth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Page, 501 Berkeley road was the wedding day of their son Adrian R. Page and Miss Alice King daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. King, 216 Midland avenue. The ceremony took place at 8 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents, with Rev George F. Barber, pastor of Glenwood Avenue M. E. church, officiating.

William Page, pianist, brother of the bridegroom, played a selection of wedding music preceding the ceremony. Miss King was attended by her sister, Miss Helen King as maid of honor. Keneth West was best man.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home at 186 Miller avenue.

"Eat a plate of ice cream every day." This advertising slogan by the manufacturers contains a truth. Ice cream, when not stiffened or adulterated in any way, is a very nourishing food, even in fevers, in small quantities. It is a concentrated diet and contains all the elements of a full meal, being an excellent mixture of sugar, fat and animal vitamines. No harm can possibly come from eating it every day, but it should be taken with other food, not alone, as a rule. The custom of serving it after a meal is based upon sound knowledge of food digestion, and unless the meal has been entirely too hearty, its ingestion is never harmful. For children, at almost any time, ice cream is a welcome and wholesome food, easily digested and assimilated. It is better served with light, starchy bread and simple cake.

CIGAR STORE MAN HAD BECOME WISE

A resident of a suburban town, returning from a business trip, was astonished to see painters at work on the front of a cigar store owned by a friend. He entered and sought out the owner.

"See here, Joe!" he exclaimed, "didn't you have your shop painted just a week ago?"

"Yes, I did."

"Then why in tarnation are you having it done over again?"

"It's just a case of human nature," responded the dealer. "When the job was done the painters put up the usual 'wet paint' signs. And as usual nobody believes in signs. The result was that the next day the whole front was covered with so many finger marks that it looked worse than before."

"But what if the same thing happens again?"

"It won't. There'll be no signs put up this time."—New York Sun.

HAPPY HITS

Most remedies for prejudice seem to be fatal.

The more bridges some folks go to the crosser they get.

Beware of the willing worker; he may try to work you.

There is no place like the home of a young man's best girl.

Does death end all? Well, apparently, a great deal, anyway.

As a rule the girl who jilts a young man does him a great favor.

Every time a lazy man looks at the clock the day becomes longer.

Give a pretty girl a chance to show off and she'll not get lonesome.

It is impossible to convince a spinster that marriage is a failure.

Successful men have no time to go back and cover up their footprints.

In fooling the public, there are always a number that can't be fooled.

The more mistakes a man makes the easier it is for him to invent excuses.

How one woman does enjoy seeing another fall in love with the wrong man.

Habits had better be made habits. That's the easiest way to shoulder them.

Don't hold your head so high that you can't see where your feet are going.

Prosperity affects a man's walk, his speech, his waistline and his opinion of himself.

Don't swallow everything you hear—unless you are foolish and don't care who knows it.

All ancient civilizations perished; but in not a single one of them did the people have an education.

The Only Way

Two golfing rivals were contesting the final of their local championship. They were all square at the eleventh hole.

One made a perfect drive from the next tee, but his opponent was unlucky, and the ball, curving high in the air, landed in jungle country.

When he went to investigate, he discovered that his ball had gone down a rabbit hole.

"Your niblick, sir?" inquired the caddie, reaching for the club.

"No," returned the other in a resigned voice. "Hurry back to the clubhouse and get me a ferret."

Maintains School Work

Having reared a family, taught school and helped others to educate themselves, Mrs. Lucy H. Woodhead, at seventy-five years of age, is attending Oklahoma A. and M. college, pursuing work leading to a master's degree. When her daughter Madge was eleven years old, Mrs. Woodhead started renewing her school days with her. Up through high school and college they were in the same class. They were graduated from the Emporia (Kan.) State Teachers' college together.

Of Greater Feminine Interest

The professor was showing a young woman the heavens through his telescope. He directed her gaze to a planet which he told her was Venus.

"Oh, isn't it perfectly lovely!" she exclaimed—and then, "Now please show me Adonis."

Doubtful Praise

Singer—Did you note how well my voice filled the great hall?

Friend—Yes, people were kind enough to leave, so as to make room for it.

Mrs. Blackstone

"She is positively like a lawyer in the way she convinces people of anything."

"Half-Portion, you might say."

Horse and Buggy

Blinks—Jackson is so old-fashioned.

Jinks—Say, when that bird starts planning a vacation trip he still hunts up a time table instead of a road map.

'Driving Instructor—Well, do you understand the car now?

Beginner—Perfectly. There's only one thing I should like to ask: Do you put the water and the gasoline in the same hole?

An Improvement

The late Gen. Owen J. Sweet, who died at Fort Totten in his eighty-third year, said one day that the World war had improved soldiering and all things pertaining thereto.

"Think," the veteran general went on, with a twinkle in his eye—"think how much neater soldiers' uniforms have become since the World war. Why, I remember how in the old days you'd hear the quartermaster's sergeants snarling at every new recruit: 'Well, speak up there, can't ye? How do you want yer uniform—too big or too small?'"

Objected to Knitting in London Co. Council

Knitting needles may not click an accompaniment to the debates in the London county council.

This unwritten law was laid down with emphasis by an irate masculine objector when Dame Beatrice Lyall, member for East Fulham, produced a pair during an all-night session and proceeded to click off intermingble hours of debate with as many inches of warm woolen sock.

No woman has yet had the hardihood to produce knitting needles in the house of commons, but in the past men M. P.'s have done so.

The most famous knitter in parliamentary annals was one of the Wason brothers, who were well known in a former generation at Westminster. They were such big men that they were prominent figures wherever they appeared, and the spectacle of one of them, a man six feet tall and proportionately hefty, plying his knitting needles throughout debates in the house must have been incongruous. His fellow M. P.'s apparently thought nothing of it, however, for there are no chronicled objections in parliamentary archives.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 23

A PSALM OF PRAISE

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 103:1-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Bless the Lord, O my soul.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Song of Praise.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Song of Praise.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Privilege of Worshiping God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Habit of Thankfulness.

This beautiful psalm of praise follows one of the importunate pleadings for help in time of great need. Andrew Bonar calls it "A Song of a Redeemed One by the Redeemer's Side." It is entirely given up to praise; not a single supplication being found in it.

I. Adoration for Personal Benefits (vv. 1-5).

The Psalmist calls upon his soul to bless God's holy name. Man's whole nature, intellectually and spiritually, is called upon to adore God. Note the benefits recognized by the Psalmist:

1. "Forgiveth all thine iniquities" (v. 3). Pardon of our sins is the most important of all God's benefits.

2. "Healeth all thy diseases" (v. 3). Healing here refers to that of the body and the soul. Renovation of the entire nature, especially the moral, follows forgiveness of sins.

3. "Redeemeth thy life from destruction" (v. 4). The sinner is in the position of a debtor. All the demands made against him because of his sins, were paid by Jesus Christ.

4. "Crowneth thee with loving kindness" (v. 4). The redeemed one not only has forgiveness of sins, but is invested with the full rights of heavenly citizenship.

5. "Satisfieth thy mouth" (v. 5). When one enters into saving relationship with Christ he does not incur loss, but great gain. He is not deprived of any rights.

II. Praise for God's Excellencies (vv. 6-13).

The Psalmist now looks away from the benefits bestowed to the very quality of the being who bestowed them.

1. His justice (v. 6).

"He executeth righteousness." God is always against the oppressor and on the side of the oppressed. This points to the time when Messiah's reign shall extend over the whole world.

2. He reveals Himself (v. 7). This He did in a peculiar way to Moses and the children of Israel. The very name Jehovah means Self-revealing. One (Ex. 3:14), God created man in His likeness and image in order that He might not only reveal Himself, but that He might share His goodness with the creature.

3. Merciful and gracious (v. 8). As a sinner man needs pardon and favor. God in His mercy pardons the sinner who calls upon Him and through His grace He bestows favors upon him.

4. Not always contending (v. 9). God's love for His children moves Him to contend with them. When they turn from their sin, He ceases to chasten them. God holds no grudges. He forgets our stubborn follies as soon as we turn from them.

5. God's forgiveness (vv. 10-13).

This forgiveness is manifested in His not dealing with us according to our sins, in showing supreme mercy, in putting away sin as far as the East is from the West, and in fatherly pity. We usually think to praise God for what He has done. How much we ought to praise Him for what He has refrained from doing.

III. Man's Frailty and God's Eternity (vv. 14-19).

1. His frailty (vv. 14-16).

(1) He is but dust (v. 14). God constituted man's body out of the dust of the ground, therefore He knows his frailty. (2) His days are as grass (v. 15). He flourishes as the flower of the field. As the grass disappears under a blighting wind (v. 16), so a small blast from God will destroy man's life.

2. God's eternity (vv. 17-19). God's goodness and mercy are from everlasting to everlasting. This goodness and mercy He shows from generation to generation.

IV. Call to Universal Thanksgiving (vv. 20-22).

Since His dominion is over all, it calls for recognition by all.

1. Angels (v. 20). Intelligent spirits that bear His messages and go on His errands are called upon to praise and adore Him.

2. His hosts (v. 21). By hosts here is likely meant the sun, moon and stars. They are called upon to give Him due praise (Ps. 19:2).

3. His works (v. 22).

Whatever He has done, whether in creation, providence or redemption, His works made known his goodness.

Belief and Faith

And Jesus answering saith unto them, Have faith in God. For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith. Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them. —Mark 11:22 to 24.

Venice, California, patterned after its Italian namesake, is to drain her canals, fill them in and pave them. It was inconvenient walking back from gondola rides.

COOK BOOK MEETS MANY NEEDS

Help in planning the family meals; hints on the preparation of school lunches, vegetable dinners and casserole dishes; instructions for the care and feeding of invalids; menus for children; advice on what to eat to gain weight or lose it — all these things and many others are to be found in The Home Dietitian Cook Book, compiled by Ella Mae Ives, recognized authority on cooking and diet which will prove of real value to any housewife who owns one. The merits of this book have never been questioned by anyone who has had an opportunity to examine it.

For the bride's shower or gift it is most highly appropriate, if the letters on file at the authors desk from pleased brides are criterion.

The Home Dietitian is for sale at the East Side at Perrins' Flower and Gift Shop, ... East Main street, and at The Eastern Times office, 443 Miller avenue. Call FR. 0560 if you want one delivered.

Wears Sheep Skin Coat With Mercury at 85°

A young lady whom we believed to be fairly intelligent told us about wearing a fur coat yesterday. Just as we began to seriously doubt her integrity, inasmuch as we were sweltering in the presence of two very active electric fans, she explained that it was during a visit to the cold storage vault of The Valet Cleaners and Storage, 954 East Livingston avenue.

Mr. Ricketts, the proprietor, loaned her his sheep skin coat and ushered her thru a heavy vault door, into a vestibule, thru another and heavier door, triple locked, into a lofty square room that at that moment carried a temperature of 22 degrees and dozens of valuable furs and woolens. She was thoroughly chilled she said, and could easily "feel" why no moth could exist under those circumstances.—Adv.

Miss Kathryn Friel, 144 Eastmoor blvd., was complimented with a bridge tea and shower at the Broad-Lincoln, by Mrs. Lemly Phillips of Asbury, N. Y., and Miss Rebecca Smith, 128 S. Garfield avenue. Miss Friel will be married to Mr. N. Ellsworth Smith July 22.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

TRUE GREATNESS

THE political party to which the late American ambassador to France belonged is now of little concern. The populace as well as those in high political life paid homage to his name in grateful and enduring appreciation of the magnificant service he rendered.

What was that service? Those conversant with the details of the embassy would doubtless answer by paying tribute to the untiring energy and superior judgment of the American representative to France. Many a tourist, traveling in France, remembers with keen appreciation the service and courtesy rendered in a difficult personal situation. The government of the United States has just cause to memoralize the name of Myron T. Herrick for his long and faithful as well as efficient service at the French embassy. But American ambassadors to other courts have rendered much the same service, even though such service did not cover so long a span of time. In what respect then did the service of Mr. Herrick mark his administration with such a peculiar and special significance? For what will his work be especially remembered? For what outstanding reason does both France and America rise to do his name honor now that he has past beyond.

Among the many conspicuous acts of Ambassador Herrick, one is especially noteworthy. During the dark days of the war when the safety of France was in the balance, and the odds were organized against her, it was suggested in the interest of safety that the American embassy be removed to a less dangerous locality. While requests like this came pouring in at the embassy, Mr. Herrick remained silent. When the proper time came he emphatically refused to heed the many suggestions. The American embassy would remain just where it was in spite of possible dangers. A less brave man would have readily agreed; indeed would have sought an opportunity to remove to a more safe locality; not so Ambassador Herrick. He remained where he was in the face of duty, and the courage, service and help rendered the French people during the darkest hours of their history will never be forgotten by either France or America.

A great man is able to sense and embrace a great opportunity. Myron Herrick did this very thing, not for personal gain or glory, but for service to humanity. For this remarkable service he will always be remembered and honored. "This that he hath done shall be told as a memorial of him."

Resented Uncalled-For Slam at Dead Brother

Ralph W. Smith of the bureau of standards is conducting for the government a nation-wide investigation of taximeters, and he said in Washington the other day:

"This investigation doesn't mean that taxicabs, like taxidermists, skin you, and the men who take offense at us fail to understand. In fact, they're like Smith.

"A man came back to the home town after thirty years in New York and, of course, he inquired affectionately about this old friend and that.

"'And Bill Smith?' he said. 'How is dear old Bill Smith getting along?'

"'Bill,' said John Smith, a brother —'Bill is dead.'

"'What? Bill dead?' sighed the visitor. 'Ah, me, peace to his ashes.'

"'How dare you?' said John Smith hotly. 'Bill was as good a chap as ever breathed.'"

COUNCIL ACCEPTS BID OF R. DIENST ON STREET PAVING

Request of Advisory Board For Additional Stenographic Service Is Approved

3.2 PERCENT BID ACCEPTED

Residents of Mound street and Pleasant Ridge appeared before Bexley council Tuesday night to protest the improving of the two streets with concrete pavement. After an executive session, Councilman Allen Pretzman made the motion that the bid of R. J. Dienst of $26,039.25 for the paving of Mound street from College avenue to Euclaire avenue, and $10,870.92 for the paving of Pleasant Ridge avenue from Mound street to Main street, with 2½ inch brick be accepted. The motion carried and the bid was awarded to him.

The Commercial National Bank was awarded the deposits of the village at their bid of 3.2 per cent.

Council also provided for the paying for additional stenographic service for the advisory board which is investigating the various forms of city governments for Bexley.

A resolution was passed by council authorizing the cutting of weeds in the village.

Engineer Harold Kennedy was instructed to see that when Mound street is paved that the proper turn-in be made at Francis street.

A letter was received from Thelma L. Lyons, 679 Montrose avenue objecting to the bright street light in front of her house. Council decided that nothing could be done about this condition since the same condition exists in various places in the village. In some places the residents have painted the lights black on one side. Council declared that this paint should be removed as it is unsightly.

The request of the Shady Lane Nursery that they be allowed to get cuttings from the shrubbery in the park was denied by council. A forester has been employed by the village to trim the shrubbery and council does not feel that it is justified in allowing someone to go into the park and get cuttings since the trimming has already been done.

The bid of Burton Elder, Jack D. Boyland and William H. Park for the painting of the street light poles for 47 cents per pole was accepted by council.

An ordinance for the issuing of bonds to the extent of $900 for the installing of sidewalks on Columbia avenue from Bryden road to Broad street was passed by council.

The issuing of notes amounting to $17,100 in anticipation of the special assessment for the construction of sanitary sewers in part of Sanitary Sewer District No. 5 was authorized by the passing of an ordinance to that effect Tuesday night.

Pretzman introduced an amendment for the traffic ordinance of Bexley, in which it was specified that the driver of any vehicle approaching any main thoroughfare shall shift into intermediate gear or enter the street at a speed not greater than 15 miles per hour. This applies to all main thoroughfares in the village.

The engineer was instructed by council to prepare estimates on the cost of installing of a traffic light at Cassady road and Broad street.

Mr. Kerr was appointed a committee of one to investigate the parking around the high school.

Residents on Montrose avenue and Remington road have objected to the parking on both sides of the street, declaring that the streets are too narrow.

A resolution requesting the State Highway department to widen the National Highway from Bexley to Reynoldsburg to permit four lanes of traffic was adopted by council and is to be sent to the department.

OPENS SUMMER SCHOOL

The summer school of the Bexley public schools is composed of only one class, the fourth grade. This was the only class in which enough reported for work to justify the holding of classes during the summer.

The school is held in the East Main street building with Miss Eugenie Hummel, as teacher.

MRS. HUGHES HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT ON JACKSON PIKE

Sedan Forced Into Ditch by Truck; Steel Picket Impales and Crushes Woman's Arm

Mrs. W. W. Hughes, 776 Sheridan avenue, was seriously injured in an auto accident five miles south of Circleville Wednesday evening. She is in Grant hospital, where it is stated that her left arm was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and daughter Birina were returning from Oak Hill when their sedan overturned in a ditch when forced from the road by a truck. A steel fence picket was forced through the top, impaling and crushing Mrs. Hughes' arm.

UNUSUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED IN SUMMER SCHOOL

Columbus public summer schools for high and elementary pupils opened Monday at twelve different centers and will continue seven weeks, closing August 9.

Director C. A. Pollock, through his principals and committees of teachers has worked out in detail instruction units in all the courses, which stress the essentials possible of attainment in the time allotted. In the concentrated summer period other things are subordinated to the formation of a habit of work under direction and supervision with definite goals to be achieved. While the recitation plan is not abolished, teachers will stress attention to the individual pupil, his difficulties and special needs.

Particular attention will be given this summer according to Superintendent Collicott to each child who comes because of failure of promotion. Teachers will inquire into the causes of failure and the collective findings should be of much value. Individual progress cards will be constantly checked, and group charts for each class will be used. These devices will stimulate the pupil to try to excel his own progressive record and give him knowledge of what his classmates are doing. The plodder need not be discouraged as he may experience the satisfaction of reaching his goals within the time limit, even if the more capable students complete their contracts in a shorter time and take up supplementary work.

With some modifications these same methods and objectives were tried out last summer; a symposium of opinions of the summer school teachers handed in at the close of the term to Principal Fred Slager of East High school and Principal Miss Tlizabeth Jones of the Fair Elementary school, indicated most satisfactory results of the plan, which is in accord with the best recent educational thought as to effective teaching.

WIN IN CONTEST AT ANNUAL PICNIC

The winners of the various contests at the Bexley Lodge No. 704 F. & A. M. picnic which was held at Groveport last Saturday were: William Huntington, Richard Hogan, Dorothy Read, Miss Marian Hanley, Charles Reed, Catherine Huntington, Edward Ludwig, Mrs. Ruth Hogan and V. Warner.

The general committee in charge of the picnic was composed of Walter E. Ludwig, chairman, William Barrett and Otto F. Rehn.

Hugo Spatz Wins Edison Contest

Courtesy Columbus Citizen

HUGO D. SPATZ

Hugo Spatz, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Spatz, 744 South Remington road, is the state winner of the Edison Scholarship contest. He was graduated from Bexley High school, June 18, completing the course in three years, at the age of 15 years.

Frank E. Wilson, supervisor of publications of the state department of education, announced Hugo's victory Wednesday afternoon. Thirty-eight boys were entered in the contest.

Since Hugo graduated from Bexley High school two weeks ago, he has been employed as a machinist at the Columbus Bedspring Co.

Hugo did not take physics in high school but he ranked high on the physics test in the contests. He attributes this to his physics and chemistry laboratory which he has in his home and also to the time which he spent in the physics laboratory at Bexley High school. He gives most of the credit for his excellent showing in chemistry to the chemistry teacher at Bexley High school, Carlton H. Smith, who is also coach at the Bexley school.

The national contest will be held this summer at East Orange, N. J., with one competitor from each state. The winner of this contest will be given a four-year scholarship in a technical school at the expense of Thomas A. Edison.

OPENS SHOWROOM ON EAST MAIN ST.

New Shop to be Used for Reconditioning of Bobb Chevrolet Used Cars

A new used car showroom has been opened at 1174 East Main street by the Bobb Chevrolet company. In addition to using this location as a showroom the shop in the rear of the building will be used for the reconditioning of all their used cars.

This shop will handle the painting, ducoing, upholstering and body repairing of the Bobb company.

The Bobb Chevrolet Company began business in March, 1924 in a small office at 509 East Whittier street, which in August of the same year was moved to Parsons and Reinhart. In February, 1927, they again moved, this time into their own building at 621-633 Parsons avenue which doubled their floor space.

Four or five years ago 200 or 300 used cars were sold during the year but this year Bobb Chevrolet expects to sell more than 1200 used cars. In addition to the main office and the new East Main street location, two other used car showrooms are operated by Bobb Chevrolet, one at 1405 South High street and another at 1865 Parsons avenue.

H. McDaniel is in charge of the used car department assisted by salesmen located at each showroom.

REQUEST GRANTED

City council rescinded its resolution of one year ago calling for the construction of a sidewalk on the east side of Rhoads avenue from Franklin Park to Main street.

Residents objected to the laying of the sidewalks on the grounds that it would ruin the landscaping in that portion of the lawns where the sidewalks were supposed to go. Through Horace Kerr, attorney for the residents along the street, the residents said that they were willing to reimburse the only resident who had complied with the resolution.

ONE SMALL FIRE CAUSES TWO RUNS OF FIRE DEPT.

A rag on fire at the home of Mrs. S. Tyroler, 863 Vernon road, was the cause of two runs of the Columbus Fire Department Wednesday afternoon. The rag had caught fire from the gas stove and believing the fire completely out, Mrs. Tyroler threw the rag out on the back porch. Sparks from the rag caused the paper lining of the porch to become ignited with the results that the interior of the side walls of the porch caught fire. The first call was at 1:45 p. m. at which time the fire was extinguished. The second call was due to a smoke scare.

The Bexley Fire Truck which has been equipped for the past week did not make the run due to the fact that a larger battery was being installed at the time. This is the first fire since the truck has been equipped.

DANGEROUS DAY AHEAD

The dangerous day of the year is almost here, when the fourth of July the American people celebrate the Declaration of Independence with much noise and bluster. Fireworks are set off probably to show the independence of the person firing the explosive more than to commemorate that historic day one hundred fifty-three years ago.

Lives and property are endangered by the firing of fireworks by thoughtless people. Children are allowed to handle explosives capable of blowing off their hands and injuring their eyesight or even killing them.

Laws and ordinances prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks seems to have very little effect upon the situation. It is only through the education of the parents to the dangers to which they are subjecting their children that we can hope to abolish this foolhardy practice.

Most people wouldn't want their own way if they could have it.

If a penniless man has nowhere else to go he should go to work.

Some men are constantly trying to lower the record for meanness.

Many a man who gave marriage serious thought is still in the bachelor class.

Some people waste a lot of energy climbing mountains before they are even in sight.

Many a man's unpopularity is due to his attempt to wear a misfit mantle of greatness.

If a man feels it in his bones it is apt to be rheumatism.

Dr. and Mrs. Otto Mees and daughters, Ruth and Elsa and son Robert, are leaving Sunday for their cottage at Hessel, Michigan where they will spend the month of July. Upon their return they will occupy the president's new residence at the northeast corner of the campus at Capital University.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dorn, 276 Rich street, are on a motor trip to New York where they will be the guests of Mrs. Dorn's cousin. They expect to spend the greater part of the trip at Rockway Beach. They will be gone one month.

Henry Armstrong, formerly of Stanbery road, Bexley, who has been visiting at the home of Mrs. B. L. Davies, 866 Stoddart avenue, returned to his home in St. Louis Thursday morning.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

SNAKE'S TAIL

IF YOU kill a snake its tail will not die until the sun goes down. That is a superstition which is general throughout the United States. That the muscular contractility in reptiles lasts for a long time after they have been decapitated or dismembered is a fact well known to comparative physiologists.

The idea that the snake's tail "lives until the sun goes down" is clearly inherited from Egyptian mythology—the story of Horus and the great serpent Apap, the symbol of darkness and evil. Horus represented the rising sun and the sun in its progress across the arch of the heavens. But the setting sun was his father, Osiris. And when Osiris died up on the western horizon, killed by Apap, Horus avenged the murder by slaying the serpent of evil. The connection between the death of the sun and the complete death of the snake is obvious. It should be stated that in early Egyptian mythology it is Set who kills Osiris, but later Set became identified with Apap.

In Grecian mythology, which was largely derived from the Egyptian, we find Apollo, the god of light and the powers of the sun, killing the evil serpent Python. And the cult of Apollo was not only carried over into Roman mythology but flourished in the Gallic and Celtic worlds. The line of descent of the snake's tail superstition is clear: and the farmer's boy who, having run over a black snake in the road, remarks to his companion that the creature's "tail will not die until sunset" is but harking back to the nature myths of ancient Egypt.

Change of Customs

Customs and language change greatly in the course of time. Words which were in common use in the time of Shakespeare have been so transformed that they now have a meaning entirely opposed to their former use. In the present time, Christmas festivities are concentrated on Christmas day, but in the past Christmas eve was the time when all made merry. Christmas day itself was devoted to the observance of the religious side of Christmas. Today Christmas gifts are the rule. In the past Christmas gifts were unknown. The exchange of presents was a New Year custom.

From Small Beginnings

Color-Blind Towards God

Man is color-blind towards God. The blue of God's truth is to him an arousing, angering red. The soft, soothing green of His love becomes a noisy, irritating yellow.—Dr. S. D. Gordon.

How It Started
By JEAN NEWTON

"CHEW YOUR EAR OFF"

"IF EVERYTHING isn't all right I'll come back and bite your ear off"—or "chew your ear off" you have perhaps heard a petulant lady threaten! It is a form of violence threatened, usually, by a facetiously inclined woman, yet it is in the historic act of a man and a philosopher that it had its origin.

The phrase takes us back to that episode of Greek lore which tells of the punishments of an ancient philosopher, who was ordered by the command of Nearchus to be pounded to death in a mortar. Despairing of his life, according to the story, he determined on at least one taste of revenge. Pleading near-death, he pretended to have a communication of great importance for Nearchus, and when the latter bent an ear low to receive it, he bit it off.

Lesson for June 30

REVIEW: PROPHETS AND KINGS OF JUDAH'S DECLINE

LESSON TEXT—I have loved thee with an everlasting love, therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Serve God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—True and False Leaders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's True Prophets.

The quarterly review always brings its problems. No set method can be prescribed. The grade, the aptitude of the pupils and the genius of the teacher are determining factors of the problem. For seniors and adults, two methods are suggested.

I. Character Study of the Kings and Prophets of the Period.

Biography is always fascinating and profitable. In the use of this method, assignments should be made a week ahead. As to the kings of this period, a study should be made of their strong and weak points, and suitable lessons be drawn from them. As to the prophets, the nature of the ministry of each should be studied.

II. The Summary Method.

This method involves the terse statement of the salient facts of each lesson with its central teaching. This method, to be effective, calls for assignments to be made a week in advance. Different minds will greatly vary. The following statements are offered as suggestions:

Lesson for April 7.

Either at the beginning of Isaiah's ministry or later when called to a deeper experience, he had a vision of the majesty and holiness of the living God. The leading lesson is that a real sight of the living God discloses the sinfulness of man.

Lesson for April 14.

In leading the people back to God Hezekiah proclaimed a passover. The passover was a memorial of the nation's deliverance through the shedding of the blood of a sacrificial lamb. The lamb typified Christ. The only way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord.

Lesson for April 21.

Isaiah sought to comfort the people by assuring them that the Lord God as the Messiah was coming to reign over the earth, and deliver them from bondage, and shepherd them. The only possible deliverance from the world is the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of His kingdom.

Lesson for April 28.

Salvation of God's people was to be accomplished through the suffering of their Messiah. At Christ's first coming He suffered the penalty of our sin. His suffering resulted in a spiritual progeny. Life out of death is the law governing the universe—natural and spiritual.

Lesson for May 5.

While the temple was in process of renovation, the law of God was found and read to the king. This brought great disturbance to his mind as he realized the enormity of the nation's sins. God's Word has power to convict of sin and effect a revival.

Lesson for May 12.

God called Jeremiah before he was born, overcame his timidity, and sent him to warn his people of coming judgment. Though violently opposed and persecuted, God delivered him.

Lesson for May 19.

Jeremiah called the people to obedience to God's Word. The only way to avert God's judgment is to return unto Him and render obedience.

Lesson for May 26.

God will restore Israel to Palestine, Israel will return and possess the land. Jesus Christ will then come and enter into a new covenant, writing the law of God in their hearts.

Lesson for June 2.

Because Jeremiah faithfully declared God's law, he was hated and cast into a dungeon. Those who faithfully declare God's law shall suffer.

Lesson for June 9.

The Rechabites got at their loyalty to their father determined from the men of Whom Jeremiah gave them a public test as an example to Judah. Obedience to earthly fathers brings blessings, but obedience to God brings greater blessings.

Lesson for June 16.

Judah went into captivity according to God's Word, which cannot fail.

Lesson for June 23.

Psalm 103 is entirely devoted to praise to God. Those who have experienced the life of God in the soul will bless Him with all their being.

God Knows All

I will govern my life and thoughts as if the whole world were to see the one and to read the other, for what does it signify to make anything a secret to my neighbor, when to God, who is the searcher of our hearts, all our privacies are open?—Seneca.

Religion Is Necessary

Education without religion is worth very little, just as cleverness without character is very barren.—Abb. Leslie Owen.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LIKE TO TEASE

WE LIKE to tease because we enjoy the embarrassment of the person who is teased. Teasing is an effort on our part to create a comic situation at the expense of the other fellow.

Teasing is a mild form of bullying. It gives a sense of elation, of strength and mastery. Just as the bully picks on someone much smaller than himself, so the tease is careful to select children and inferiors for his victims. He does not dare to take such liberties with a superior, his boss for example. We do not mind being teased by a superior partly because we cannot help ourselves and partly because we regard it as a mark of distinction. We feel complimented if it is in good humor. But we absolutely resent teasing from an inferior. It is no compliment and we have effective means of defending ourselves.

As a rule it is much more gratifying to do the teasing rather than be the victim of it. We especially dislike having the tables turned on us as in the following illustration: Some years ago when hangings were public an Englishman and an Irishman who were riding together happened to pass the place of execution and saw a man hanging on the gallows. The Englishman, eager to poke fun at the Irishman, remarked: "Where would you be Pat, if every man had his just deserts?" "Begorra," said Pat upholding his international reputation at repartee, "an' I'd be ridin' in this carriage all by myself."

There is still another element in the desire to tease. When indulged in by equals and intimate friends it becomes a game, a friendly rivalry, a battle of wits. It is gratifying to get the better of another person in handball, boxing, wrestling or any athletic contest. It is also great sport to down a friendly rival in clever witticism. We tease to show up the other fellow and to show off our own nimbleness of mind.

PLAYGROUND OPENS IN BEXLEY MONDAY

Eighty-three Register First Day. Other Playgrounds in Full Swing

The Cassingham School Playground opened Monday under the supervision of Miss Claire Schooler. Attendance for the first day was 83.

The playground is open from 9-12 a. m. and from 1:30-4 p. m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, and open mornings on Wednesday and Saturday. Games, contests, and other types of amusement and recreation are open for children. Tennis courts are open for the older ones.

Cassingham school is an ideal place for a playground, plenty of shade, good drainage, and an abundance of playground equipment.

The east end playgrounds, one at Kent and Gault, the other at 19th and Rich, are in full swing. One hundred and fifty are registered daily at both places.

Crepe, cutout, and sewing classes have been organized at the Kent-Gault grounds.

The two playgrounds are equipped with swings, slides, volley ball courts, tennis courts, baseball diamonds, and wading pools. The pools are drained every night and filled with fresh water every morning.

A regular schedule of competition between the two grounds will soon be adopted.

DR. GUYNN PLANS SERIES OF TESTS

Measurements to Determine Spiritual Aptitude and Mental Rating

Dr. Guynn, Principal of the Guynn School of Concentration, 37 N. Monroe avenue, is planning a series of tests and measurements to be used by normal schools and colleges in determining not only the mental rating of pupils but the spiritual aptitude as well.

Several of the educational features to be used by Dr. Guynn in the Guynn School of Concentration during the next year are already under copyright and will not be revealed to the public until they appear in book form.

It is not generally known that the ruler of China has noted in missionaries sent out under Dr. Guynn's teaching, definite favorable mental and spiritual qualities, and has urged Dr. Guynn to train Chinese students for Christian manhood and leadership.

Several presidencies of theological schools have been offered Dr. Guynn all of which he has refused in order to continue his experimentation with younger students so that he may give the results of his efforts to the public in book form.

Dr. Guynn is now engaged as vocational adviser, psychoanalist, lecturer, minister and writer.

POLES ON CASSADY AVENUE MOVED BACK TO LOT LINE

MANY RESIDENTS ATTEND COUNCIL MEET IN BODY

Yaekle and Dierdorf Protest Against Gas Pressure Station

The committee appointed by Bexley Council to investigate whether the trees on North Cassady avenue from Broad street to Maryland would be injured if the poles were moved back to the lot line, directed Village Engineer Kennedy to write to the Columbus Railway Power and Light Company that the first five poles, already placed, could stand but that the other wiring should be down underground or on poles erected on the lot line of the Forest Addition.

The matter has been hanging fire for weeks. It was brought to a head Tuesday night when property owners on North Cassady avenue attended the Council meeting in a body to enter formal protest against the placing of poles along the curb line.

Earl G. Fisher, 128 North Cassady spokesman of the residents declared that the "poles were an eyesore and tended to make an alley out of Cassady avenue," and that they should either be placed in the alley east of Cassady, run underground or should be placed near the lot line of the Forest Addition on the west side of the avenue instead of near the curb line.

A resolution stating that the poles be moved back from the curb line to the lot line, if it could be done without injury to trees, was passed by council.

A committee consisting of O. C. Manly, and D. W. Kerr, members of council, H. B. Kennedy, Village Engineer, W. S. Speed, tree expert and E. J. Fisher, was appointed to decide the matter Wednesday at 5 p. m.

G. C. Yaekle, 492 South Drexel avenue, entered a protest against the construction of a gas pressure regulating station near his home by the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company. He was supported by William Dierdorf, 2403 Bryden road. Both contend that this is a violation of the zoning ordinance and such a station would deflate property value in that neighborhood. The gas company was represented by J. F. Strickler.

The matter was referred to Harley Peters, solicitor, for further investigation.

A resolution was passed stating that council was ready to cooperate with the county commissioners on any feasible plan for the elimination of the Pennsylvania and B. O. grade crossing on North Cassady avenue.

Council authorized an issue of notes in anticipation of the levy or special assessments for the construction and installation of a lighting system for Columbia avenue, Maryland to Ruhl avenues, and Mound street, College to Euclaire avenues.

The engineer's estimate that a traffic light at Broad street and Cassady avenue would cost $426.00 was referred back to the engineer for further investigation. He was also requested to determine the feasibility of installing an automatic traffic signal at that intersection.

Police were instructed to arrest any persons dumping refuse in the dump at Livingston and Alum Creek. Several arrests have been made but the practice still continues, it was reported.

Proposal to install a police signaling system to consist of several callboxes and other necessary equipment was referred to the police committee.

Council authorized the purchase of 150 feet of fire hose not to exceed $300.00 for the new fire truck recently purchased by the village.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

NEVER TOO LATE

A PROMINENT churchman died in New York a short time ago at the age of sixty-five.

He had risen to bishopric from the position of an obscure rector in fifteen years.

Up to the time he was fifty he had never preached a sermon.

A lot of men think they are past the possibility of progress when they have hit the half-century mark.

We condemn ourselves to old age when we have just begun to know enough to live.

A man of fifty who has lived properly and spent his time usefully and well is just about ready to do something worth while.

Instead of that, however, the most of us celebrate our fiftieth birthday by soliloquizing on the idea that we are over the peak of life's hill, that we have started on the down grade and that from then on the descent will be increasingly rapid.

There is no need of growing old at fifty, of relinquishing interest, of ceiling ambition and retiring from effort.

Thousands of men have done the best and greatest work of their lives after the half-century mark was well behind them.

Michael Angelo, the greatest artist, the noblest sculptor, the most inspired architect that ever lived, painted "The Last Judgment," the greatest picture in the world, after he was sixty and designed St. Peter's the masterpiece of all the earth's architecture, after he was seventy.

Over the device of an old man sitting beside an hour glass, he wrote the inspiring inscription: Ancora imparo ("I am still learning").

Goethe, who finished one of the masterpieces of literature after he was seventy, had as the motto of his last full years, "A man's activity should increase with age." He did not believe in rusting out. He believed in wearing out while doing the best work of his whole career.

Sometime mankind will come to realize that growing old is a useless and needless occupation. That the easy chair in the chimney corner might much better give place to the work table and the continuance of productiveness.

The time will come when men will not grow old at all. When we shall live to a real old age of perhaps a hundred without thinking that we are past our period of usefulness. The best built machine in the world is the human body and if given half a chance it would last far past the three-score and ten that the Psalmist fixed for its survival.

Work seldom kills a man or wears him out.

Thinking, if you except the kind of thinking we call worrying, never made a man old. It is the excesses of life, the intemperances of living that turn us into old men and women and unfit us for further existence.

Live right and you will live long.

Don't grow old before your time. Fifty is no time to begin to feel aged. At seventy-five, perhaps, a man might begin to ease off a little. Man ought not to be less efficient in wearing qualities than his brothers, the animals, and there are plenty of them that live past the century mark without perceptible decrease of activity.

The man that stops at fifty is just a quitter and you don't want to be in that class.

Take a leaf from the book of the bishop and say, "It's never too late to begin."

Poor Donkey!

"Yes sir," said Mr. Gallagher, "it was funny enough to make a donkey laugh. I laughed till I cried."

Fear of Them Do

"He was driven to his grave."

"Sure he sank. Did you expect him to walk?"

By Way of Variety

"What's the matter with the French cabinet now?"

"It refuses to resign."

Nothing New at All

"Don't cry, little boy. You'll get your reward in the end." "I'spose so. That's where I allus do git it."

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

IS A CENTURY OF LIFE POSSIBLE?

A GROUP of three scientists—Steinbach, Voronoff and Tushnoff—have carried on intensely interesting experiments in the prolongation of life. The argument, especially of the first two in the group, is that by a process of gland operations, life can not only be rejuvenated but also extended to at least a century.

An even more interesting series of experiments has been conducted by the last named in the group of three, Professor Tushnoff, who is a Russian, and whose work very largely has been done in connection with the medical schools of that country. At first the Russian medical world was disposed to regard Professor Tushnoff's experiments with grave doubt, but of late his work has been received with more seriousness. According to Professor Tushnoff, longevity is explained by the absence of poisonous matter in the system and not by the natural wear and tear of bodily organs. If this poisonous matter could be eliminated and a barrier set up preventing its return into the human system, the span of life could easily be fixed from a century to one hundred and fifty years.

The elimination of this poisonous matter is accomplished by chemical processes. These chemicals are produced from the texture of organs which have already deteriorated due to action of poisonous matter. The experiment seems not altogether unlike the action of antitoxin in cases of diphtheria. A proper dose creates new life to the organisms whereas an overdose causes atrophy. Experiments upon human beings do not seem to have been frequent enough to warrant any decided and definite information; but the results of experiments upon animals has created much interest and comment. A recent report of some of these experiments reads as follows:

"Experimenting on goats, Tushnoff increased their milk yield 60 per cent. One hundred and eighty chickens shortly after receiving injections gained more than half their normal weight and hens which had stopped laying eggs began to lay again."

One hundred and fifty years is a long time to live. Even though it were possible could it be destroyed?

Is an ACCREDITED PREPARATORY SCHOOL APPROVED by the STATE DEPARTMENT of Education and by the NORTH CENTRAL ASSOCIATION as a FIRST-CLASS HIGH SCHOOL. The school enjoys the privilege of certification with many of the best Eastern Colleges.

The purpose of this school is to develop the PERSONALITY of each pupil through an INDIVIDUAL COURSE OF INTENSIVE INSTRUCTION. Each pupil forms a class UNTO HIMSELF. Only those courses are given which develop CHARACTER, CULTURE, and POWER. The school is limited to a small number so that each pupil receives INDIVIDUAL ATTENTION.

Through psychological study, the individuality of each child is ascertained and courses suited to his or her individual need are given.

Are Customers Afraid to Shop in Your Store ?

IT WOULD probably be a shock to most merchants to be told that there were people who were afraid to go into their store. And yet it's a fact. Good honest cash customers, too.

There are lots of people who are natural shoppers, people who enjoy going up and down the aisles pawing things over; but there are lots more who won't go into a store unless they have to buy something and then they get the ordeal over with as quickly as possible. They are afraid of the salespeople; afraid of being talked into buying something they do not want; afraid of selecting the wrong thing; afraid of not being able to find the thing they want; afraid of finding it costs more than they want to pay, and afraid of being unable to refuse or buy it on their terms.

Don't laugh at these fears. They are very real, and constitute a factor of sales resistance which no retail merchant can afford to overlook.

This is where advertising comes in. In the safety of his own home, free from the hurry and confusion of the store, free from the urging of over-zealous salespeople, the customer studies the advertisement, compares the various articles, weighs desire of possession against price, and reaches a decision that is not likely to be changed or regretted.— After FRANK T. DENMAN, in Linotype News.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for July 14

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Every one of us shall give an account of himself to God.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Warning.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Warning.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Does God Take Note of My Life?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Individual Accountability to God.

I. Ezekiel's Responsibility (vv. 1-9).

The commission of the prophet is now renewed. Hitherto his utterances were mainly of a threatening character, having as their objective the turning of the people from their wicked ways. They refused to heed the prophet's words, the result of which was the failing of God's judgment upon them in their complete captivity and the destruction of Jerusalem. When it became clear that the people would not heed God's warnings through the prophet, the prophet was to be silent—dumb. This tragic situation was portrayed through the death of Ezekiel's wife. Awful as this blow was, he was to desist from weeping, showing that even natural sorrow was not to be expressed at the time of God's awful judgment.

After the renewal of the prophet's commission, his messages were mainly consolatory. His responsibility is set forth under the figure of a watchman. God gave him this position. Every minister and Sunday School teacher is a watchman. Indeed, upon every believer has been imposed certain responsibilities. Two things are required of a watchman.

1. To hear the word at God's mouth (v. 7).

The source of the message of every minister and Sunday school teacher is God's Holy Word. As the prophet did not originate his message but received it at God's mouth, so should it be with every minister.

2. To sound the warning (v. 7).

After hearing God's message he was to proclaim it to the people. The watchman's duty is both to hear and to speak. The people are to be warned of the impending danger. Failure to sound the alarm makes the watchman guilty of the blood of the sinner (v. 8). After the warning the sinner carries his own guilt (v. 9).

II. God's Attitude Toward the Sinner (vv. 10, 11).

God had declared in His word that unfaithfulness on the part of His people would cause them to "perish among the heathen," to "pine away in their iniquity" (Lev. 26:38, 39).

In view of this pronouncement, some were disposed to say that their case was hopeless. To meet this attitude of despair, the prophet assured them that God had no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that his sincere desire was for the wicked to turn from his way and live. Regardless of what their past had been He assured them that the future was bright, but God's command and plea is, "Turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die, O house of Israel?"

III. The Sinner's Personal Responsibility (vv. 12-20).

God has created the members of the race as volitional beings, possessing freedom of choice. They have moral discernment, enabling them to distinguish between right and wrong. The following principles govern the sinner and the watchman:

1. Past righteousness will not avail for present sins (v. 12).

When a righteous man turns to do iniquity, his past seeming righteousness will be of no avail.

2. Past sins do not make impossible present acceptance with God (vv. 12-14).

By virtue of the law of habit, every sinful act makes it harder for the sinner to repent, but God's mercy and enabling grace are such that if the sinner repents, God will restore.

3. Restitution required (vv. 15, 16).

The proof of penitence is that so far as possible the sinner make amends for wrongs done. There is no merit in the act of restitution, but such act helps the individual to overcome his besetting sin.

4. God's ways are equal (vv. 17, 20).

God holds man responsible for his own deeds. The child is not condemned because of the deeds of its father. This does not do away with the law of heredity. Regardless of what one's past life has been, God's grace in Jesus Christ blots out his record and he stands accepted in the Beloved.

On the Job

While Moses was caring for the sheep God's great commission came to him. If God has any great thing for us to do, we need not fear that He will miss us because we are busy with our common tasks.

Some men are so busy beginning things that they have no time to finish anything.

A spinster always turns up her nose. Social position is relative. It depends on living in a town where people are less important than yourself.

Mother's Cook Book

My fairest child, I have no song to give you:
No lark could pipe to skies so dull and gray:
Yet ere we part, one lesson I can leave you
For every day:
Be good my dear, and let who will be clever:
Do noble things, not dream them, all day long:
And so make life, death, and the vast forever
One grand, sweet song.
—Charles Kingsley.

DESSERTS FOR HOT DAYS

FRUIT and fruit juices seem synonymous with coolness in warm weather.

When fruits are combined with frozen or semifrozen desserts, the results are most satisfying. Choose some from the following:

Lemon and Pineapple Sherbet.

Take two cupfuls of sugar and four cupfuls of water, bring to the boiling point with several pieces of thin lemon and orange rind, boil ten minutes. Cool, add three lemons, one orange, one-half cupful of crushed pineapple, after squeezing and straining the juice. Freeze until like frappe, then add an egg white beaten stiffly, finish freezing.

Watermelon Sherbet.

Dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water, four cupfuls of hot water, two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of orange juice. Strain, chill, freeze to a mush and add two cupfuls of watermelon balls and serve, after standing one hour.

Velvet Sherbet.

This is an old favorite and always a treasured recipe when once tried. Take the juice of three lemons and two cupfuls of sugar, add one quart of rich milk, a pinch of salt and freeze. This is delicious served as a sherbet with the main dish or as a dessert.

Banana Fluff.

Put ripe bananas through a ricer, adding a little sugar, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of lemon juice to a cupful of the banana puree. Stir into a half-cupful of whipped cream, serve in tall sherbet glasses and garnish with a maraschino cherry.

Parents Warned by Dr. Guynn Against Penalizing Children

Mass Education, Based on Averages, Seldomly Fits Anyone Accurately, Educator Declares.

"Do not penalize your child by giving him an education designed for the masses," is the warning issued to parents by Dr. Edgar Hart Guynn superintendent of the Guynn School of Concentration, 37 North Monroe. "Mass education is based on averages which seldom fit anyone accurately. If your child is ever so slightly more alert, more willing, or better endowed than the average, he is entitled to a system of education which recognises these facts."

Dr. Guynn has spent 25 years in working with children of many types. In New York City he was particularly successful with musical prodigies, infant actors, and temperamental artists.

The School of Concentration has three purposes, Dr. Guynn declares, to prepare the child thoroughly and quickly for the college of his choice; to develope through voluntary concentration of mental supremacy at all times; to develop, through intensive study the desirable traits in each individual personality.

The faculty of the school is carefully chosen and thoroughly trained in the methods of the headmaster.

Dr. Guynn points out that the School of Concentration accepts only such pupils as can profit to a maximum degree from its training. Each boy constitutes his entire class; his training is adapted to his particular needs; his own desirable, natural characteristics are used to best advantage. He becomes a distinct individual rather than one of a type.

"The boy's school work can be made interesting to him and at the same time provide for him exactly the training he needs. These are the habit forming years. In addition to acquiring knowledge, he should then be forming correct habits of study, habits of proper physical bearing and poise, and habits of voluntary concentration as well — in short — acquiring correct habits, mental, physical, and moral."

A great many tests are given the child to ascertain his mentality before any work is attempted. All work is then brought to his level and, his interest being aroused, he literally works out his own salvation from the vast array of material which it has taken the instructor twenty years to gather. Absolute accuracy is required and the child is not permitted to write out a word until he can give from memory the entire topic correctly.

The Guynn School of Concentration is designed to fit students for any of the recognized colleges in the United States. Its curriculum was formulated after studying the admission requirements of several hundred leading schools.

"The resulting course was stripped of all non-essentials. Nothing needed is omitted. Nothing unnecessary is there," Dr. Guynn avers.

Before any student was asked to attempt the course, 200 colleges were asked if they would accept students who successfully completed this work. They said they would.

The success of the Guynn method has been recognized by the Department of Education of Ohio, the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and colleges. As a result students from this school are received without examination in practically all the recognized colleges and universities in the United States. This year students of the Guynn school have won hohors at Princeton and Cornell and many other leading colleges have granted honors to pupils who received training under Dr. Guynn.

Quoting: "There is waste in the teacher's work-shop, and that waste in the lives of men." Dr. Guynn says he has found that by using the proper psychological methods and adhering rigidly to the principles of individual instruction, it is possible to save from 25 to 50% of the time usually required to prepare for entrance into college.

Lesson for July 21

EZEKIEL'S VISION OF HOPE

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 47:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Will the Right Finally Win?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Cure for the World's Ills.

Ezekiel's final vision, chapters 40 to 48, exhibits a comprehensive view of the restored order when the Messiah shall hold sway over the whole earth. Our lesson for today is but a small part of this vision. It can be understood only in the light of the whole. The following outstanding facts should be noted:

1. The restored temple (chs. 40-42).
2. The return of Jehovah. (ch. 43).

In chapter 11 the Lord is seen taking His departure. In chapter 43 He is seen returning.

3. The arrangement of the services of the temple (chs. 44-46).
4. The river flowing from the temple (47:1-12).
5. The land apportioned among the people (47:13-48:29).
6. The holy city (48:30-35).

In the attempted interpretation of this vision, some five different views are held. The one preferred by the present writer is that it is a prediction of the temple which shall be erected in Messianic times. The literal view prevents wild speculation and at the same time permits the fullest figurative application. In fact, the Holy Spirit gives the interpretation of the waters flowing from the smitten rock (I Cor. 10:4) in such a way as to leave no doubt as to its meaning. The river flowing forth from the sanctuary typifies the river of life, the salvation of Christ flowing forth to the world. Observe:

I. The River's Source (vv. 1, 2).

It flows forth from the house—the restored temple where God has come to dwell. It flows from the divine presence. This flowing of the waters is miraculous. So is the eternal life which proceeds from Calvary's cross. Because Christ is divine, His shed blood has power to give life. It is to be noted that the stream came by way of the altar (v. 1), showing that eternal life for the world proceeds from God by way of the cross. Perhaps the deepest mystery of life is how life can spring out of death. Despite its mystery, the student of the Holy Scriptures and of physical science knows that life out of death is the philosophy of the universe. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone."

II. The Deepening River (vv. 3-5).

The deepening and enlarging is without any tributaries. For the first quarter mile the depth was to the ankles. By the time it had reached one-half mile it was to the knees. Till the distance of three-fourths mile was reached it was to the waist, and at the end of the first mile it was too deep to ford—"waters to swim in." The spiritual truth to be derived from this figure is that the life and salvation which have flowed forth from Calvary made vital by the Holy Spirit, have widened and deepened through the centuries and dispensations. This is especially true of the individual who yields himself to the Holy Spirit.

III. The Healing Effect of the Waters (vv. 6-21).

There is life in the progress of this river. "Everything shall live whither the river cometh" (v. 9). It flows from the altar toward the east country down into the desert and into the Dead sea. "The region of the Dead sea which has been the embodiment of barrenness and desolation, in the coming day is to be changed into a scene of life and fruitfulness."—Gray.

1. Trees on the banks of the river (vv. 7, 8).

Just as vegetation flourishes near the river, so wherever Christ's salvation is witnessed to in the energy of the Holy Ghost, life comes. This has been true throughout the centuries of church history. The details of fruitfulness are enumerated in verse 12.

2. Everything in the waters shall live (v. 9). Wherever the stream flows, there shall be life.
3. The waters of the Dead sea shall be healed (v. 10). Fishers shall gather from the Dead sea even as from the Mediterranean. The gospel brings life to those in trespasses and sin. The world is dead and therefore in need of the life-giving stream from Calvary.

Christianity

The distinction between Christianity and all other systems of religion consists largely in this, that in these others men are found seeking after God, while Christianity is God seeking after men.—T. Arnold.

When Tempted

In time of temptation be not busy to dispute, but rely upon the conclusion and throw yourself upon God, and contend not with Him, but in prayer.—Taylor.

You can recognize the typical American anywhere. He is asking somebody for a match.

The ladies of the congregation will serve the jitney supper and lawn fete. Features of the carnival will be a fish pond, mystery cake and prize, movie, and dog-em. Mrs. R. L. Barthman, 853 Euclaire avenue, is chairman of the committee in charge of the carnival.

RECREATION BALL

Mechanical, 9; Power No. 1, 1.

Line Department scored the winning run in the tenth inning on a pass to Smith, Hammon's sacrifice and Riddle's two-base hit. Another marker was tallied later in the frame but it was not needed. Crego, on the hillock for Line, pitched good ball although he weakened somewhat in the third stanza when Pleway scored its two runs. Pitcher Grum of Pleway did not allow a Line Department man to cross the plate until the seventh inning.

Other features of the game included the fielding and hitting of H. Smith for Line, and the fielding of Dildine for Pleway.

The hitting of White and the pitching of Steele for Meter and the twirling of Ryan and Stegmiller, swatting for Power No. 2 were outstanding bits in the Meter-Power No. 2 conflict.

Martin and Harlor starred for Mechanical while Weishaupt played best for Power No. 1.

THE OLD BUM

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I REMEMBER that old bum,
Every day he used to come,
Shiftless, shaveless, collar gone,
Take his coin and shuffle on,
And the coin he always got,
Something, if deserved or not,
When a mendicant he came,
For I knew not whom the blame.

Had a woman made him this?
Had the lips that used to kiss
Learned to scorn him? Had a son
Or a daughter been the one?
Had, perhaps, some trusted friend
Proved a traitor in the end?
Had some fortune that he knew
Faded like the morning dew?

Or had he, a pawn of sin,
Played the game no man can win
Looked too long upon the glass,
Or upon some painted lass?
Was it he who broke the trust,
And had lost, as traitors must?
Now, in beggary, in shame,
Had he but himself to blame?

Well, the old bum comes no more
Cringing at my office door,
But when tempters beckon me
Down the road of revelry,
When extravagance or pride
Beckon me to turn aside,
When the day's temptations come,
I remember that old bum.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

THOSE hopeful persons who continue to expect good fortune, better conduct the gold and purple in society, and possibly exalted leadership in their particular spheres of endeavor, will discover sooner or later that it is quite necessary always to pay strict attention to the passing hours.

There is nothing so elusive as time, though it awaits our bidding constantly. It respects neither prince nor pauper as it proceeds steadfastly on its way to be abused, pushed rudely aside and wantonly rejected.

All of our great aspirations are borne to us on the silent wings of golden hours and unless we give immediate attention to the inspirations which are placed at our disposal we are likely to find that we have missed a precious opportunity. It is a failing of ours to live in a delicious vagueness of what we shall do at a later day to astonish our friends, when we finally settle down to carve our wonderful monument.

We have not yet confided our secret resolution to our most intimate friends, who in their solicitous admonitions have frequently hurt our sensitive souls by reminding us that the 24 hours of yesterday were thrown away, as were the importuning hours of the dead and buried yesterdays of the long ago.

It would not do to discuss this matter. It is not an agreeable subject, for the reason that it would bring to us an unpleasant realization of our faults. We have promised that our sins of yesterday should be our last, but here we are today among the old transgressors unable to reform.

When we were twenty we started bravely; at twenty-five we began to let an hour or two slip away; at thirty, to be quite frank, the habit of squandering time had taken so strong a hold of us that we yielded to it without a murmur, still dreaming of the great things we should do when the spirit moved us.

At forty we became so monstrously overwhelmed that we cried "too late!" and slipped quietly back in the rear ranks. Those of our friends who had with wisdom apportioned their 24 hours to duteous work, proper rest and recreation are now among the leaders where they rightfully belong and where they forced themselves by sheer industry from the beginning of their triumphant career.

SUMMER FOODS

AS CURVES are again stylish, use a little more good olive oil and cream, as well as butter. They are all wholesome, necessary for well-being and will help frazzled nerves to get back to normal.

Onion Pepper Salad.

Peel one orange, cut into slices and arrange on lettuce. Chop one tablespoonful each of onion and green pepper and mix thoroughly with fresh dressing. Sprinkle over the orange. This makes one large serving, or two small ones. Three times the amount will make a nice service for five.

Orange and Date Salad.

Separate one cupful of dates and cover with boiling water, cook three minutes, dry in the oven, cool, remove the pits and cut into sections, lengthwise. Halve the oranges and remove the sections of pulp. Arrange the lettuce on salad plates, pile orange sections in the center and surround with dates. Serve with french dressing.

Pecan Waffles.

Sift two and one-fourth cupfuls of pastry flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, two egg yolks well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix the egg and milk with the sugar and add to the flour, add the beaten whites and melted butter with three-fourths of a cupful of nut meats. Put a tablespoonful of butter in each section of the waffle iron which has been well greased after heating. Cover with the top and bake on one side, then turn. Serve hot with cold maple sirup. This amount makes six waffles.

Cheese Biscuit.

Sift one cupful of pastry flour with two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt; add one tablespoonful of butter, and when well mixed add three-eighths of a cupful of milk. One-half cupful of cheese may be cut in with the butter, the cheese grated. Roll out one-third inch thick and cut with a small biscuit cutter. Bake 12 minutes.

BROWNED CHEESE SANDWICH

Grated cheese mixed with a little cream to make a paste seasoned with paprika and salt, spread the mixture between slices of buttered bread, and brown in a little bit of butter or a hot frying pan, or it may be toasted in a hot oven. Serve with a succulent salad; this makes a nice combination. When the sandwiches are toasted the cheese will be melted. Serve at once with pickles or a salad and coffee.

CUCUMBER BOAT SALAD

Peel short, thick cucumbers. Remove a small portion of the seeds. Cut cucumbers into slices, crosswise not cutting quite through. Fill the cucumbers with a little shredded cabbage that has been chilled in ice water, and add a few sliced blanched almonds. Serve with French dressing and a few sprigs of watercress.

TOMATO JELLY SALAD

1 pt. tomato juice, strained and heated to boiling point. 2 heaping teaspoonfuls of gelatine soaked in ¼ C. cold water 15 minutes, add to gelatine 2 teaspoonfuls sugar ¾ teaspoonfuls of salt. Pour hot juice over this and stir until all is dissolved. Pour into molds and allow to set. When cold, before it sets, add ½ cup celery, ½ c. cabbage, 1 pepper, small amount of chopped carrot to add coloring, and ½ teaspoonful of minced onion. Serve on very crisp lettuce with cooked dressing.

PUNCH FOR 100

3 doz. lemons, 2½ doz. oranges, 3 small cans crushed pineapple, 3 small bottles cherries, sugar, water and ice to fill 5 gal. jar. (About 5 lbs. sugar.)

FROZEN PINEAPPLE CUSTARD

Beat the yolks of 2 eggs with 2/3 c. sugar, and stir into 1 pt. milk. Heat to near boiling point, stirring continually. When cold add 1 c. cream and 2 beaten whites. Place in the freezer and turn until nearly solid then stir in 1 can grated pineapple which has stood for an hour with ½ c. sugar.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

RACE PREJUDICE

A social worker in one of the industrial institutes in a large Eastern city recently reported two instances of race prejudice which came under his personal supervision. The first case was that of a boy eighteen years of age who had secured a position under an assumed American name of Henry Armstrong. The social worker telephoned for Mr. Swinski, but was informed that no such person was employed there. He discovered later that Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Swinski were the same person. When asked for an explanation the boy remarked that had he applied for a position under the name of Swinski, he would have been given a menial job, but as Henry Armstrong, he was offered a position that gave promise of advancement. The other case was that of a boy of foreign parentage who spent his leisure time in boxing. He registered for a contest under the name of Bert Powers, while his real name was Boloski. His explanation for the act was as follows: "Had I registered for the contest under the name of Boloski, when my name was called, the crowd would have yelled, 'Kill the wop,' but when Powers was announced the same crowd yelled, 'Atta boy!'"

Leonard A. Barrett.

Incidents like these occur frequently in the business and social world. The enthusiasm and pluck of many a boy is smothered for the reason that before he can even get a chance to demonstrate his ability he must first overcome a deep race prejudice. If he is a foreigner, that is has a foreign name though of American parentage, particularly Italian and Polish, he is at once assigned to servile work, while the other fellow, even though he may have less ability, is given the position of trust and opportunity. In the social world wealth may in some instances overcome the barriers set up by race prejudice, but without this asset the world of social and cultural values is practically closed to the Swinskis and Boloskis. In spite of the fact when we desire to enjoy fine music, we must go to hear the product of Italian schools and for art and many cultural realities we are dependent upon talent other than that which our own country produces.

Theoretically we claim that all men are born equal and have an equal right to the opportunities and advantages this country affords; but, does it work out in practice? The elimination of race prejudice does not argue for the equality of advancement regardless of ability, but it does plead for an equality of opportunity for all who claim the privileges of American citizenship.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY SOME PEOPLE TALK IN THEIR SLEEP

SOME people talk in their sleep because more of their brain is active than is usually the case. When a person retires not all of his brain goes to sleep at the same time, nor does it all awake at the same time. Although the brain acts as a unit because of the innumerable neural connections yet there are distinct portions that control various activities. These have been definitely located through experiments. The thinking process is the only important brain activity that has no special location. It is believed that the whole brain is involved in thinking.

When a person falls asleep his muscles become relaxed, the sensory portions are among the first to cease activity. This cuts him off from the outside world sufficiently to give him a chance to rest. The other portions of his brain may, however, be fairly active although they, too, are likely to fall asleep or become very quiet. In the case of an ordinary dream a few of the thought centers alone are active. Sometimes enough of these centers are acting together to form a connected story, resembling a reverie in the waking state. Frequently the thought activity of the brain is sufficiently strong to awaken the sleeper.

You might compare the brain to a large family, not all of whom ever go to bed at the same time or get up at the same hour. If late at night all the members of the household are asleep except one who is up playing solitaire you might liken the situation or that home to a person who is dreaming. Again, if two or more members are awake and playing a game of bridge, you might liken the situation to a person who talks in his sleep.

Some people talk in their sleep because the thought centers happen to get in touch with the speech centers. But enough of the brain is out of commission to permit sleep.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

A "KNIGHT OF THE ROAD"

IT MAY exhilerate the tramp who rides surreptitiously in the baggage car and solicits pie at the kitchen doors to realise that in the name "Knight of the Road" with which we have humorously dubbed him, he is descended from the aristocracy of old.

In the same spirit in which we today call the vagrant a "Knight of the Road" the term was applied in the old stagecoach days to the bold highwayman who took toll from travelers whom he regarded as his legitimate prey. Because of occasional acts of kindness to his victims, or chivalrous action to women among them, these characters took hold on popular imagination and romantic stories were woven around them like the famous old English legends of the delightful outlaw, Robin Hood.

The original "Knight of the Road" however, takes us back still further to no sham gentry, but to the true and literal knighthood of Europe during and subsequent to the Crusades. Our modern phrase had its beginning with their "Knight Errant," "errant" meaning to wander, being derived from the old French errer, "to travel." He was the wandering knight who after the objective of the Crusades had been removed, traveled through France and Spain in search of adventure, of a mission, of work for his lance.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

ONIONS

THE superstition of "folk-medicine" all over the United States assigns medical virtues to onions which, therapeutically, they do not possess. The superstitions vary in different sections but all ascribe great power over disease to the onion.

In some parts of New England it is said that if you hang a row of onions over a door the house will be guarded against the entry of any disease which might be brought into it by a visitor. As the visitor crosses the threshold the onions over the door "draw" any infectious or contagious disease which he may have out of him into themselves. Therefore you must on no account eat onions which have been hung over a door.

The onion superstition comes down to us from the Egyptians by way of the Latins. The Italians sometimes carry an onion in their pockets as a protection against the evil eye which, according to an old Neapolitan writer, is very effective because "the devil respects the onion, the ancients having adored it equally with himself." By "the ancients" he evidently means the Egyptians with whom the onion was a sacred plant—a sort of vegetable god, powerful to protect if properly propitiated. The string of onions over the New England doorway would make a citizen of Thebes in the reign of Rameses feel quite at home.

HOLTZMAN SECURES INJUNCTION AGAINST BEXLEY OFFICIALS

Common Pleas Court Grants Writ Restraining Officers

Minard Holtzman has been granted an injunction to prevent the Bexley officials from interfering with dumping material not contrary to village laws, on his lots north of Livingston avenue and east of Alum Creek. Holtzman contends that the lot is below street level and that Bexley officials are forcing away all who attempt to dump dirt and other material not against the village laws.

Bexley officers deny that they prevented Holtzman from dumping anything not prohibited by the village ordinance. They had been instructed at the Council meeting Tuesday evening to arrest anyone dumping anything prohibited by the ordinance.

The trial of Minard Holtzman was to have come before Mayor Ludwig tomorrow.

The ordinance reads: It shall be unlawful for any person, being the owner, lessee, custodian, or person entitled to the possession of any lot, lots, or lands in the Village of Bexley, Ohio, to maintain the same as, or knowingly permit the same to be used as, a place whereon, other persons, or public generally, shall dump, throw, deposit, drop, or leave waste paper, hay, straw, rags, stable manure, garbage, rubbish, decaying matter, vegetable, or animal matter which may thereafter decompose. . . . . This section shall not be construed to prohibit the dumping of earth, stone, or other matter that will not decay or emit noxious odors, or create fire hazards.

The ordinance which was passed as number 770, August 17, 1926, was passed for the "Preservation of peace, health, and safety." It provides for a fine of not less than $5 and not more than $25.

BEXLEY GIRL IN RECENT TREMOR

Writes About Her Experience In Letter to Parents

In a letter written to her parents, Miss Ruth Geist, who is now in Los Angeles, Calif., gave an account of her experience with the earth tremor which visited that section of the country recently.

Miss Ruth Geist is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Geist, 2269 East Mound street. The following is an extract from her letter:

"I was quietly reading when suddenly the divan upon which I was sitting began to rise and sway as though some one were underneath lifting it. I knew this could not be possible and my first thought was, I must have an attack of vertigo. Then the chandelier swung back and forth, the lamp swayed, the chairs rocked — then I realized that it was an earth tremor.

"I picked up my coat and rushed for the stairway. By the time I reached the lower floor it was all over. In the downtown sections the quake was more violent.

"It was all so sudden that it unnerved me — to think that no power on earth could stop that rocking and swaying. While it was terrifying it was an experience that I would not have missed for anything.

"I believe that one of our eastern blinding, crashing thunder storms would cause more terror to California residents than an earthquake shock, even though it were a pretty severe one. For my part I should choose the thunder storm. I have slept through many an one but I am certain that a quake would be conductive to insomnia."

Bexley Considers Using Columbus Sewage Plant

Committee To Try For More Elastic Scale

RATES TENTATIVE

Gas and Fuel Company Offered Use of Village Property

A contract providing for the discharge of Bexley sewage into the sewer system of Columbus was presented to Council Tuesday night. This is the first intimation that Bexley has been negotiating with Columbus on the problem of sewage disposal.

The contract states, in part, that Bexley shall have the right to discharge sanitary sewage only, and not trade waste, surface water, or drainage of any sort. The village shall stand all expenses of sewer construction and plans and specifications shall be satisfactory to the city engineer.

Annual rates under the contract would be: single houses $4, $3.50 for each side of doubles, $3 for each apartment. The annual charges for stores, factories, and business houses shall be $1 for each person employed or engaged in service at such premises.

No party outside the village would be granted the right to discharge sewage into the sewers constructed by Bexley. The city maintains the right to disconnect the sewer if the specified charges are not paid within sixty days.

Warned Year Ago

These rates would remain in effect only until such time as the city could determine the actual cost of handling the sewage, at which time the city reserves the right to change the rates.

Action came following the warning year ago of the Franklin County board of Health which stated that Bexley's disposal plant was entirely inadequate. County authorities gave the village two years to provide a larger system. Columbus was given a similar warning at the same time.

A committee consisting of Village Engineer Harold B. Kennedy, Village Solicitor Harley E. Peters, and Councilman Samuel Betz was appointed to confer with city officials regarding a provision for a more elastic rate.

Council offered J. P. Strickler, superintendent of the Columbus Gas & Fuel Company the use of village property for the erection of a reducing station. M. Yaekle, Drexel avenue, protested the placing of the station on the lot adjoining his on the grounds that it would injure the value of his property.

In event the Gas and Fuel Company cannot utilize the village property, Council has authorized the building inspector to issue a permit to have the building erected on the Drexel avenue lot.

Notes For $28,000

An ordinance authorizing further construction of an intercepting sanitary sewer, 30 feet east of the east line of College avenue and extending to the east side of Alum Creek was passed. To aid this measure a second ordinance providing for the issuance of notes in anticipation of $28,000 bonds was passed.

A protest was filed by the residents of North Cassady avenue to have the garages being constructed on the west side of the street placed thirty feet back from the street lines. The question was referred to councilmen R. J. Wheaton, O. J. Manly, and D. W. Kerr.

Acting upon the complaints of residents on North Cassady in regard to telephone poles on the lot line, Council asked Village Engineer Kennedy to see if the lines could not be put underground.

Council appropriated $1,000 to repair damages in Main street between Remington and Pleasant Ridge over that section where the tracks of the abandoned traction line were removed.

Check Sidewalks

Following complaints of several residents, the village engineer was advised to check the condition of sidewalks in Bexley which had been down less than three years.

Another protest was filed by residents of Astor avenue, between College avenue and Remington road, against the installation of white way lights in that section.

Resolutions to repair Main street east to the east side of Parkview avenue and widen the entrance to Parkview were also passed.

FLEISCHMAN BAKING SCHOOL AT GWINN'S

Housewives Will Be Invited To Attend School

A "Public Day" will be held at the Fleischman traveling baking school temporarily located in front of the Gwinn Milling Company at Main and Rhoades, before the extension service moves on to its next stop on its transcontinental tour. The exact day has not yet been announced.

During the first week of the nine day course, the traveling school has been host to capacity crowds.

The Fleischman Baking School gives a nine day course in baking to local bakers and housewives. Upon completion of the course a diploma is awarded and the Traveling School's cook book is given to the baker.

The course covers the various phases of baking technique, store management, promotion, and advertising.

The traveling school consists of a fleet of three 105 horse power Hahn trucks. One truck carries the electric ovens, mixing machines and other bakery equipment. A display window, show case and office equipment are housed in another truck. The third truck carries the generators and lighting equipment.

One side of each truck can be opened so that an auditorium large enough to seat 150 people can be constructed and so that spectators can see the interior of the baking plant. The whole auditorium is covered with a canvas roof.

William E. Broeg, manager of the Freischman extension service is in charge of the Transcontinental tour of the expedition.

THE PERILS OF MASS PRODUCTION

Leonard A. Barrett

Before a parked car, Johnny, with considerable pride, called his chum's attention to a particular rivet. "See that rivet, my father 'drove that.'" Johnny was right. It was very important that the rivet be made perfectly secure. But the other side of the picture never occurred to Johnny's youthful mind. The driving of that rivet was Johnny's father's only responsibility. Hour after hour, through the whole day's work, for five days in the week, Johnny's father drove that rivet; and he will continue to do so until a mechanical device is invented which can do it as well, if not better than Johnny's father.

Three perils have developed from mass production. Human labor has become so mechanical that in many cases men have become mere machines, with the inevitable danger that monotonous labor may leave both mind and heart with little or no desire to take advantage of the leisure which the five-day week affords. Another peril is supplanting man-labor—machines—thus throwing out of employment many persons who must seek labor in less remunerative fields because their capacity had been limited to the performance of one particular act. An equally serious peril is the possibility of an oversupplied market.

The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission in a recent address, suggested that "government price control may be the penalty of industry's failure to solve the problem of over-production." The man who labors in the shop, as well as the stockholder, must be given a fair return for service rendered, otherwise prosperity is in serious peril. Labor is no longer content with a mere living wage, but demands a reasonable share of the prosperity it helps to produce.

A woman always has a tender feeling for a man who pays her a compliment.

WHEN WE GROW OLD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I USED to think, when we grow old,
We'd weep for joys we could not hold,
But now I know the young possess
The joys of living even less.
Youth sits about from flow'r to flow'r
And sips the honey of the hour;
But age has found a store more vast,
The endless sweetness of the past.

I used to think, when we grew gray,
The joys of life would slip away.
Now I am old, and now I learn
That it is then that joys return.
The memories of youth are few,
When friends are near, and loves are new,
But age, with every step it goes,
Meets some old memory it knows.

I used to think, when we grew bent,
The heart would never know content.
But he who follows every bird
The singing kettle never heard.
Many a palace youth designs,
But God is wise and builds us shrines;
And there we come, when we grow old,
And find the joys we could not hold.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE GREAT REVIEW

EVERY day you are passing before your intimates in review without your suspecting it. Your clothes, your morality and all your petty weaknesses are judged more or less austerely, indexed and carefully put away for future use, should occasion demand it.

And in the same manner, you, too, are complacently reviewing the acts, the spoken words and behavior of those around you, in the home, in the office and in the streets.

As a cat watches a mouse, so do humans watch one another, eager to pounce, scratch and gulp at the first favorable opportunity.

Those who flatter, those who sit with you at the breakfast table are forming judgment and whetting a knife to make sure that its edge will be keen, when it shall be called into use.

You may be strong, but you must not offend; you may be a hero but pray do not let it be known, lest you be called to judgment and stood up before the populace in mockery and reviewed in conformity with the prevailing custom.

To keep honor bright in such an atmosphere, is indeed a most trying effort, requiring the meekness of Moses and the patience of Job.

Kings and peasants, captains and subalterns are passing each hour before the reviewing stand, so why should you quail under the gaze of sharp eyes and in the presence of curling lips, half smiling to hide their eagerness to pass around the latest bit of damaging gossip told in confidence only an hour ago by one of your avowed enemies.

Why be perturbed by these running accompaniments to the hapless songs of life, alas, too frequent in all grades of society, from the highest to the lowest; in the great cities, in the fashionable resorts and in the homely hamlets?

To avoid the grand review, do some self-reviewing on your own account. Under the spell of investigation, pull the scales from your eyes and go to your task like a man or a woman unwilling to admit defeat, but perfectly willing to be honest.

Do this regularly, ask no man's counsel, court the companionship of open-eyed Faith, and in spite of the gossips and the stinging objurgations of your sharp-tongued opponents, you will sail safely into port with flying colors.

Ed. Hamm pitched superbly for Franklin Park M. E. while Powell starred in the field for Nelson Memorial.

The fielding of Clark, and Barr's hitting for Wilson C. of C., and Hedrick's play afield for First U. P. were bright spots in the Wilson-First contest.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE HAZEL

THE hazel in this country has not nearly the reputation it has in Europe for all-round magical properties. But it has not entirely lost its mystic character even if on this side of the Atlantic it is only a shrub and on the other side it grows into a small tree. In this country it is in high repute as material for divining rods and in some sections children play at conjuring with hazel wands. In Germany as in this country, it is thought that no wood is so good for divining rods as hazel and the German peasant cuts a twig of hazel in the spring for use as a lightning protector for the rest of the summer.

The reputation of the hazel comes from the fact that it is one of Thor's plants and is supposed to have sprung from the lightning itself. In many parts of Europe it is supposed to be a great aid to fruitfulness and, also is much used in love divinations.

Just why the hazel is a "lightning plant" is not apparent. It emerges in this condition from the far, dim clouds of Norse mythology and continues as such today. Some authorities think that the ancient Norsemen regarded the hazel as an embodiment of the lightning and as such worshiped it. In some parts of this country there may still lurk other superstitions regarding the hazel allied to those so common in Europe.

THE STORY OF DANIEL

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:1-4, 19, 20; 2:17-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Preparing for a Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Character and Career of Daniel.

I. Daniel in Captivity (1:1-4).

His captivity took place in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign by Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon. While a tender youth, he was torn from home ties and made a captive in a foreign land to be trained for court service.

II. Daniel in Training (1:5-20).

In order to be of the largest service in the kingdom, it was necessary that he be taught to love the king and nation and to be detached from his own people and religion.

1. Daily portion of the king's meat and drink appointed (v. 5).

The object of this was:

(1) To gain the good will of Daniel. Such recognition would encourage him to give himself to the king's service.

(2) To supply the proper food for his physical and intellectual growth.

2. His name changed (v. 7).

He was named Belteshazzar. The object in this change was the obliteration of national and religious connections, and his identification with the Babylonian nation. Daniel means, God is my judge. Belteshazzar means, Bel's Prince.

3. Daniel's purpose of heart (v. 8).

Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat and wine. He requested to be tested for ten days with the food which the law of his God allowed, agreeing to abide by the results.

4. Daniel's reward (vv. 15-20).

(1) Physical health (v. 15). The king's meat and wine would have been palatable, but to have partaken would have violated his conscience.

(2) Mental growth (vv. 17-20). He was found to be ten times wiser than the magicians and astrologers.

(3) Socially (v. 19). He was not only next to the king, but president of the college of wise men and prime minister of the empire, continuing through several dynasties (v. 21).

(4) Spiritual (v. 17).

God revealed to him Nebuchadnezzar's dream and gave visions stretching across the centuries. The secret of Daniel's success was:

a. Conscientiousness.
b. Loyalty to God.
c. Decision of character.
d. Prayerfulness.
e. Patience.
f. Courtesy.

III. Daniel Interpreting Nebuchadnezzar's Dream (2:14-46).

1. The dream revealed (vv. 14-35).

Nebuchadnezzar had a dream which made a tremendous impression on his mind, but its content had been forgotten. He urgently demanded of the wise men that they make known the dream and its interpretation. Because of their failure to do so the king was furious and commanded all the wise men of Babylon to be slain. Daniel sought an interview with the king and obtained time. In answer to prayer, God gave to Daniel the content of the dream. He told the king that in his dream he had beheld a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron, and feet part of iron and part of clay. He beheld this image smitten by a stone which became a great mountain.

2. The dream interpreted (vv. 36-46).

(1) The head of gold represented the Chaldean monarchy, with Nebuchadnezzar as its head (vv. 37, 38).

(2) The breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian power (v. 39).

(3) The belly and thighs of brass represented the Grecian empire under Alexander the Great (v. 39).

(4) The legs of iron represented the Roman empire (vv. 40-43).

(5) The stone cut out of the mountain (vv. 44, 45). This is the Kingdom of Heaven so graphically set forth in the New Testament.

a. The stone is Christ (Isa. 28:16; Matt. 21:42-44).

b. When did the stone strike? Observe that the impact upon this man was upon his feet (v. 34).

c. The Kingdom of Heaven is brought into realization through a great catastrophe.

Accepting Christ

We urge men to accept Christ, to accept Him now, and they say, "Well, we will think about it," or "Yes, I know it ought to be attended to." Why, you wouldn't act that way five minutes about your health or your wife's health, or your business.—Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock.

Trust the Creator

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.—Emerson.

So very many have been doing five days' work and scattering it over six days.

JUST HUMANS

By Gene Carr

PITY THE BLIND!

AD CHATS

By Charles Sughroe

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"HUMOR"

IN THE common use of the word to express a state of mind, as bad or good humor, we find an interesting story of a bygone medical theory, which has been outlived by its terminology.

At the time when the barber was the surgeon, the medical profession had a theory that man, mentally and physically, was controlled by four physical factors, four humors in the body, certain combinations of which gave specific humors or tempers to one's health and disposition. Physicians' bulletins of that time would, perhaps, make interesting reading. They might run something like this:

X^0 Y^0 Z^0 R^0

This is a good illustration of the wealth of history embodied in language, not scientific, etymological language, but the words here and there which belonged to some custom, or theory, or thing.

SAWS

FOR THE GOOSE—

MOST of the pitchin' in the world is done by people that don't understand.

You never start ponderin' on the nothingness of everything while a new love affair is on the up curve.

You can't be a wife and an artist at the same time, although you can be married and have a career.

All the offensive tactics of a man ain't half so demoralizin' for a woman as the confidences of another woman.

FOR THE GANDER—

The woman with a strong personality don't have to be afraid of criticism; but she's gotta be prepared for it.

When you love it makes two people richer but when you hate it only makes one poorer.

As two people get deeper in love, the man gets less afraid of losin' the woman and the woman gets more afraid of losin' the man.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY SOME PEOPLE WALK IN THEIR SLEEP

A PERSON who walks in his sleep is called a somnambulist. Some somnambulists perform rather complicated acts, such as doing the ordinary chores of the day, climbing ladders, walking on the edge of a roof, and even taking a long swim without waking. They usually go back to bed and finish out their night's sleep without recalling a thing when they wake up in the morning.

The sleep walker does many remarkable things without the use of all of his faculties, but it is not true, as many believe, that he never comes to grief. He does. Sometimes he awakens in the midst of some sleep activity and is terribly frightened. It is a great nervous shock. Such a person should never be awakened, but led back gently and quietly. They are also liable to fall or otherwise injure themselves.

Sleep walking is not a healthy condition. It usually indicates at least some minor nervous disorder, if not worse. It frequently occurs in hysteria, epilepsy and the kindred nervous diseases. As a rule it is confined to young people. Sometimes it is the result of indigestion.

The sleep walker acts out his dream. The explanation for talking in one's sleep applies to walking in one's sleep except that instead of linking up the speech centers with his thought centers, the somnambulist connects the motor centers with the thought centers. This occurs less frequently than in the case of sleep talking, for most of us will awake when so much of our brain is active.

Sleep walking is a form of dreaming in which the ideas that shoot through the mind in dreams get hooked up with their corresponding motor neurons. In the ordinary dream the motor centers are disconnected from the thought centers during the sleeping period.

There is one thing about dying—you never have to do it again.

JOHN GILBERT drew the largest crowd in the history of Port Columbus.

Yet only two papers had carried brief notices on the very day he was scheduled to arrive on the T.A.T. plane from the west.

They wanted to see John Gilbert — they had read of his arrival — so thousands drove eight miles to see him.

All of which goes to prove that if you tell people where they can get what they want, they will get it.

If you want to tell 5000 families on the East Side and Bexley where they can get what they want, tell them in THE EASTERN TIMES.

EAST SIDERS HAVE IMPORTANT ROLES IN SNOOK'S TRIAL

Prosecutor Chester, Judge Scarlett, Dr. Brundage, and Two Jurors Are From East End

Several from the East Side and Bexley play important roles in the trial of Dr. James H. Snook.

John J. Chester, jr., prosecuting attorney, is a resident of Bexley, living at 2368 Fair avenue. He is the one who will try to present evidence sufficient to send Dr. Snook to the chair for his confessed slaying of Theora K. Hix. Chester was the first stumbling block in the way of prospective jurors.

Henry L. Scarlett, presiding judge, lives at 236 S. Columbia avenue. Scarlett straightens out the frequent tangles between prosecution and defense, keeps order in the court room, and instructs the jury.

Dr. Howard M. Brundage, pathologist, 1797 Bryden road, is medical advisor. His testimony from the witness stand in regard to results of his examination of the vital organs of Theora K. Hix is expected to be filled with surprises and to have an important bearing on the outcome of the trial.

Jurors From East End

C. T. Butche, 3265 East Main street carpenter, and W. L. Balthaser, 1180 East Mound street, grocer, are two of the jurors who will determine the fate of Dr. Snook.

Albert C. Conrad, 1783 East Main street was excused by Judge Scarlett when he said he objects to capital punishment.

James G. Light, 1191 Oak street, was also excused because of his objection to capital punishment.

John S. Cole, 807 Franklin avenue, a building contractor was dismissed by Judge Scarlett when he said he had formed some opinions which would take evidence produced by the defendant to erase.

The fiftieth prospective juror to be called to the stand was E. N. Lodge, 1380 Franklin avenue, who was dismissed because of an opinion he had formed.

Because he had an honest conviction against the death penalty, Myron D. Hartle, 885 Franklin avenue was excused.

Martin J. Smith, 633 South Ohio avenue was excused as a prospective juror because of an opinion he had formed.

John Baker, 838 South Ohio avenue, was challenged for cause when he said he objected to capital punishment.

J. M. White, 580 Wilson avenue, secretary of the Carrol Chain Company, was excused because of an opinion he could not lay aside. E. C. Andrus, 920 Euclaire avenue, was excused for the same reason.

The examination of a juror to replace Mrs. Allman, resulted in the early dismissal of two men, one of whom was F. E. Houstle, 185 Miller avenue, who said he objected to capital punishment.

Richard E. Gutman, 292 South Champion avenue, third tenant of seat number 4 was replaced by Balthaser, when the defense exercised its eleventh peremptory challeng.

Clay McIlvain, 1081 East Main, was challenged for cause by the state because of his objection to capital punishment.

The defense, using a peremptory challenge also unseated juror No. 6. Mrs. Edna Allman, 710 South Ohio avenue, a housewife. It was the defense's fourth peremptory challenge.

The state, exercising its first peremptory challenge, unseated juror No. 5, Francis W. Cavanaugh, 668 South Champion avenue, a radiator salesman.

Mrs. Grace Rogers, 1258 Bryden road, was removed by the state's second peramptory challenge.

Twenty from the east side were on the panels for the trial of Dr. Snook.

Raymond has been with the recreation department since 1913 with the exception of two years spent in the service during the World War. His resignation becomes effective at the close of the present playground season.

Franklin Independent League

Reeb Lunches, 4; Gwinn Milling, 2.

Huntington National Bank, 12; Reichenbach Fords, 2.

Robert - Lee Shop, 2; Morley Lunches, 1.

Bob Boston's fielding and the hitting of Combine featured the play of Reob Lunches. Mounts starred afield and Barr hit a home run for Gwinn Milling.

Ed Zang and Wetzel of Huntington-ton National Bank sparkled afield. Purcell led the offensive attack of the flivvers.

Del Groetzinger, besides hurling good ball, hit hard for Robert-Lees, Herschman of Morley Lunches played well in the field.

Fraternal League No. 1

Linden Leaders, 10; Fort Hayes, 4.

Linden Leaders, 8; St. Clair Presbyterian No. 2, 1.

St. Clair Presbyterian No. 2, 5; Modern Woodmen, 3.

Druids, 20; C. K. O. O. No. 2, 1.

C. K. O. O. No. 1, 9; Columbus Junior O. U. A. M., 0, (forfeit).

Egert and Flager of Linden Leaders each smashed out a triple in the first game. Bob Crabtree played well in left field for the winners, while Gwens and Price were the Soldiers' best performers.

Cramer's pitching was too much for St. Clair Presbyterian No. 2. Third baseman Brake took care of his position in a satisfactory manner, and Egert again hit hard for the leaders. Jimmie Walker, at second base for the Presbyterians, hit the ball to all corners of Franklin Park and fielded spectacularly.

Features of the third game were the hitting and fielding of Stanton Gray and Picken's swatting for the winners, in addition to the play afield of Krumm and Mason for Modern Woodmen.

Wendell, Druids' pitcher, hit a four-bagger and hurled invincible ball. Smiling, of C. K. O. O. No. 2, accounted for his team's only run by smashing out a circuit blow.

Seven Streets on East Side Being Repaved and Resurfaced

Bexley and the East Side will have seven smoother streets by about the first of October when the city engineer's program of resurfacing and paving is finished.

The path of the abandoned interurban tracks on East Main street has been filled in with Scioto Rock. The crossing at Remington and Main was repaired several weeks ago but the work from Remington road west was not finished till the middle of this week.

Curbstones on Gault street from Kimball Place to Miller will be laid the latter part of this week. The pavement will be 30 feet wide and will be of asphalt. Fritz Pyle Construction company has the contract for the Gault street job.

The A. W. Burns Company will resurface Miller avenue from Main to Livingston with three inches of asphalt. Concrete gutters and new curbstones are already in place.

Latta avenue will be paved with asphalt between brick gutters from Oak to Fair.

The C. and G. Construction Company has the contract for the paving of Newton street between Wilson and Oakwood.

A 26 foot brick pavement will be laid on Mound street from Kelton to Bulen by the C. and G. Construction Company. The part of Mound street in Bexley from College to Euclaire will also be paved with a 26 foot brick pavement.

EARL WILSON DEVELOPING TELEVISION SET FOR HOME

Earl Wilson, graduate of Capital University and former instructor there, is doing research work for the Westinghouse Company at Pittsburgh on television sets for the home.

He is developing a new cell which it is expected, will improve television reception. Another worker with whom he is collaborating is developing a system to synchronize sound broadcast with television with the end in view of perfecting a set which will receive talking pictures in the home.

Wilson has been with the Westinghouse company since receiving his doctor's degree at Ohio State University.

CHEVY, CADILLAC COLLIDE

A chevrolet coach driven by C. C. Wimans, 114 East Broad street, collided with a Cadillac sedan owned by Scott M. Taylor, 216 Frambes avenue. Both cars were upset and damaged but no one was injured.

CAPITAL TO CONFER DEGREE

Capital University will confer the degree of Divinity on Rev. Ernest C. Bloomquist, Rockford, Illinois, Sunday. Dr. Otto Mees and Dr. Scheutte will perform the ceremony.

Playground News Notes

Fourteen girls from the Kent-Gault grounds are attending Indian camp. Girls from both grounds will return Sunday. Boys from Rich-Nineteenth leave Thursday.

Charles Courtney won the junior horseshoe pitching championship at the Kent-Gault grounds. Robert Miller is senior champ.

Doris Humes won first prize in the doll contest at the Kent-Gault grounds yesterday. The contest was well attended.

Tennis courts at the Kent-Gault grounds have been turned around so that they face north and south instead of east and west. The background has also been enlarged from six to twenty-one feet. New netting has been placed around the courts.

The Recreation Department will sponsor a handicraft display at the department offices in the city hall. There will be crepe, weaving, and tied and dyed exhibitions.

Russel Baltzly is junior horseshoe pitching champ at the Nineteenth-Rich grounds. Art Myers is senior champ. Myers is also all-Ohio champion, southern Ohio champion, and city champion.

Attendance at the playgrounds has been slightly lighter during the heat wave—it's even too hot to play.

FRANKLIN PARK M.E. WINS CHAMPIONSHIP IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Grace Lutheran Team Wins Second Half of Season in Church League No. 2

Franklin Park M. E. recreation hall team clinched the season championship of East Church League No. 1 by defeating St. Clair Presbyterian, 8 to 0. This makes the Franklin Park M. E. team eligible to enter the city championships in the middle of August.

Features of the game were the pitching of Hamm, Williams fielding, and the fielding of George Lewis for the Franklin Park team along with the work afield of Holstein for St. Clair.

Rhinehart, Mounts, Millar, Lewis, Elgin, Williams, Combine, Coppress, and Hamm make up the championship Franklin Park M. E. team.

Grace Lutheran Church's team won the second half of the season championship by Defeating St. Clair Presbyterian No. 2, 8 to 0. The First English Lutherans won the first half of the season. Grace and First English will play next week to determine who will represent East Church League No. 2 in the city championships.

Cooperider's pitching and the receiving of his slants by Goosley of Grace Lutheran, in addition to the all-around playing of Ruggey for St. Clair featured the championship game.

Moessner, Gurley, Ehrman, Cooperider, Hax, Reuter, Beck, Schoene and Marsh compose the lineup of the Grace Lutheran Church team.

The First English Lutheran team, winners of the first half of the season, includes Hohl, Barry, Helprose, Polzer, Rannit, Agree, Thompson, Sheppard, and Woodruff.

The recreation ball season for the Church Leagues ended with the games played this week. Teams in other leagues will finish next week.

Following are the results and commentaries of the games played this week.

Teams of the Church Leagues finished in the following order at the end of the second half of the summer season:

East Church League No. 1

Franklin Park M. E., 5; St. Clair Presbyterian, 0.

Nelson Memorial, 2; Wilson C. of C., 1.

St. Clair U. B., 10; Nelson Memorial, 4.

Ohio Evan., 32; First U. P., 8.

The Nelson-Wilson conflict was a mound duel between J. Wannamaker of Nelson and Pickens, Wilson's mound ace. Johnson of the winners hit hard while Anderson, a teammate at first base, handled 16 chances without the semblance of a bobble. Barr played well in the field for Wilson.

Bert Gray, St. Clair U. B.'s pitcher was in fine fettle. Perkins starred afield for the winners while Neutzling hit hard for Morgan Memorial.

The hitting of the entire Ohio Evangelical nine featured the trimming it gave First U. P.

East Church League, No. 2

Wilson Reformed, 5; Wagner Memorial, 3.

Miller Ave. Evangelical, 5; Miami Presbyterian, 0.

Grace Lutheran, 8; St. Clair Presbyterian No. 2, 0.

First Presbyterian, 2; First English Lutheran, 0.

Behind the invincible twirling of Barry, Wilson Reformed played a heads-up brand of ball to defeat Wagner Memorial. Pitcher McCoun of the latter aggregation garnered a triple and a home run. Nicholson, at first base for the winners, gave a good account of himself.

Jenkins, Miami's receiver, made a sensational one-hand catch. Tussing, pitching for Miller Avenue, delivered only three balls in the first inning.

Outstanding in the First Presbyterian-First English game were the hitting of Hall, the play of Camp behind the bat and Thomas' pitching for the winners and the swatting of Agree and Thornton for First English Lutheran.

Lesson for August 4

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST

Temperance Lesson

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 5:1-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Wine Leads To.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Drink Leads To.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Drink Leads To.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Reveling and Ruin.

I. Belshazzar's Impious Feast (vv. 1-4).

1. The attendants (vv. 1, 2). Belshazzar, his wife and concubines and a thousand of his lords.

2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4).

(1) They drank wine; they engaged in revelry. (2) They committed sacrilege, drinking wine out of the sacred vessels taken from the temple at Jerusalem. (3) They worshiped idols, gods of gold, silver, brass, iron, wood and stone.

II. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-16).

1. The time of (v. 5). It occurred in the same hour in which they were engaged in their drunken revelry.

2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). He was seized with consternation.

3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-16).

(1) He called forth astrologers and soothsayers, offering rich rewards (vv. 7-9). Their utter inability to interpret the writing left the king even more perplexed.

(2) Daniel brought in at the suggestion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen reminded the king of Daniel's service to Nebuchadnezzar. He was sent for and promised great reward.

III. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28).

1. Daniel's address to the king (vv. 17-24).

(1) He brushes aside the promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gifts.

(2) He reviewed before him the history of Nebuchadnezzar and applied the lesson to the behavior of Belshazzar (vv. 18-24), showing that Belshazzar should have profited by the experience of his father.

2. The interpretation of the writing (vv. 25-28).

(1) "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 26). "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it."

(2) "Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting."

(3) "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28). "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

IV. The Judgment Executed (vv. 29-31).

In that night was Belshazzar slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom.

The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. So we may interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the times of the Gentiles, and as foreshadowing the prevailing conditions. Let us note:

1. The stupidity of men.

They, like people today, would not learn by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar from such frivolity.

2. The magnificent splendor.

This great feast was characterized by pomp, display, parade. How characteristic of this age!

3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury today are on every hand.

4. The licentiousness of the king with his wives and concubines. Licentiousness is notoriously prevalent today.

5. Blasphemous sacrilege.

And may not the sacrilege of today be in excess of theirs, expressing itself in (1) a profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political preferment; (2) use of the pulpit and of the ministry for display and notoriety, even for the propagation of false doctrine; (3) union with the church, attendance on the communion, so as to cover up secret sins; (4) the use of the Word of God to give point to a joke; (5) denying that the Bible is God's Word, making it a book of errors, myths and legends; (6) sneering at the virgin birth, repudiating Christ's deity and setting aside His vicarious atonement.

6. Drunken carousals. The handwriting is on the wall. God will not endure this forever; His judgment shall fall. Conditions in the world indicate that the time is drawing near. Are you ready?

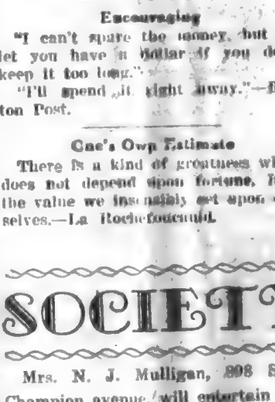
THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS



By H. IRVING KING

SWARMING BEES

MANY are the superstitions with regard to bees and probably the most common and widespread one is that when the bees swarm and leave the hive, it is necessary to go forth with pans, kettles, bells and other articles by which a noise may be produced, and, by creating a great din, induce the truant insects to alight. This is not a new custom by any means for Varro, the learned Roman, writing two thousand years ago, remarked, "Who does not know that wandering and dispersed bees may be got to one place by cymbals and rattles?"

The bee was especially sacred to Diana and Ceres. To the former it was assigned because it was a symbol of virginity, but to Ceres, the goddess of grain and harvest, the bee was naturally affiliated by the part it plays in the farm life. Ceres was the bees' especial goddess and over the fields of that goddess' care they flew in search of the material for their honey. So when they swarm and go in search of a new home they hear in the beating of the tin pans the clash of the cymbals around the altar of their goddess; in the bells and rattles the sound of sacred instruments celebrating her rites—and knowing thereafter, that their altar is nigh they settle down on some convenient limb as a suitable place to end their exodus. When you beat a tin pan to stop the swarming bees you are merely trying to fool them by imitating an ancient heathen rite.

Onion Salad.

This will be a good one to serve when having the meal out of doors. Chop a large mild onion or two with a tablespoonful of parsley. Add french dressing made as follows and serve on crisp lettuce: Take one cupful of oil, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, one-third cupful of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-half a can of tomato soup. Beat well and keep in a mason jar in the ice chest. This dressing is good as long as it lasts, which is a short time, for it is good.

Cauliflower Salad.

Separate cold, cooked cauliflower into flowerets. Shred bacon and fry until crisp, mix with a little cider vinegar, salt if needed, and cayenne and pour hot on the cauliflower which has been sprinkled with a little minced tender green onion.

Tomato and Chive Salad.

Cut small peeled tomatoes in half and place on lettuce; have all well chilled. Sprinkle with minced chives and place a spoonful of thick mayonnaise on top of each. Sprinkle the vegetables with a bit of salt and cayenne.

Grapefruit and Celery Salad.

Arrange nests of lettuce and heap on sections of grapefruit which have been carefully broken and membrane removed. Sprinkle with a few shredded almonds and half the quantity of celery. Top with plenty of rich mayonnaise and serve well chilled at once.

Egg and Celery Salad.

Cut two heads of celery and add two hard-cooked eggs, one-half cupful of walnut meats, all well blended. Season well with salt and a dash of cayenne and serve with mayonnaise, on lettuce.

Potato and Smoked Herring Salad.

Skin and bone herring and flake the fish, add as much hard-cooked egg as fish and twice as much cold boiled potato. Season with minced onion, salt if needed and cover with french dressing.

Slack Times?
ADVERTISE!

Many merchants believe that advertising is worthless during the summer depression. Money comes in slowly and must be disbursed carefully. Therefore they attempt to lower their expenses by cutting their advertising. This an erroneous attitude. When business is poor, advertise in an effort to improve it—advertising is not an expense, but an investment.

The Eastern Times, reaching 5000 families on the East Side and Bexley, offers to its clients free cut service and copy and layout suggestions which will get results.

Toasted Walnut Sandwiches

½ c cream or cottage cheese, 2 T salad oil, 1 T vinegar, ½ t salt, ⅛ t paprika, 6 T Diamond Walnut meats, 1 loaf graham bread. Mix oil, vinegar, salt and paprika and then mix with cheese. Cut bread in ¼ inch slices, spread with cheese mixture and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Put together in pairs, remove crusts, and cut in strips. Toast, pile log-cabin fashion on a fancy plate, and serve with a dinner salad.

Combination Sandwich

Whole fried egg, slice of dill pickle, slice of tomato, piece of fried ham. Combined hot in layers (tomato and pickle cold) and served between thin slices of bread and butter.

Men's Favorite Cheese Sandwiches

Saute for four minutes in 1 T butter, half of a green pepper cut in small pieces and 2 T chopped onion. Add ½ c strained tomato pulp or canned tomato soup and cook for five minutes. Add ¾ lb. mild cheese put through the food chopper, ¼ t salt and a few grains of cayenne. Stir occasionally and cook over hot water until the cheese is melted, then add 1 slightly beaten egg mixed with 2 T cream. This filling has a most appealing flavor. Serve with a crisp leaf of lettuce. Use it cold or hot.

Fruit Sandwiches

1 lb. dates, 1 lb. figs, ½ lb. nuts. Chop and mix with juice of 2 lemons.

Cracker Sandwiches

Place a marshmallow or chocolate drop or bit of grated chees on a salted cracker, put in oven or under flame till melted and cracker browns a trifle. Or you may use chopped nuts mixed with beaten egg white and sugar on top of crackers and bake.

"So Different" Sandwiches

Cut one small bottle pimento olives small in thin slices, mix these with one small; fresh cream cheese; moisten with a spoonful of well-made mayonnaise. Spread between thin slices of buttered white and brown bread, adding a little cream or fringed parsley, leaving one side of the sandwich white and the other brown. These are both appetizing and satisfying.

Milk Shake

Beat 1 egg with 1 sugar for each person, add 2/3 goblet shaved ice and milk, shake thoroughly until the ice is nearly melted. When ready to serve grate nutmeg over the top. Vanilla, chocolate sirup or malted milk may be added.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ENJOY THE COMICS

IF WE do not enjoy the comic strips in the daily newspapers there is something wrong with us. We should consult a doctor at once. Comics serve a very useful purpose in the lives of busy people.

We like comics because they are so deliciously absurd. A little shaver no bigger than a minute is forever making wise cracks. Some poor devil is in hot water all the time.

The comics reveal to us the absurdity of taking life too seriously. We recognize in them certain fundamental truths that apply to our own lives. These comics are really caricatures. We see ourselves and our neighbors. We get a big kick out of picturing some awkward friend of ours in the predicament of the comic actor. We enjoy sympathizing with ourselves in the perpetual hard-luck role. The very exaggerations bring out these traits all the more forcibly.

Most of the comics involve a story. The story part is in itself fascinating. It arouses our curiosity. We are anxious to know what happens next in the love episodes of our mock hero, the extent of hard luck he may have or how he is coming out with his ridiculous business adventure.

The great celebrities of the more popular comics are better known than many historical characters. If we should run into any of them on the street we would recognize them at once.

The comics furnish a real outlet for what they are—a lot of nonsense mixed up with a great deal of homely truth, a caricature of our mistreated selves and our ridiculous neighbors, a little relaxation in the midst of a busy day with its cares and worries, and all the too sober realities.

Tea Drinking

In Russia it is customary to place a lump of sugar in the mouth and let tea trickle through it. A newly married couple in Burma exchange a mixture of tea leaves steeped in oil on their wedding day as an omen of matrimonial bliss. In Japan every artisan or laborer going to work takes his rice box of lacquered wood, a kettle, a tea caddy, a teapot, a cup and his chop sticks.

OLD GLAMOURS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WOMEN are always polishing old things,
To bring them back their brightness, queer old ware,
Chipped here and there
With many wanderings,
And dulled with many a year of use and care,
Women are always polishing, to see
The beauty where Such beauty used to be.

Women are always laboring, their arms
Bearing the burden of some ancient plate,
To recreate
Its fine, old-fashion charms,
Restore the past, before it grows too late.
Women are always laboring with dust,
And even fate;
It seems that women must.

Women are always polishing, it seems,
Seeking to bring old glamours back to life,
Even the wife
Still bridal in her dreams.
When men surrender to the stress and strife,
Women are always polishing—perchance
A plate, a knife,
Perhaps an old romance.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

AN OLD COLLEGE SONG

WHILE the World war was going on objection was made to the singing of Yale's famous song "Bright College Years" to the tune of the "Wacht Am Rhein."

In fact, the class of 1889 went so far as to offer a prize for a new air to be fitted to the old words.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the alumni advisory board, that body suggested that the corporation decline gratefully the offer of "Ninety-nine," and this advice was taken.

It is easy to understand why Yale men should not care to sever such a link with the past. The song would hardly be recognizable if set to new music. Besides it would be difficult to get a satisfactory substitute.

But the real explanation is still more to the point.

Since the Declaration of the Armistice there has been a "Watch on the Rhine" kept by Americans, and American flags have been flying from the castles overlooking the haunts of the Rhine maidens of ancient legends.

So it will be natural to think of the new watch, instead of the first one, whenever Yale men gather together for any sort of celebration.

As a matter of fact the "Wacht Am Rhein" did not become popular in Germany until some time after the close of the Franco-Prussian war. It did not represent the spirit of the armies that had been led by the old king and by Von Moltke.

It was, on the other hand, an expression of the new spirit that was to bring about in 1914 the invasion of Belgium and the fighting which should end in the Argonne Forest and Belleau Wood.

A precedent for retaining the air is also to be found in the case of "America" which is sung to the air of "God Save the King" that fell into unpopularity in America round about the time of the Boston tea party and the pulling down of the statue of George III at Bowling Green in New York.

The late King Edward, always a warm friend of the Republic, was in favor of letting this country have the exclusive use of the air of "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He did not care for the sentiments expressed in at least one of the verses of the national anthem that was always played when he appeared in public.

In fact, it was said that he wished to have Doctor Watts' stirring hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past" substituted for it on formal occasions.

But, owing to the conservatism of the public, this was never done; perhaps they associated the familiar air so much with the long reign of Victoria that they did not care to change.

THE POPULAR CANDY

IN THESE days with the value of pure candy so much appreciated and used by mothers of children, the homemade kinds are doubly popular.

Sea Foam.

Take two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of corn sirup, one-fourth cupful of water, two egg whites, one cupful of chopped nuts and flavoring to taste. Boil to a soft ball stage the sugar, sirup and water. Beat the egg whites and pour over the hot sirup, beating until stiff; stir in the nuts and drop by spoonfuls on a baking sheet.

Peanut Candy.

Shell and roll with a rolling pin one quart of peanuts. To two pounds of brown sugar add six ounces (twelve level tablespoonfuls) of butter. Stir over a low fire at first, then when boiling cook stirring constantly ten minutes; add the nuts just before taking out of the pan. Pour into a well-buttered pan and when cool mark off into squares.

Turkish Delight.

Soak five tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water for ten minutes. Mix one-third of a cupful of orange juice, one teaspoonful of grated orange rind. Bring two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of water, and the softened gelatin to a boil, and boil 20 minutes. Remove from the heat, add the fruit juices and rind. Strain into a shallow pan which has been rinsed with cold water. When cool turn out and cut into squares. Roll in powdered sugar.

Molasses Candy.

Take two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of butter and three cupfuls of sugar; boil until it makes a hard ball in water. Add flavoring and pour into greased pans to cool. Pull and cut into squares and wrap in oiled paper. Melt the butter, add the molasses, then when well heated add the sugar.

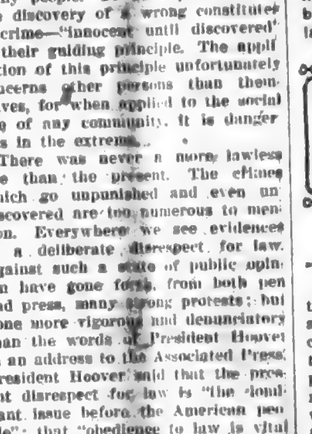
By LEONARD A. BARRETT

RESPECT FOR LAW

When the street light is set at the red color instinctively the average motorist wishes it were green and in the absence of any apparent danger of being caught some will take the chance and drive past the danger signal. This may be regarded as only a slight offense but when practiced in more dangerous situations may prove perilous to human life and property.



L. A. Barrett.

What moral right has an engineer to permit his train to pass a red light signal, or the pilot of a ship to disregard the light house signals? By no possible argument can he claim the moral or legal right to place in jeopardy human life entrusted to his care.

This tendency to disregard law or to claim the right to disobey it seems to be a common characteristic of many people. To such persons only the discovery of a wrong constitutes a crime—"innocent until discovered" is their guiding principle. The application of this principle unfortunately concerns other persons than themselves, for when applied to the social life of any community, it is dangerous in the extreme.

There was never a more lawless age than the present. The crimes which go unpunished and even undiscovered are too numerous to mention. Everywhere we see evidences of a deliberate disrespect for law. Against such a state of public opinion have gone forth, from both pen and press, many strong protests; but none more vigorous and denunciatory than the words of President Hoover in an address to the Associated Press. President Hoover said that the present disrespect for law is "the dominant issue before the American people"; that "obedience to law is vital to the preservation of our institutions and that the real problem is to awaken the moral sense." In other words, President Hoover recognizes that obedience to law is fundamentally a moral problem, and no citizen has the moral right to refuse this respect and obedience. Mr. Hoover also emphasized the point that if law can only be upheld by police enforcement the future of our democracy is in serious peril. Obedience to law then becomes a duty as well as a privilege of citizenship, for it is true of society as it is true of an individual—obedience is liberty disobedience is slavery.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

BUZZING FLIES

THERE is a very general superstition—in fact it is world-wide—that a large fly buzzing persistently about one, or preceding one as he walks, is a sign of bad luck. It is said that the late Russell Sage would not do business with a man who came into his office with a fly buzzing in front of him.

This appears to be a survival of an old idea of primitive man that flies were embodiments of the souls of the dead, and of wicked souls at that. Even today among the natives of Assam a fly, which is peculiarly demonstrative, is supposed to be the soul of some dead malefactor who, having spent his allotted time in the underworld, has been reincarnated in this form preparatory to final extinction. At Wuhlbach in Transylvania in the Eighteenth century it was testified at the trial of a witch that some workmen saw the woman's soul, which had temporarily left her, issue in the mouth in the form of a fly.

In classic times the fly was regarded as an especially malignant and bad-luck-bringing creature, and one of the titles of Zeus, the Grecian Jupiter, was the Fly-catcher—one of his jobs was to exert his power as chief of the gods against the fly that when Zeus was already too surfeited with nectar and ambrosia to heed the prayers of his votaries. Apollonius of Tyana, a great magician cleared Constantinople of flies by working a counter magic on them. He set up a great bronze fly and the other flies, alarmed by this symbol, left the city.

Davey Lee

Cute little Davey Lee, now four years of age, and starring in "Sunny Boy," his third appearance in the "movies," soon is to appear in another vitaphone picture, "Say It With Songs," in which he will play opposite Al Jolson. His other pictures were, first, "The Singing Fool;" second, "Frozen River," with Rin-Tin-Tin. Davey has fine seal-brown hair, perfect teeth, blue eyes shaded by long brown lashes.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"CUT-THROAT"

TO BE a cut-throat one need not necessarily cut throats. Nowadays the term is used to describe treachery of any kind, whether or not this is accompanied by physical violence. It is the sense of treachery rather than the particular medium by which it is carried out that we mean to express when we refer to some one as a "cut-throat." However, it is in its literal sense that the term had its origin.

Coined by that great master of words, Will Shakespeare, the word is over three hundred years old. Its earliest recorded use is found in Macbeth, said to have been written in 1606, in the following context: The murderer enters who has been commissioned by Macbeth to put Banquo out of the way. Macbeth asks, "Is he dispatch'd?" to which the murderer replies: "My lord, his throat is cut; that I did for him." Then Macbeth says: "Thou art the best o' the cut-throats!"

PARKWAY REMOVAL IN EAST BROAD ST. ELECTION ISSUE

Voters To Decide Whether Traffic Menace Shall Be Removed Or Not

One of the points of interest in the primary elections Tuesday is the proposal to remove the parkways in East Broad street from Fourth street to Parsons avenue, and open this main thoroughfare to its full width of 80 feet to relieve growing traffic congestion in the business district.

The proposal has the active support of more than 80 per cent of the property owners along the section of the street to be improved, who have petitioned city council for the improvement, and who will themselves pay 20 per cent of the cost when it is made. The total cost of the improvement will be approximately $100,000, of which $80,000.00 will be paid by the property owners, and only $10,000 by the city.

"East Broad street now is 80 feet wide from the Scioto River to Fourth street," H. E. A. Smith, secretary of the East Broad Street Improvement Association, explained. "At Fourth west the traffic channel is abruptly reduced to 34 feet width by the eight foot parkways and the fifteen foot driveways on either side. These driveways are rarely used except for parking, and are too narrow and rough to be safe for use by through motor traffic in their present condition.

"The district which has the parkways is a constant danger to traffic. Police records show that there are more than four times as many accidents per city block in the parkway district than there are in the remainder of East Broad street, east of Parsons. Police statistics reveal that during 1929 there have been 22 automobile collisions in the distance from Fourth street to Parsons avenue, and only nine from Parsons east to the N. & W. crossing, a distance twice as great.

The only argument advanced against the improvement is that the trees in the parkways will be destroyed," Mr. Smith said. "It is true that the trees in the parkways will be removed but the larger, more beautiful, and more numerous trees along the curb will not be touched. Thirty-three of the trees in the parkways are dying and should be removed immediately regardless of street improvement, James Underwood, city superintendent of parks, and the city's forestry expert, found in a recent survey. Nearly half the trees are small, and more than half the total number are in an unhealthy condition. Grass does not grow well in the parkways, due to the lack of moisture and the constant presence of oil from the street. Many of the trees have been wholly or partially destroyed by automobiles forced into them by traffic congestion in teh narrow parkway district.

The Living Tree Guild, national organization for the preservation and planting of trees, also surveyed the parkways, and recommended that these trees be removed because they are 'dying of slow strangulation.' It has been found impossible to grow trees in parkways because of lack of clean soil, and the covering of large areas of roots by paving which shuts off air and water, these foresters reported.

"With the growing traffic eastward toward Port Columbus, and the constantly increasing use of this thoroughfare by tourists and local residents it is imperative that these parkways be eliminated now, and this beautiful street made passable for motor traffic throughout its entire width," Mr. Smith asserted.

COUPE HITS PARKED CAR

While trying to close the door on her Ford coupe which had blown open Mrs. Helen Tinker, 772 Euclaire avenue, collided with a car parked at the curb and owned by Mrs. Rosenthall, 718 Euclaire avenue. No one was hurt but both cars were damaged.

DR. PRATHER RETURNS

Dr. R. C. Prather was back in his office this week after returning from his vacation, Monday. Dr. and Mrs. Prather were on a motor tour of the east.

Alice Reed is spending the month of August with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Reed, 714 Pleasant Ridge avenue. Miss Reed is engaged in social service work at the settlement house in New Haven, Connecticut.

KETTERER CANDIDATE FOR CITY COUNCIL

George F. Ketterer, 960 North Nelson road, candidate for member of city council in the primaries Tuesday, has had experience in the duties of councilman.

He served six years on the county board of education and has been active in civic affairs of his community, twice acting as president of the Civic Association.

His petition for nomination carried 4,500 names.

Mr. Ketterer attended Ohio Wesleyan and is a home owner, living at 960 North Nelson road.

His name will appear on the non-partisan councilman's ballot.

ROBERT COE HOLDS PERFECT RECORD

Wins Honors in Academic Work at Y. M. C. A. Day School For Boys

Robert Coe, 1823½ East Rich street is the holder of a perfect academic record at the Columbus Y. M. C. A. Day School for Boys. This rank, which takes into consideration both academic work and standing in citizenship, has been announced with the final checkup of entire year's records by T. Vaughn Bancroft, registrar.

This 15-year-old record holder was the only member of the golf team to be awarded his letter in that sport this spring. He was also a member of the staff of the school annual, the "Marga", so named after the school colors, Maroon and Gray.

Robert will be a junior when classes are resumed for the fall term at the Y. M. C. A. Day School for Boys, Sept. 9th.

REMOVE THE PARKWAYS!

Voters will have the opportunity to wipe out the East Broad street traffic menace at the primaries Tuesday.

Residents of the East Side and Bexley who use Broad street daily know the traffic congestion and danger caused by the parkways. Police statistics show that more accidents per block occur in the parkway section than in any other portion of the street.

From the Scioto to Fourth, Broad street is eighty feet wide, at Fourth because of the parkways and the side lanes—too narrow for use—traffic is choked into a thirty-eight foot channel.

Eighty per cent of the property owners in the parkway district are in favor of the improvement and they are the ones who will carry ninety per cent of the cost; the city will only carry ten per cent of the cost of improvement.

Only one objection has been raised against the removal of the parkways and that is that their beauty will be destroyed. It is true that the trees will be removed by the improvement but the beauty of the luxuriant growth of trees and grass at the curb line and the increased safety of a wider Broad street more than offset what little esthetic pleasure is derived from the barren ground and dying trees of the present parkways.

Improve Broad street traffic conditions, appreciate the beauty of the trees and grass at the curb line, vote for the removal of the East Broad street parkways, Tuesdays.

Lesson for August 11

DANIEL AMONG THE LIONS

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 6:1-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Is True to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Daniel Is True to God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Meaning of True Courage.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Courage of Faith.

I. Daniel the Prime Minister of the Medo-Persian Empire (vv. 1-3).

Sterling worth brought him to the front and kept him there. The new king was keen to discern his worth and to give it recognition.

II. An Occasion Sought Against Daniel (vv. 4-9).

1. The reason for (v. 4). No doubt that which prompted this effort was envy and jealousy.

2. Failure of (v. 4).

Daniel's official record was blameless. They could not even find an error. Envy is still in the world. Those who excel in any line are sure to suffer in some way for their excellencies. The successful business man in relation to his competitors, the ranking pupil in school, the child of superior merit in the home, will be envied by the others. In politics many times those who honestly strive to do their duty are persecuted. Even in the church we find ministers are sometimes envious of their superiors.

3. The wicked plot (vv. 5-9).

They trumped up a charge on the ground of his foreign religion. They were not careful about their method, so their end was attained. In spite of Daniel's loyalty, the decree was signed by the king which would put him into the den of lions.

III. Daniel's Noble Confession (vv. 10-13).

Though Daniel knew that the wicked decree was signed, he knelt before God as usual. Note the silence of heroism. Weak men bluster; strong men have little to say.

1. He continued his usual habit (v. 10).

He knew that the civil law had absolutely nothing to do with his religion. God's law is first. Laws forbidding reading the Bible, praying, or meeting to worship God, have no authority over men.

2. Daniel reported to the king (vv. 11-13).

These wicked men watched to find out whether Daniel would pray before his God, and when they found that he continued his worship, they went to the king and reported that Daniel disregarded his decree.

IV. The Foolish Decree Executed (vv. 14-17).

1. The king displeased with himself (v. 14).

He labored till the going down of the sun to deliver Daniel, conscious that he had been entrapped.

2. The king helpless (v. 15).

The proud ruler found that he was a slave. To enact laws which change not is the height of folly.

3. Daniel cast into the den of lions (v. 16).

The king's parting word to Daniel was a poor, feeble excuse for his guilty conscience.

4. The double seal (v. 17).

This double sealing shows the king's purpose to abide by the unfortunate law.

V. Daniel Delivered (vv. 18-23).

1. Note the contrast between the night in the lion's den and the one in the palace. In the palace there was no sleep, no mirth. Daniel's quiet is as a picture of the safety and peace which are the portion of those who trust God and do His will.

2. The king's question in the morning (v. 20).

3. Daniel's answer (v. 22).

God's angel has done many wonderful works. The early Christians despised bonds, stripes and death.

4. Daniel delivered (v. 23).

No manner of hurt was found because he believed in his God.

VI. The Doom of His Accusers (v. 24).

They were cast into the den of lions and "or ever they came at the bottom of the den" their bones were broken in pieces. Daniel's enemies go into the same trap which they prepared for him.

VII. Darius' Decree (vv. 25-27).

Men were to tremble and fear before Daniel's God. As to whether Darius had a change of heart we do not know.

VIII. Daniel's Prosperity (v. 28).

Daniel goes higher into the kingdom and continues in his place of honor even though dynasties change.

In a Better World

A comfortable old age is the reward of a well-spent youth; therefore, instead of its introducing dismal and melancholy prospects of decay, it should give us hopes of eternal youth in a better world.—Palmer.

When a Cross Is Formed

When our will runs parallel with the will of God, no cross is formed; but when our will runs counter to God's will, a cross is formed which is heavy to be borne.—Aughey.

It may take nine tailors to make a man, but one Christmas is easily enough to break him if he is the happy father of nine children.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE TALK TO OURSELVES

PEOPLE who live alone for a long time begin to talk to themselves I recall an experience some years ago while en route to California. In passing through Arizona a man boarded the train at one of the fing stops. He looked like a hermit. In talking with him I found that he and lived by himself for years. His lips were moving most of the time as he sat in the seat ahead of me. Every now and then he would talk aloud to himself.

A lonely person talks to himself for the same reason that a boy whistles in the dark. It is an unconscious effort to provide themselves with company, which shows how strongly we are dominated by the herding impulse.

Any of us are likely to talk to ourselves when rehearsing some past experience in which we are thinking up arguments in defense or justification. We become so stirred up and earnest that we talk out loud before we realize what we are doing. The same may happen if we get too deeply absorbed in our day dreams and reveries.

Children often carry on conversations with imaginary playmates. This is more likely to happen in a child who is alone a good deal. All children talk to their toys. Perhaps in some cases this childish habit carries over into adult life, and a person keeps on talking to himself.

We talk to ourselves in childhood to provide imaginary playmates, in adult life to provide company when we have to be alone a good deal, and in vivid day dreams and soliloquies in which the situation amounts to that of having other people present.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

FEARING MISTAKES

THE man or woman who fears to tread unfamiliar fields, or hesitates to undertake something apart from the commonplace, simply because of the dread of making mistakes, will never attain a place of distinction.

History is replete with golden deeds of men and women who in their beginning made error after error, rubbing them out as they moved along undaunted, until finally they reached the beckoning heights towards which they were ever pressing.

Success is very often built on fallacies of vision and judgment and then made a glorious monument by their erasures and the applause of a wondering world.

To write an acceptable sonnet involves repeated trials and the frequent drawing of the pen through blunders that slipped in during the excitement of the chase of effective lines and rhymes.

To manage a business without now and then making miscalculations is not possible; so it is with every other form of work, from the building of a skyscraper to the planning of a bungalow or the taking care of a home.

In spite of the intelligence and capacity of the human mind, it frequently puts the saddle on the wrong horse and in its heated quest pursues shadow for substance.

When an old hound gets on the wrong scent, he does not sit on his haunches and whine, but keeps scurrying around until he picks up the trail and reclaims his reputation for being the best hunter in the pack.

To hesitate on the threshold of worthy effort through fear of committing an error, is sheer folly.

To keep going and brushing impediments aside is wisdom.

The wise man or woman accepts his or her mistakes gracefully but turns them to profitable account by avoiding them in the future.

Nothing that man does is perfect.

No man is without faults, but every man by persistent effort can overcome them and make a creditable showing worthy of emulation by those timid souls who halt between two opinions and thus accomplish nothing.

The sensible thing to do is every walk of activity, is to have a fixed purpose and stick to it until you rise at the top and stand shoulder to shoulder with the unconquerable.

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

CAN ANIMALS THINK?

Leonard A. Barrett

Can animals think? Many arguments, pro and con, have been advanced in answer to this question. Those who believe that animals cannot think argue that in order to think it is necessary to be conscious of one's personality; and quote in support of their position the statement of the famous philosopher whose words have become a classic, "I think, therefore I am." For instance, a dog is not conscious of the fact that it is a dog, either as a distinct animal or as distinguished from any other animal. Those who take the other view of the matter say that animals can and do think because of the evidence in almost every case; the way a dog responds to its master's voice and command, the fact that a dog knows its master as distinguished from other persons with whom it may come in contact. While the question is being debated, the fact remains that instinct is so much like reason, it is very difficult at times to detect the difference between them.

Whether an animal responds to either instinct or reason, every person who has had a pet knows that no one could wish for a more hearty appreciation from any animal than that which is expressed, as a response to acts of kindness and consideration, by a favorite dog. A dog's sense of protection is very highly developed. It will brave any danger in order to protect its master. The Eskimo dogs have become famous for their endurance and bravery in rescue work in the frozen country of North America. The domestic value of Newfoundland dogs is very great. But, the dog which appeals to us more strongly than all is the one which has become the household pet. When that dog dies something seems to have happened which we can neither define nor explain. When we endeavor to discover just what it is we are missing, we realize it is the element of faithfulness and loyalty, dumb though it was, it was very real.

An organization for the protection of animals exists in almost every city and county. The chief responsibility of these organizations, which are supported by contributions from an interested public, is two fold; first, to inculcate a desire for the protection of animals; second, to arrest any person who overburdens, abuses or in any way acts cruelly toward them. Such organizations deserve hearty commendation for their work. Animals may be dumb, but their response to our interest in them more than pays for the effort.

2. Melt 2 T butter, add 1 c cheese. Mix well and add ½ c milk slowly. If desired ½ c bread crumbs may have been soaked in the milk. When hot add ¼ c cream or 2 beaten eggs. Cook till creamy. Serve at once on toast or with wafers.

RALPH
CANDIDATE FOR CITY COUNCIL

Actively engaged in civic development for years.

Head of Van Realty.

Past Chairman Board of Directors, Clintonville Business and Civic Association.

Member Columbus Post 82, American Legion.

President Northern Columbus Kiwanis Club.

President North Side Athletic Club.

Member of the Elks, Crestview Lodge Knights of Pythias and Columbus Real Estate Board.

Endorsed by prominent business and civic leaders.

A COOL drink on a hot day is a most acceptable refreshment. Serve all sorts of cold drinks with the luncheon instead of tea or coffee, for variety.

Iced buttermilk is both wholesome, refreshing and nourishing and when it can be obtained fresh and sweet it is a drink which is highly prized.

Pineapple Cup.

Put into a bowl the juice of three lemons, two oranges sliced and seeded, one grated pineapple and one cupful of sugar. Let stand an hour to extract the juice, then strain through a fruit press. Add to the juice as much cold water as desired, and two slices of pineapple shredded. Pour into glasses half full of cracked ice.

Pineapple Lemonade.

Take one cupful each of sugar and canned pineapple, one cupful of water and the juice of two lemons. Boil the sugar and water until it threads. Put the pineapple through the fruit press and add to the sirup the juice of the lemons. When ready to serve add water and sugar to taste. Serve chilled.

Blackberry or Raspberry Shrub.

For every cupful of the juice of the berries take one-half cupful of cider vinegar and two cupfuls of sugar. Put the fruit, sugar and vinegar over the fire, stir until the sugar dissolves and boil until thick; skim if necessary and bottle. When serving allow one-fourth cupful of the sirup to half or three-fourths of a glass of iced water.

Tea Punch.

Pour a quart of boiling water over a tablespoonful of tea. Have the peelings and juice of three lemons and one orange in a pitcher. After the tea has steeped five minutes pour it over the fruit. Add a cupful of sugar and cool. Serve with ice in tall glasses.

Mint Sangaree.

Crush two or three sprays of mint with a lump of sugar. Drop into a glass half full of cracked ice. Add four tablespoonfuls of grape juice and fill the glass to the brim with charged water. Shake and strain into another glass and serve at once.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"DEVIL-MAY-CARE"

"OH, HE'S devil may care!" This is a phrase which we sometimes hear used as an expression of indifference, or applied to a person who takes things not very seriously or intensely, who does not worry and cannot be ruffled, who is irresponsible and "easy going."

It was as descriptive of a certain person that the expression had its origin. Its contribution to modern speech is part of the great legacy left to posterity by Charles Dickens. In his well-known "Pickwick Papers" we find the quotation in which the term was first used, as follows:

"He was a mighty free and easy, roving devil-may-care sort of person, was my uncle."

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

VERVAIN

ABOUT all that seems to have survived in this country of the one high esteem in which vervain was held in magic and folk medicine is its reputation as a cure for fever and ague—a reputation which the doctors say is entirely undeserved. But in science any weed is rare, superstition still calls vervain "fever weed" and this is little enough as salvage from its once great estate of magical properties.

In former times the vervain was highly esteemed as a love philter and is so today in some sections of Europe. At a German wedding a wreath of vervain is presented to the bride and is supposed to aid her in holding the affections of her husband. In England the herb is thought to be efficacious in staunching a wound, and in France, if gathered in the waning of the moon it is as much regarded for its curative properties as it is in the "fever and ague" districts of the United States. But the French employ an incantation while gathering it which is not done in America. That is the reason, perhaps, why in France it cures not only fever but various other sicknesses.

In the days when witches were more common than they are now vervain was one of the herbs which they gathered to work their magic with; but also it was regarded as a charm against witchcraft—as it is to day in some sections of Europe, including rural England. All the superstitions regarding vervain are an inheritance from the days of the Druids with whom it was a sacred plant, and if it has lost a portion of its magical reputation today it is probably due to the fact that we have forgotten how to gather it properly. The Druids gathered it only "when the dog-star arose from unsunned places."

Habits of Wild Horses

Horses are gregarious, that is, their tendency is to herd, and as a rule they graze with the wind, presumably from the same instinct that impels them to face away from a storm. Some believe that in their wild state they depend on wind-carried scent to warn them of danger from the rear and trust their eyes for news of danger coming against the wind.

BEXLEY CONSIDERS CONDUIT EXTENSION IN EAST BROAD ST.

Plan To Repair Main Street From Alum Creek To Parkview

Permission to extend a conduit in East Broad street was asked by the Bell Telephone Company of the Bexley Village Council.

The conduit for Telephone lines and perhaps other wiring would extend from Franklin Park west to Stanwood avenue, Bexley, with the purpose of serving the section north of Broad street and in view of any future development East of Bexley.

Representatives of the telephone company stated that they wished to place the subway from four to six feet from the ultimate curb line. Work will probably begin in the fall.

The plan was referred to the village engineer and the street commission.

To Fix Main Street

Village engineer Kennedy was instructed by council to submit an estimate at the next meeting on the cost of paving Main street from Alum Creek east to the east side of Parkview avenue. This project has been under discussion for several months. The entrance to Parkview avenue will also be included in the cost which it is estimated will be about $7,000.

According to plans discussed at council meeting the total cost of paving the Parkview entrance and sixty per cent of the other would be borne by the village, the remaining forty per cent to be assessed.

Following a protest from Mound street residents the telephone company will be asked to move its poles to the north side of the thoroughfare.

The interurban company will also be requested to remove their poles from the south side of Mound street. All necessary utility wires will be moved to the north side of the street.

Council referred to a committee a protest filed by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Reinhardt, 2822 Sherwood road against the erection of a gas booster station by the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company, on Drexel avenue between Bryden and Sherwood road.

Change Sidewalk

Village council acted favorably on the petition of Mound street residents that the sidewalk which will be laid after the street is paved, be placed four and one-half feet from the lot line instead of three feet. The proposed sidewalk will extend from College avenue to Euclaire.

Astor avenue residents offered to pay for the erection of street lights. The matter was referred to village solicitor, Harley Peters, and village engineer, Harold Kennedy.

The Pure Oil Company will be asked to pave part of their Drexel avenue drive to prevent gravel from washing upon the sidewalk.

Council ordered the cleaning of Drexel avenue from Main to Sherwood and the repair of a sewer drop at the rear of the restaurant at Drexel and Main. Concrete blocks which supported the I. C. & E. safety gates at College avenue and Mound street were ordered removed.

R. J. Wheaton was acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Ludwig who was called out of town on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Price and their three daughters, Margaret, Mazie and June will leave Sunday for a two week's vacation at Ruggles Beach.

Don't Pay 240 Per Cent Interest on Salary Loans

"If you have borrowed money from one of these 240 per cent interest charging salary buying loan sharks, don't pay them," is the warning issued by the Columbus Better Business Bureau.

"If you have sold your salary since July 5th to a firm charging 10 per cent interest for two weeks, or 240 per cent per year, the transaction is now void and they can't make you pay!

"If you have borrowed money by selling your wage, since July 24th, and your wife didn't sign that wage assignment, under the new law the wage assignment is void.

"If for such a wage assignment you are paying 10 per cent interest or discount for two weeks' use of the money, don't pay them! They can't collect in court!

"If companies securing loans from you under the above method threaten to cause you to lose your job, let the Better Business Bureau know and they will be glad to talk to your employer."

It is estimated that these salary buying firms have been taking out of Columbus approximately a half million dollars a year for several years from the industrial pay rolls at their interest rate of 240 per cent on loans.

Because of certain new laws now in effect the industrial worker does not have to pay the illegal loans.

THE RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 29:10-14; Ezra 1:1-6; Ps. 126:1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Happy Home Coming.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Second Chance.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a Fresh Start.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Historic Significance of the Return.

I. The Return Predicted (Jer. 29:10-14).

False prophets were flourishing in Babylon telling the people that they would speedily be restored to their own land. To counteract this the Lord moved Jeremiah to send a letter to the captives in Babylon (vv. 5, 6). In this letter he advised them to settle down and quietly pursue their regular callings of life, and not to be led astray by the false prophets (vv. 6, 7).

1. The length of the captivity (v. 10).

Their coming back was to be "after seventy years." From Daniel 9:2 it is clear that seventy years means a definite time. It dates from the time when the first company, among which Daniel was found, was taken captive.

2. Recovered by God (vv. 10-14).

God's purpose in the captivity was to cure them of their idolatrous practices. He assured them that when His purpose was accomplished He would visit them and convince them of His good purpose toward them.

II. The Predicted Captivity Fulfilled (Ezra 1:1-6).

1. The Proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4).

(1) This was not by accident, but that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled (v. 1). What God has promised He will do.

(2) By divine initiation (v. 1).

"The Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus." How this was done we do not know. Possibly Daniel brought to his attention the prophecy of Isaiah and Jeremiah (Isa. 44:28; Jer. 25:12).

(3) The content of the king's proclamation (vv. 2-4).

(a) "The Lord God of heaven hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (v. 2). This makes clear that he had some impression of God's hand upon him.

(b) Appeal to Jewish patriotism (v. 3). He invokes upon such as possess the national religious feeling, the blessing of God, and commands them to go and build the house of the Lord God.

(c) To lend assistance (v. 4).

Many of the Jews were established in business and therefore were not free to go. Many, no doubt, had lost their national spirit and were not anxious to go. All such were to lend friendly assistance with silver, gold and beasts.

2. The response to Cyrus' proclamation (vv. 5, 6).

The chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin and the priests and Levites presented themselves as willing to go. The company which returned was largely made up of representatives of Judah and Benjamin.

3. The royal favor (vv. 7-11).

Cyrus returned 5,400 vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem and put into the house of his gods. This was a great encouragement to every loyal Jew whose heart had been grieved over the profanation of these sacred vessels.

III. The Gladness and Rejoicing of the Returning Exiles (Ps. 126:1-6).

1. The proclamation of Cyrus as a dream (v. 1).

They recognized that their going back was through the favor of the Lord.

2. Their laughter and singing (vv. 2, 3).

They not only recognized the favor of the Lord upon them, but testified thereof in the hearing of the heathen round about them.

3. Their prayer for prosperity in the land (v. 4).

They were not only going back with the consciousness of the good hand of the Lord upon them, but were trusting Him for the fruitfulness of the land.

4. Sowing in tears (vv. 5, 6).

The seeds which they were to sow on the land were so precious that they seemed to have hesitated as to sowing, and yet they recognized that joy would follow their sorrow when they should bring in the sheaves of the harvest.

BRICKS FROM PAPER IS LATE INVENTION

Already we have paper fire buckets and paper car wheels, and now it appears that we may yet live in paper houses.

A Serbian sculptor, Yovan Peshitch, has invented an economical building brick made of paper and seven other ingredients, kept secret by the discoverer. Fire and water-proof, the material is said to be undamaged by nailing and to be suitable for use in one-story and two-story buildings.

In its astonishing use for fire buckets, paper is rolled into rope and pressed into shape. A coating of bright-red paint completes the bucket. Car wheels are pressed from a kind of paper known as calendered rye-straw board under a terrific force of 500 tons.

Circular sheets are made into wheels by being smeared with flour paste and pressed together into solid blocks. Steel tires and drop hubs are added, and the finished wheel shows a rigidity more than sufficient for heavy railroad service.—Thrift Magazine.

Defining Engineering

The following definition of "engineering," designed to be general enough to include the various branches, has been proposed by Col. P. E. Harbour, secretary of the Mining and Metallurgical Society of America: "Engineering is the judicious application of the technical sciences to the human solution of inanimate mechanical problems."

Steering Ships by Echoes

The fathometer is an instrument that measures the depth of water by timing electric echoes. This instrument enables navigating officers to pilot their course as accurately in darkness and fog as in daylight and clear weather.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

YARROW

IN MANY parts of this country and Canada the yarrow is used by young persons for purposes of love divination. The custom varies in different localities, but nearly all are accompanied by a rhyming incantation. One way is to pick a sprig of yarrow, put the stem up the nose and say:

Yarrow, yarrow, if he loves me as I love he,
A drop of blood I'd wish to see.

If blood appears the divinor is loved—otherwise not.

Another way is to place a sprig of yarrow under your pillow when, if your love is returned, the one you love will appear in your dreams. In England they say that in order to make this charm work, the yarrow must be gathered, in the case of a maiden, from a young man's grave. In folk-medicine yarrow is recommended for the ague, and it really does possess slight tonic and astringent qualities.

Just why the yarrow should be supposed to have power in matters of love divination is not very clear, but such power has been ascribed to it from the earliest times and is an outgrowth of northern mythology. The "young man's grave" in the English version of the yarrow superstition, the fact that in the older forms the yarrow plucked must be the first one found in the spring, and that in many of the formulas the idea of blood appears, makes it highly probable that the plant was in some way connected with Balder the Beautiful, the young Norse god who was slain by the blind god Hodur. Several points in Professor Frazer's work on the Balder myth tend to confirm this supposition.

IF JUST A WORD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF ANY little word of mine
Can make the day more fair,
If just a message, just a line,
Can ease the load of care,
If just a thought can bring you cheer,
When things are looking blue,
If just a word can do, my dear,
The things we think they do—

If any words that I can say,
However poor they are,
Can push a single cloud away,
Or light a single star,
If anything in any case
Can turn your skies to gold,
And make the world a better place,
This way that we are told,—

If any message I can send,
Or thought that I can write,
Can make you feel you have a friend,
One faithful friend tonight,
If any message that you scan
Can make your sky more clear,
The way that people say it can—
Then here it is, my dear!

(©, 1929, Douglas Malloch.)

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE DISLIKE TO WAIT

IT IS not pleasant to wait. We get impatient if a friend is late for an appointment, or if we have to wait very long at a railroad station. Time passes ever so slowly and not at all pleasantly. It makes us feel insignificant, as though our time were of no consequence.

The person who comes late offends the whole company because his act indicates that he regards himself as of more importance than any other member of the group. Hence if a celebrity is late he is forgiven, although he will be too polite to take advantage of this privilege.

Sometimes people are late for effect. This is especially true of political gatherings whose purpose is to land the candidate for office. It would never do for the "star shot" to get there on time and absolutely fatal to get there ahead of time. He is reserved for the psychological moment. This moment is preferably sometime after the meeting has started and several speeches have been made and everyone is pepped up for the great event. Then the high and mighty makes his appearance with due formality and everybody rises to give him a royal welcome.

We do not mind waiting under those conditions. But for anyone less than a celebrity, we dislike very much to wait. It hurts our pride and self-esteem.

Another reason we hate to wait is that an act once begun must be carried through to its logical conclusion or a dissatisfied state of mind is created. This is a fundamental fact in the working out of all our impulsive acts. To act when we are ready to act is pleasant; not to act or to have the act interrupted in any way is decidedly unpleasant.

Egg and Cheese Dishes

Uses For Egg Whites

A left-over white may be saved indefinitely. Keep it on a plate until it has thoroughly dried. Then scrape off the crystals that have formed and store them in a glass jar. 1 T of the powdered crystals dissolved in 2 T of water will equal one egg white. It will beat up perfectly.

Soufflé—3 to 4 whites.
White Layer Cake—4 whites.
Meringues—3 to 4 whites.

Nut Macaroons—2 whites.
Peanut Cakes—2 whites.
Surprise Cakes—3 whites.
Hazelnut Macaroons—6 whites.

Puffy Omelet For Six (Swedish)

4 egg whites beaten stiff and chilled a few minutes. Mix carefully 1 T flour, ¼ t salt, dash of pepper into 1 c milk and strain to remove possible lumps. Beat 4 egg yolks and add to milk mixture. Fold in the stiff whites without mixing too thoroughly, so portions of frothy whites remain floating. Pour into a hot, well greased pan, cook over very moderate fire until set and bottom starts to brown, then set pan under broiler flame or in oven to brown top. Fold and serve with creamed or fried potatoes, tomatoes, dried beef, bacon, sausages or mushrooms.

Plain Omelet

Beat yolks of 2 eggs, and add ¼ teaspoon salt and speck of pepper, 2 teaspoons butter, 2 tablespoons water. Beat whites stiff, but not dry, and fold in, pour into hot buttered pan and cook over low flame, then set in hot oven (350°F.) or under low broiling flame to brown top. Crease through the center and fold with crisp diced bacon between halves. Crisp bacon or dried beef may be stirred in also when mixing an omelet.

Scalloped Corn

1 can corn.
1 beaten egg.
¼ cup cracker crumbs.
Salt.
Pepper.
1 tablespoon butter.

If not enough liquid add about ¼ cup milk. Place in baking dish and bake in hot oven for thirty minutes.

Luncheon Bacon

Beat 1 egg thoroughly, add 1 tablespoon flour, and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Fry strips of bacon crisp and drain on brown paper. Dip strips in egg and flour mixture and drop back into hot fat until a golden brown.

Brown Potatoes

When you have a cup or two of leftover brown gravy from baked meats, place it in a baking dish with an equal quantity of hot water and an onion sliced fine. Pare and slice raw potatoes and place in the gravy, season well and cover. Bake till done. They are also good cooked in a heavy frying pan slowly about one hour.

Mother's Cook Book

Sidney Smith used to say, "that if it was his lot to crawl, he would, contentedly, if to fly, he would fly with alacrity." Nothing is so impregnable as gaiety and courage, and there are always a thousand reasons for being courageous.—Lucy Keeler.

HINTS FOR THE MOTHER

"INEFFICIENCY in women is as great a danger to the state as quackery in medicine." Quacks are few in number compared to poor home makers. It goes without saying that the mother who would train her daughters to become wise home makers, must first be one herself.

The lack of system in the average home is a great cause for wastefulness in money as well as in strength and time.

The woman who waits until the half hour before dinner to plan the meal is not in position to give her family a fair deal, from any standpoint. In these days of labor-saving devices, more autos, greater opportunities for leisure, the housewife must choose more carefully how she spends her time. Some one has said, "tell me how you spend your leisure and I will tell you what kind of a person you are."

Our schools are doing all that is possible to supplement the inefficiency in our poorer homes by the proper teaching and training of the girls and boys. Where bread and the preservation of life is the first consideration, and children often go hungry, the training of the children is bringing results. It is a very ignorant woman today who does not know what the principal food principles are and what is needed for a substantial meal.

Boys as well as girls are being taught the simple rules of preparing a good meal, how to sew on a button, or turn a screw, and that it does not make a boy less manly to be able to make a good cup of coffee or tea, prepare a crisp piece of toast, and cook an egg properly.

In our country schools much of this teaching is done during the noon hour where the children cook some part of their luncheon. In the home where the mother has all the work to do it is a necessity that even the little people learn to help. Infinite patience and repetition is the price of success, for it is far easier to do it one's self than to allow the small hands to bungle and often ruin things. But such is the way of learning, and the wise mother commends the child and encourages better work. Our boys learn very early that they must be home makers and earners. So, too, our girls should be taught that it is fully as necessary for them to learn how to spend wisely the money given them for the expenses of the home. When the proper training is given in youth, domestic difficulties will be reduced greatly, to the betterment of the whole nation.

Oddities of Gulf Stream

When the navy men head south for the winter their first concern is to get into the Gulf stream, which is the first indication of warm weather. The junction of this stream with ordinary sea water may be plainly recognized; in moderate weather the edges of the stream are marked by ripples; in cool regions the evaporation from the surface, due to difference between air and water, is apparent to the eye. The stream is a beautiful deep indigo-blue in color and carries with it a quantity of weed known as gulf weed, which is familiar to all who have navigated its waters.

What we can do for another is the test of powers; what we can suffer for is the test of love.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MAKING A CAREER

THERE are some artists who think that prizes and such things do no good in their profession.

In fact, one large body of American painters and sculptors, calling themselves "Independents" always announce their annual exhibition as "without a jury and without prizes."

But even those who believe in allowing the individual artist to make his own way without assistance would be rather stricken by the romance of Frank Schwarz, a starving boy of twenty, who had served in the camouflage service in the war, and was living from hand to mouth in New York until a short time ago.

There had been a knock at his door and he was holding a notice in his hand, telling him that he would have to give up his garret—he owed a month's rent, $12, which he was unable to pay.

Face to face with impending disaster he heard the postman's call in the street below.

More out of habit than in any hope, he dragged himself down the four flights of stairs to receive an official letter, notifying him that he had won the Prix de Rome, that he had given up all hopes of having come his way.

He rushed off to find the secretary of the American academy in Rome. Not only was it all true, but there was another happy shock for him.

Barry Faulkner, in charge of the Tiffany Foundation for Artists at Oyster Bay, had recommended that he be admitted to the summer course there, as an additional prize for his picture "A Tribute to Heroism."

So instead of the dreary grind in the East Nineteenth street tenement Italy and Rome with all their treasures were waiting for him.

The academy arranged for his passage and supplied him with a studio and living quarters abroad.

To show that there is some truth in the old proverb that it never rains but it pours, the father of young Schwarz arrived at the house almost as soon as the son had left it carrying a clipping from a newspaper.

The family had been separated for years and the announcement of the award was the first clew to put the other man, a waiter in a big hotel, on the track of the younger who had gone his way from the Middle West to make a career.

It all reads like an exciting moving picture story of art life. All the contrasts are there.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

COST OF CRIME

In a recent report of the crime commission of the American Bar association the statement is made that crime in the United States last year cost upwards of thirteen billion dollars. "Twelve thousand murders were committed, fifty times the number recorded in Great Britain. Thirty thousand criminals are at large in New York and ten thousand in Chicago." To visualize thirteen billion dollars is a severe tax upon the imagination. If it is a sum large enough to solve our problems of poverty if adequately distributed. No single individual fortune is of so large an amount. It is larger than the combined benevolent budgets of all our churches. It would go a long way toward creating moral prosperity if used for educational purposes.

L. A. Barrett.

Is the moral sentiment of the country at the breaking point? Why such flagrant disregard for moral values? Why is crime so rampant as to cost thirteen billion dollars? There can be but one answer. Disregard for moral values and disrespect for law. The moral security of a nation can rise no higher than the character of its citizens. Proper respect for law is a virtue. It can be attained only through struggle, enlightenment and education. Much money is spent annually for the punishment of crime upkeep of prisons, asylums, etc., but how much for organized efforts to prevent crime, to enlighten public conscience, to cultivate a deep and vivid appreciation of moral values? On the contrary far more money is annually spent for the punishment than for the prevention of crime.

Moral security, like international peace cannot be forced by legislation alone. There must be a status quo, a state of mind, a national conscience, a public opinion, a citizenship which not only desires but demands respect for law and obedience to moral norms.

Indifference to crime is our most serious national offense. We simply do not care. We leave the problem to the police force and the criminal courts. On the contrary the responsibility for the moral condition created by crime is chargeable direct to the individual citizen.

When we spend more money in cultivating, through organized efforts an adequate appreciation of moral values and respect for law, we shall spend less on punishment of crime and on meting out justice to criminals.

What Does Your Child Want to Know ?

Answered by BARBARA BOURJAILY

WHO TEACHES BIRDS TO BUILD NESTS?

A mighty force called INSTINCT
Tells them, both large and small,
To build their nests in springtime
And fly southward in the fall.

I owe all my success in life to having been always a quarter of an hour beforehand.—Nelson.

THROUGH DUSK OR DAWN

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAS God forsaken you, or you
Forgotten God a little while?
He did not promise all life through
That we should smile.
Is He a God, or is He none,
This God of yours? Or is He one
To praise in joy, to seek in pain,
To follow through the shining sun
And through the rain?

Yes, when He leads us through the vales,
Then shall we fail to follow Him?
The night is not all nightingales
And cherubim.
How poorly we esteem a friend
Who loves us only when we spend;
And what of those who turn aside
From God when pleasure's at an end,
Some joy denied?

I pray we have a better faith
Than just the faith of happy days—
To love through life, to love through death,
Through all our ways.
Just why we do not always know,
But if the vale's the path to do,
I hope that we shall follow on,
Yes, through the roses or the snow,
Through dusk or dawn.

FOR THE GOOSE—

ANYTHING you don't like about your life might be improved by marriage, except your relatives.

Forty per cent is all you ever know of any other woman's real inside mind and most of the time that's too much.

Any woman can be trusted to take better care of anybody else's health than her own.

MISS CUNNINGHAM WINS FIRST PLACE IN SINGING CONTEST

Hayes and Sattler Also Win Prizes at First Annual Playground Day

Miss Cleta Cunningham, 1410 East Livingston avenue, representative of the Kent-Gault playground, won first prize in the singing contest yesterday at Olentangy Park. Miss Cunningham competed with representatives of all the other city playgrounds.

Second place in the badger-pulling contest was won by Charles Sattler, 121 South 20th street, 19th and Rich playground. Charles Hayes, 1170 Oakwood, won three tennis balls in the prize drawing.

These three were the only ones from east side playgrounds to win prizes.

More than 20,000 children from two score playgrounds attended the first annual Playground Day from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. A light shower at the opening of the parade cut down the expected attendance slightly.

Free rides were given to the children on the Whip, Racer, Red Devil and Whirlwind. Athletic contests were held in the morning under the direction of the department of recreation. At 4 p. m. a harmonica contest and singing contest were staged at the open-air theater.

The pet parade was held in the evening.

Playgrounds were closed all day Thursday.

REV. COLLINS TO SPEAK BEFORE OHIO CONFERENCE

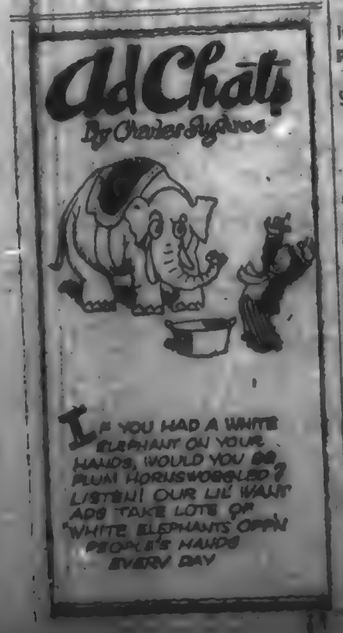
Rev. W. S. Collins, pastor of Wilson Avenue Church of Christ, will leave Sunday afternoon for Wilmington, Ohio, where he will lecture before the Young People's Conference of the Church of Christ.

Nine members of Wilson Avenue Church of Christ will also attend the conference which will last one week. Churches from southern and central Ohio will be represented at the Wilmington meeting. One hundred and fifty are expected to attend.

PULLING POWER DEMONSTRATED

The pulling power of Eastern Times Want Ads was again demonstrated last week when Mrs. W. S. Cook, 2558 Bryden Road, sold a girl's bicycle five hours after the Eastern Times came off the press.

Mrs. Cook ran the following ad:



FOR SALE—Girl's bicycle; good condition. 2558 Bryden Road. Fr. 5118.

Many people who use the want ads testify to their effectiveness. Considering bicycles alone, four have been sold during the past month through Eastern Times want ads.

MRS. COHEN DIES

Mrs. Sara Cohen, aged 75, mother of Mrs. Samuel Frank, 1711 Bryden road, was buried Tuesday at Dayton. She had been ill six weeks. Mrs. Cohen had made her home with Mrs. Frank for the past several years.

Two other daughters, Mrs. E. M. Gordon, Columbus, and Mrs. Samuel Chavelin, Chicago, 20 grandchildren, one great-grandchild, two brothers and a sister survive.

McClure-Nesbitt Builds Annex On Old Ticket Office Site

Fifty years ago muddy boots kicked open the swinging door of the little two-story red brick building at Kenton and Main. It was a saloon then and it continued to be a saloon until it was converted into a ticket office by the street car company.

Once upon a time, of course, the street cars came out east only as far as Champion avenue. Then in '91 the tracks were extended to Rose (now known as Kelton avenue), to meet the old Rose avenue car line, which ran between Main and the Driving park.

A decade later tracks were laid to the east edge of Columbus and still more recently they were extended through Bexley.

Horses trotted with their cars through the Main street dust or waded through the mud and one of their drivers was John L. Herbst, 74, 1380 East Mound street, who is now manager of the new ticket office at Oakwood and Main.

Then came the electric cars and the Sunday night excursion of the ladies and gentlemen in their gayest clothes on what would be called today a "slumming party." The open summer cars saw their day; closed cars were used the year 'round.

The old two-story red brick building with its yellow woodwork saw them all. It was recently torn down when the office was moved to Oakwood and Main street.

The McClure-Nesbitt Motor Company is building an addition to their present office and garage on the site of the old ticket office.

HIT SKIP VICTIM

Mrs. Louis E. Topper, 714 Seymour avenue, was cut and bruised when an auto in which she was riding, driven by her husband, was struck by a hit-skip driver at Lilley and Kent Thursday night. She was thrown from the car and was taken to Grant Hospital.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN DITCH CAVE-IN Two Killed, Two Narrowly Escape, When Excavation at James Pike Caves In.

Two laborers were crushed to death and two narrowly escaped the same fate Wednesday when a side wall of a sewer excavation at James pike and Main street caved in.

The victims are Angelo Capoccia, 23, and Charles Carpenter.

Capoccia's body, buried under several tons of earth was recovered within an hour. Carpenter's body, crushed against the wall by the slide, was removed before noon.

Both were working in the excavation for the county sanitary sewer. Jack Conis, contractor, declares that they had progressed with the work carefully and that the accident was unavoidable. The trench at the cave-in was about eight feet wide and fifty feet long.

In removing Carpenter's body the workmen had a difficult job. His head and face showed above the dirt. Workmen were forced to go slowly in extricating the body for a false move might mean a second cave-in from the treacherous wall.

Carpenter had been on the job only an hour and one-half. He came from Detroit seeking employment the early part of this week.

Cappocia was buried this morning from St. John the Baptist church.

BEXLEY CANDIDATES MUST FILE PETITION

Petition Carrying 25 Names Must Be In Hands of Board of Elections.

The present laws provide no primary elections for villages in this state and citizens who desire to hold village offices are required to file petitions bearing twenty-five or more signatures not less than sixty days prior to the regular election.

It has been the custom in order to stimulate public interest in Bexley for the mayor to call an informal public meeting for the purpose of making nominations. Nevertheless candidates so selected were still required to file their petitions with the Board of Elections.

Because of the large influx of new residents, unfamiliar with this mode of procedure and its purpose, as well as the difficulty experienced in securing a broad representation of the citizens of the village at this time of the year, Mayor Ludwig has decided to abandon this custom.

All Bexley citizens, therefore, who desire to become candidates for office at the Fall election are urged by the mayor to file nominating petitions before September 5, which is the time limit allowed by law.

REV. McRAE RETURNS

Fravel suffered severe head injuries. He was taken to Grant hospital.

Complete line of school books and supplies is in stock at the Eleanore Reddy Book Shoppe, 543 Drexel avenue.

The book shop has lists of the school books and supplies needed in the various grades of the Bexley public schools.

The purchasing of these books before the opening date of school may save a great deal of time inasmuch as it will not be necessary to wait in line with the large crowd which usually comes then.

After an absence of ten weeks in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francisco and their daughter, Miss Miriam Francisco, 55 South Columbia avenue, returned to Bexley this week. They arrived on the White Star liner Majestic.

ZIMMER WILL FILED

Albert W. Zimmer, 415 South Parkview avenue, killed Friday night in an auto accident near Lisbon, left an estate of $6,000, according to his will, filed in probate court.

His three children will share the estate, Albert W. Zimmer, of Kansas City; Robert E. Zimmer, 707 Roosevelt avenue, and Martha Elsie Zimmer, 415 Parkview.

The will provides that the division be made after the latter son has received $1,500 and the daughter $3,000.

PLAN TO WIDEN MAIN ST. FROM ALUM CREEK EAST

Work on Proposed Fifty-Foot Pavement May Not Begin Before Next Spring.

Actual work of widening Main street from Alum Creek to Big Walnut will probably not begin until next Spring, according to Engineer Harold Kennedy, who conferred with state, city and county engineers on the proposed plan.

Contracts for the work will be let this Fall, it is expected.

According to the plans adopted by the conferring engineers, the present 18-foot roadway would be widened to 50 feet and would accommodate five lanes of traffic.

The cost of the improvement will be carried by the state and county.

Later it is planned to widen the National road as far out as the east edge of Franklin county, about one mile east of Reynoldsburg.

A tentative agreement was also reached by the engineers that when East Broad street is widened it will not have a width of less than fifty feet.

A & P OPENS NEW BEXLEY GROCERY

New Food Market Opens Tomorrow — Replaces Old Store.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company will open a new modern food market at 2497 East Main street tomorrow.

The store will replace the one formerly located at 2501 East Main.

Only the most modern equipment has been installed in the new market in order to make it one of the finest A & P stores in the city.

There will be three distinct departments, one for fresh and cured meats, where cuts of beef, pork, lamb, and cold meats will be obtainable daily; another for fresh fruits, vegetables and produce, and a third and largest department for staples and fancy groceries.

The Atlantic & Pacific Tea company was the originator of the chain store idea, the first store being opened over seventy years ago in New York City by George Huntington Hartford, whose son is now active president of the company.

The first store specialized in teas, later coffee, spices, extracts, and other food articles were added.

The chain is today made up of 20,000 stores with forty food distributing depots located throughout the country. One of these depots is located in Columbus at the corner of Spring street and Dennison avenue.

The opening of this new store makes the second A & P store located in Bexley, the other being located at 2264 East Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Butcher and their daughter Jean, 400 South Drexel avenue, are in Bellaire, Michigan where they will remain two weeks as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Maire, Lima. WATCH THE TIPSTERS

Another warning against fake financial publications which come through the mails unsolicited and are followed later on the part of their operators to sell through long distance calls from New York what in most cases are highly questionable securities has been issued by the Columbus Better Business Bureau.

Don't be fooled by these tipster sheets which attempt to masquerade as legitimate security dealer operators.

"Before you invest—investigate." It is your privilege as a member of the public to consult the Better Business Bureau, without cost, on any contemplated investments so that you may more intelligently discriminate between the large amount of comparatively safe, worthwhile and necessary securities, and the smaller amount of questionable ones.

About the only headline we haven't seen above a Snook story is: "Local Boy Makes Good." Maybe the Lebanon papers are using it.

Now that the trial is over, we suppose all the newspapers have thrown away that sentence which was found in almost every story and that ran like this: Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Theora K. Hix, his coed paramour, maintained the iron nerve which won for him the rapid fire pistol championship of the United States.

We hear from authentic sources that Bob Ryder, who is convalescing in the heart of the Franklin Avenue Protective Association, has taken to radio. You know next to spinach, Bob liked radio best. Wouldn't be a bit surprised to hear he's eating spinach by this time too.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 25

REBUILDING THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 1:1-3; 3:10-13; 6:14-16; Psalms 84:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Rebuilding God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Rebuilding God's House.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Building God's House.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Builders of God's House.

After becoming settled in the towns surrounding Jerusalem, the people were called together for the purpose of establishing the worship of the Lord God. The leaders in this movement were Joshua and the priests, and Zerrubabel, the governor. In view of the fact that the clearing away of the debris of the old city and temple and the erection of the new temple would take a long time, an altar was erected where sacrifice might be offered at once unto God. Upon this newly erected altar were offered the regular sacrifices commanded by Moses, including those of the Feast of Tabernacles. (Ezra. 3:1-7).

I. The Foundation of the Temple Laid (3:8-13).

This was an auspicious occasion and was celebrated with most impressive ceremonies.

1. The priests' apparel (v. 10). These garments symbolized their consecration to the Lord's service.

2. The priests with trumpets (v. 10). The trumpets were used in calling together the people.

3. The Levites with cymbals (v. 10). This was according to the arrangement made by David (1 Chron. 15:16-21).

4. They sang together by course (v. 11). This means that they sang to one another responsively. The one company sang, "The Lord is good," the other responded, "For His mercy endureth forever."

5. Mingled weeping and sighing (vv. 12, 13). Some of the older men who had seen the magnificent temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed, wept much when they saw how far short the present foundation came of the former temple. Others were glad of the favor of God which had brought them back, and that a beginning was made in the new house of worship.

II. The Building of the Temple Hindered (ch. 4).

The leading adversaries were the Samaritans, a mongrel people—the offspring of the poor Jews who were left in Palestine and the foreign people who were sent into Palestine after the Jews were taken captive. The three perils which delayed the building of the temple for about fourteen years revealed the persistent methods which the enemy uses to hinder the program of God's people in every age.

1. An unintelligent pessimism (3:12).

Under the circumstances, a glorious beginning had been made. Many today, because things are not quite what they should be, do not go forward with a constructive program, but even hinder those who have the hopeful outlook. In spite of all the evil forces at work to thwart the purpose of God, the Christian church should push forward its program of evangelization.

2. Wordly compromise (4:2, 3)

"Let us build with you, for we seek your God." This is Satan's most common and effective method. God's children should not seek the world's patronage in building churches and carrying on His work. The leaders should declare with Zerubbabel, "Ye have nothing to do with us to build an house unto our God."

3. Opposition by word (4:4-24).

When refused a part in the work intimidation and political scheming were used by the enemies to defeat the building plan of God's people.

III. The Temple Finished (5:1-6).

Through the ministry of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, people were encouraged to resume enthusiastically the work of building the temple. When the temple was finished, it was dedicated to God.

IV. The Blessedness of Dwelling in God's House (Ps. 84:1-4).

1. The longing of the soul for God's house (vv. 1, 2).

It is refreshing when people long to meet God in His house.

2. The sparrow and swallow find protection in the sacred precincts of God's house (v. 3).

3. Dwelling in God's house (v. 4).

Those who have a heart for God find their chief delight in dwelling in His house.

Keep Going

Our new science of flying teaches us that a plane will not go down as long as it can go on. The birds have long known this and they fly. Keep going, believing, hoping, loving, and you cannot go under!

What Will the Master Say?

Will it matter at last whether you have been rich or just lived from hand to mouth? What will the Master say? Ah! that is the question.—Dr. J. R. Shaw.

Worship is giving, not getting; ascribing, not appropriating.

Dear Editor:

Editor of The Eastern Times:

A certain prominent resident of the East Side actually laughed the other day when reading the newspaper. He wasn't reading the so-called funny section, advice to the love lorn, or the arguments of the lawyers connected with the Snook case. The reason for the laughter was simply this: two taxicabs had smashed into each other, for a change.

It was an ancient custom in certain barbarous villages to mistreat strangers as much as possible. Columbus does the same thing by providing the stranger within the gates with all the terrors of the taxicab service under the auspices of the most reckless, law-defying set of smart-alecks that ever set foot on an accelerator. The present writer has been the victim of a dozen of the tribe during the summer, and has yet to ride with one who has not violated at least three traffic regulations per mile. The experiences of others attest to the propriety of the opinion of their merits indicated by these words. The New York taxi drivers may be thugs; the Chicago crowd may be adjunct distributors of "pineapples"; but the Columbus outfit would have made Dante write another canto for his "Hell."

Is the police force too stupefied by the Irish tourists in town or the lady drivers to appreciate the enormity of the situation? If one were to list the immediate reforms most necessary to the peace of mind of the citizens of this community, the taxicab situation ought to take one of the first places on the list—along with the banishment of the well-known voiceless baritone in one of the downtown theaters.

CLARENCE GOODES.

One coin in the empty money-box makes more noise than when it is full.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

SENSIBLE COMPLIANCE

WHEN you put up yourself in the morning mirror for a momentary look at your fine appearing face, quite satisfied, and perhaps a bit proud of what you behold, go a little farther if possible and look into your soul.

See if that, too, is beautiful, and as satisfying in every way as your beaming countenance and well proportioned body.

If you have shaved and layed on becomes a gentleman, or dabbed your nose and chin with the requisite amount of powder, as sanctioned by fashion, you feel that you are prepared for breakfast, and after that quite ready to sally forth on your customary forage.

And whether this be for work or pleasure, you will find after due consideration that if you wish to succeed in either, you must be sensible and comply with the wishes of those above you.

And especially is this true if you happen to be an employee, subject to powers over which you have no control, save that which is voluntarily given you because of your sane compliance with the voice that directs and delivers the final word.

To yield gracefully to the master is to take the first step towards becoming a master yourself.

The general began his career in the ranks; the editor climbed his way up from the rough-and-tumble station of cub reporter; the author started with the alphabet; the painter with the three primary colors and the musician with gamut.

Each one in his or her determined effort to get ahead first sought the key to unlock the door of fame. And each one found it in cheerful allegiance, loyalty, fealty and obedience to his or her superior, faithfully complying through storm and sunshine to authority.

You might as well try to sink a battleship in a tumblerful of water as to imagine that you can attain any worthwhile goal in life without submission to the guiding mind.

And the sooner this truth is accepted, the quicker you will find yourself respected and on the highway that those persons travel who habitually attend to orders.

If you are asked to carry a letter, carry it, and later in life you will be carrying a check-book, whose value no one may know but yourself. Sensible compliance in little things opens the way as certainly to leadership as do the showers and sunshine open the silvery spuis of flowers.

SEASONABLE THINGS

When ripe tomatoes are in their prime, prepare some of this delightful conserve to enjoy all winter.

Tomato Conserve.

Take five pounds of firm ripe tomatoes, peel and put on to cook with two pounds of sugar, three lemons cut in pieces, one cupful of citron. When thick add one cupful of walnut meats and one and one-half cupfuls of seeded raisins.

Veal Cutlets en Casserole.

Wipe the cutlets and season well with salt and pepper, dip in a beaten egg adding a tablespoonful of milk. Fry in butter until a rich golden brown, then place in a casserole and pour over a cupful of cream. Cook slowly for half an hour. Serve with the gravy from the casserole, adding more milk. Garnish with parsley.

Boiled Chocolate Pudding.

Mix five tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with two and one-third cupfuls of milk, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, mix well and cook until thick. Melt one and one-half squares of chocolate in three tablespoonfuls of boiling water, heat slowly and stir until smooth, then add to the cornstarch. Remove from the heat and fold in two well beaten egg whites and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Mold and serve well chilled with whipped cream.

Baked Onions With Cheese.

This makes a wholesome dish which may take the place of meat. Prepare enough onions to supply the family. Cook until tender and place in layers with a rich white sauce, sprinkled generously with a rich, soft cheese cut in bits. Have two layers of onions and two of the white sauce and cheese. Finish the top with the white sauce over the cheese. Bake long enough to heat through and serve hot.

WHY WE ARE INTERESTED

WE ALL have our pet interests. It may be politics, collecting stamps, physical culture, music, movies—anything.

Some interests are born in us, most of them are acquired through experience and training. In so far as anyone has a special gift for music, or drawing, or speechmaking, he is more than likely to take interest in these things. We are all interested in the things we can do well. It gives us a chance to express our true self and to earn the praise of our fellow men. These are two of the strongest motives in life.

The degree of interest is determined by the amount of ambition we have toward attaining some particular objective. If a man is bent on getting rich he will be most interested in those people and situations which he thinks aid him in his ambition.

It often happens that we undertake a task because we know it has to be done in order to get what we want, and before we realize it we become interested in the thing itself. A student may have no liking for books but is interested in getting his degrees which will enable him to secure the job he likes. So he studies hard to make good and ere long he finds his mathematics, English and psychology very fascinating. From then on he is a real student. He has acquired a new interest.

We are interested because we want certain results either as ends in themselves or as means to other ends, or both. The degree of interest we take depends on how much we desire the thing that interests us.

How It Started

THE "MACKINTOSH"

THE mackintosh has become so familiar an object in the household that we do not stop to think of its origin or how it came by its name.

The word designates not only a waterproof coat but the material of which it is made.

The mackintosh is a little over a hundred years old, the first one having been produced in 1823. It derives its name from the inventor, Charles Mackintosh of Manchester, and had its origin in his experiments with India rubber and cloth. Mackintosh material was produced by applying to cloth a solution of India rubber in coal-tar naphtha which resulted in absolutely waterproofing the material.

Charles Mackintosh lived from 1766 to 1843, long enough to see his invention put to practical purposes and to reap the rewards thereof. His name comes down to posterity with the bequest he left to modern industry.

DRIVER ASLEEP CAR IS WRECKED

Hit-Skipper Ducks Into Corn Field After Police Shoot Three Tires Flat

The car driven by Frank Raschig, chief engineer of the department of highways, was hit by a car driven by R. S. Lear, Thursday morning. Lear fell asleep while driving, police say. Lear suffered a broken nose. Both cars were badly damaged.

Bexley police saw fire streaming from the bottom of an auto and gave chase to warn the driver. Approaching closer they saw that the bumper was dragging and caused the stream of sparks. Just as they were about to return to the station another car drew up beside the law and identified the pursued car as that of a hit-skip driver who had just run from a crash at 18th and Oak.

Police began the chase again. The driver would not stop. Police shot five times, flattened three tires, and threw one tire from the rim. The driver, on Livingston by this time, pulled his car to the ditch and escaped in a corn field.

Mr. Dicky, proprietor of Bexley Inn, reported that burglars entered his restaurant through a rear window and stole one dollar in change.

George Conie was nabbed while driving 55 miles per hour and was turned over to Kuhn's court. He was charged with drunkeness.

Three bandits walked into the restaurant of Joseph Craft, 3580 East Broad street, and looted the cash register of $10 and escaped. Police say a delapidated auto was parked outside in which the outlaws escaped.

DIAL TELEPHONES TO BE INSTALLED

Fairfax-Evergreen Dial Exchange to Replace Present Franklin Manual System

Shortly after the first of the year the Ohio Bell Telephone Company will install the new Fairfax-Evergreen dial telephone exchange, located at 1415 Franklin avenue. The new exchange will succeed the present Franklin exchange serving the east end of Columbus.

As a part of the installation program, it is necessary to change the present 'phones from manual to dial system and to change the telephone number. Due to the magnitude of the program workmen are already making the dial addition to the manual telephones. The dial addition does not alter the operation or number of any phone—no change in operation will be made till the entire system is installed and the new phone books have been issued.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Company asks that residents permit tlephone workmen to enter their property.

New numbers will subsequently be assigned and will appear in the new telephone directory which will be delivered to all telephone customers in Columbus, on or about, March 1, 1930, and which will be incident with the change of service from manual to dial system.

VILLAGE OF BEXLEY HAS LOW TAX RATE

Rate Of $1.92 Lower Than That of Any Suburb of Columbus

The tax rate of Bexley was set for the coming year at $1.92 for every $100 of taxable property at a recent meeting of the County Budget Commission.

This is an increase of 7 cents over the rate last year. The increase is due to the additional State Tax levied for the new State Office building. The rate for this purpose is 11c on $100. Had it not been for this state tax Bexley's rate would have been decreased from $1.85, the rate last year to $1.81.

Bexley's tax rate at $1.92 is lower than that of other suburban districts and also lower than the rate of Columbus. The Columbus rate for the coming year is $2.30 and this may be increased by an additional levy of one mill in the election of November.

Grandview Heights is $1.98 but this village expects to increase its rate five mills after this additional millage is voted by the people in November. This will make a total rate for Grandview Heights, $2.48.

Upper Arlington's rate has been set at $2.09.

All Bexley Officials Agree to Run Again

COUNCIL APPROVES AIRPORT SIGN ON BEXLEY HI SCHOOL

City Hall Problem Hinges On Annexation Question

All present office holders of the village of Bexley will file petitions for re-election to office, it was agreed following the regular council meeting this week. All have consented to run again at what will be the final village election.

Candidates for re-election include: Mayor Stephen E. Ludwig; Samuel W. Roderick, clerk; Joseph Stein, treasurer; David Shadrack, marshal; E. B. Barnett, clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs; and the following councilmen: Robert J. Wheaton, Frank H. Bonnet, O. M. Manly, Samuel Betz, Allen I. Pretzman, and D. W. Kerr.

Approve Air Sign

Council approved the suggestion of the State Aeronautical Director, John M. Vorys, to install an air marker indicating the direction to Port Columbus. The tentative site suggested by the council is the roof of Bexley High School.

O. M. Manly, Samuel Roderick, and David Shadrack were appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the marker. The sign must be ten to twenty feet high and must be in place before sixty days.

Four markers were recommended by the Aeronautical Director, one marker is mandatory. Council decided one sign would be enough for Bexley considering its close location to the port.

City Hall

Rumors of plans for a new city hall were heard at the council meeting.

Whether the new city building will be erected depends on whether Bexley decides to become a separate city or be annexed to Columbus. In the latter case no hall will be erected.

Bexley will become a city after the 1930 census is taken. The population is now estimated at 8,000. Eight years ago it had but 1,900. A dozen representative Bexley citizens are studying the problem which Bexley faces next year—annexation or independence. They will make a report next year.

Doubles Approved

Harley E. Peters, village solicitor, was authorized to aid an amendment to the zoning ordinance, allowing the erection of doubles on the north side of Ruhl avenue from Cassady to Stanwood. Owners voluntarily agreed to live up to the building code in the erection of doubles. The amendment is to be presented for approval at the next meeting.

Harold Kennedy, village engineer, and Harley Peters were authorized to draw up an agreement permitting the Ohio Bell Telephone Company to install a new conduit on the North side of East Broad street.

The conduit will be placed underneath the present parkways, it is planned. The village reserves one conduit for its own use.

Estimates Signal Cost

R. J. Wheaton and Chief of Police Antle were instructed to get an estimate of the cost of installing a police signalling system consisting of lights and phone boxes.

Chief of police Antle was also instructed to take advantage of Chief Franch's offer which provided that Bexley police might attend the police school conducted for new members of the Columbus Police Department.

Council accepted two recommendations of the zoning committee to allow Joseph J. McCarthy to erect a chimney one foot over the extension line specified by the zoning ordinance on lot 57 Bexley Heights. A similar request was granted to T. E. Brand on lot 194 Ardmore.

Three ordinances were passed for the installation of sanitary sewers in the vicinity of Bexley Park and Brentwood road. The entire cost except one-fiftieth, is to be assessed in proportion to the benefits derived from the sewer.

A special assessment will be levied for the lighting of Stanwood avenue to Maryland.

The telephone poles on the east side of Pleasant Ridge will be moved to the curb line.

PREPARATION FOR COLLEGE EMPHASIZED BY BEXLEY HIGH

Parents who are interested in having their boys and girls prepare for entrance into some particular college or for the College Entrance Board examinations should confer with the school authorities as soon as possible

Special emphasis will be placed upon the work aimed at college entrance. Bexley High school is on the Accredited List of the North Central Association of Colleges which means that its graduates may enter, on certificate, any college or university in the middle west.

The High School has certificate privileges with Cornell, Dartmouth and Williams College in the east. The other large Colleges in the east require the passing of the College Entrance Broad Examinations, no matter from what preparatory school a student graduates.

Provision will be made for students who wish to make any special preparation for the colleges of their choice.

CAPITAL U. OFFERS EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

Capital University has adopted a system of supervised student employment. Any Bexley resident wanting a student for any kind of work, can get one by calling the Employment Bureau, FR. 5747.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 1

THE RETURN OF THE SECOND GROUP OF EXILES TO JERUSALEM

GOLDEN TEXT—The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek Him.
LESSON TEXT—Ezra 7:1-8:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Prayer Helps.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prayer and Providence.

I. The Leader—Ezra (7:1-10).

1. Who he was (vv. 1-6).

(1) A priest (vv. 1-5). He was from the line which was to stand between God and the people, a descendant of Seraiah, the chief priest who had a lineage back to Aaron. The leader of the first company was Zerubbabel, a sort of military governor. The great need now was for a religious leader, for the people had gone far from God.

(2) A ready scribe (v. 6).

He was a teacher of the law of God. A scribe's training began at thirteen years, but he did not enter upon his official duties till thirty years of age, giving him seventeen years of training.

2. His high ambition (vv. 7-10).

(1) He set his heart to seek the law of the Lord (v. 10). He definitely set out with the purpose to know God's word. No one who purposes in his heart to seek the law of the Lord can fail.

(2) He set his heart to obey the Lord (v. 10).

He was not only concerned with knowing God's word, but obeying it. God's word cannot be known in its fullness by the intellect; it must be experienced.

(3) He set his heart to teach in Israel God's statutes and judgments (v. 10). He not only had a love for God's word, but a desire to implant it in the hearts of others.

II. Ezra's Commission (7:11-26).

Artaxerxes, the king, gave him a copy of the decree, authorizing him to lead a company back to Jerusalem. This decree empowered him;

1. To collect funds (vv. 15, 16).
2. To levy tribute (vv. 21, 22).
3. To appoint magistrates and judges (v. 25).
4. To execute penalties (v. 26).

For this great favor Ezra lifted his heart to God in thanksgiving (vv. 27, 28).

III. The Company Which Returned (8:1-20).

The company was comparatively small—only seventeen hundred and fifty-four males, but including women, children and servants there were perhaps six or seven thousand people.

IV. Ezra's Prayer and Fasting (8:21-23).

The first thing that Ezra did was to seek God's guidance. All Christians, as well as leaders of the people, should seek divine guidance and help in every new undertaking. No success can be realized without His help and blessing. The reason Ezra sought the Lord's help was that as far as possible he desired his mission to be free from human dependence. He did not minimize the dangers attending his journey, but since he had assured the king that the hand of the Lord would be upon all for good who sought Him, he was now ashamed to ask the king for a military escort to protect them from the marauding Arabs. His desire was to prove to the king the reality of God's helps, for God's honor among the heathen was at stake. This was a real test of faith, but God was faithful.

V. The Successful Journey (8:24-32).

God heard their prayer. The treasure entrusted to them was great. Perhaps the entire value of money and sacred utensils was about five million dollars. For a small caravan carrying such an amount of money to go through a country infested by robber bands was most perilous, but Ezra knew that God was able and would protect them. Observe:

1. Care and honesty (vv. 24-30).

The money was weighed unto them at the start and was to be weighed when turned over to the authorities at Jerusalem. The incentive to honesty and strict accounting of the trust was that they were holy men and were entrusted with that which was holy because it belonged to God. Most exacting care should be exercised in handling the Lord's money.

2. Their safe arrival (vv. 31, 32).

Some four and one-half months were required to make the journey. God brought them safely to their destination, thus proving that He is faithful to those who put their trust in Him.

God's Answer Not Always Yes

A little girl had been invited to a picnic party. Being a devout little girl, she prayed for fine weather and a happy time. But on the morning of the day the skies were gray and rain fell heavily. Instead of roaming in the fields she stood looking out on a drenched landscape. "You prayed for fine weather, dearie," said her mother, "and God hasn't answered your prayer, has He?" "Oh, yes. He has, mother," came the apt reply, "and He has said 'No.'"

A company of 24 entertained by Mrs. Homer Z. Bostwick, 2546 Bexley Park road, Wednesday at the Columbus Country Club.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

L. A. Barrett.

IN SPITE of numerous signs warning the automobilist of danger, and other devices used for the purpose of preventing accidents, a large number occur daily, many of which seem unnecessary and could have been prevented. A study of the cause of these accidents will doubtless assign, as the chief reason—modern speed. It goes without saying that an automobile driven at fifty miles an hour hazards more risks than one driven at thirty-five miles an hour. The interesting fact, however, is that, in a majority of cases, speed alone is not the most important factor involved. It may be that, but other more serious causes are responsible—among them, one's refusal to consider the other person's privileges or his point of view. If one could always know exactly what the person coming in the opposite direction was going to do, many of the accidents would be averted. Disregarding the other man's rights; or, the sheer determination to beat him at a turn; or, some similar attitude of mind places life at serious hazards.

This fact holds true not only in automobiling, but is one of the basic principles, which if enthusiastically followed, will save many of the failures and misunderstandings in life. What is the other man's point of view? How does he interpret the situation involved? Every salesman knows, all too well, that the first requisite in making a sale is a correct understanding of his customer's point of view. When he has succeeded in securing that, it is comparatively easy to transact business. Two persons cannot do business together any more than they can live happily together if each speaks a different language. "Shall two walk together, except they have agreed?" Two persons may have exactly the same idea, but when each misunderstands the other in the interpretation of that idea, strife may supplant friendship. It is one thing to do a good act; it is quite another thing to know just how to do it. The latter is possible only when we understand the heart and mind of the other person. It is not so much what you say as the way you say it that gets your message across.

Study your problem from the point of view of the other person. Put yourself in his place, and you will discover not only that a mutual understanding is more easily obtained, but also that your problem has already been at least two-thirds solved.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOSE INTEREST

WE GET interested, but we don't stay interested. We lose interest either temporarily or permanently, taking on new interests and casting them off as wornout clothes. Some interests hold us longer than others.

The reasons for losing interest are fatigue and saturation. We lose interest because we become tired in body and mind and cannot hold our attention on the interest. As much as children love to hear stories, they sometimes get so tired that they lose interest and fall asleep.

True fatigue causes the loss of interest in the economy of health. It is also true that loss of interest due to being fed up on the thing causes false fatigue. Often we think we are terribly tired when in reality we are merely disinterested. We are tired of the thing we are doing and assume that the whole body is tired. We say, "that makes me tired," or "he makes me tired," when we mean that the thing or person referred to does not interest us.

Some interests we lose permanently because our tastes are changing. We grow away from the thing that once held us firmly. Darwin, for example, testifies that after thirty years of research in animal and plant specimens in support of his famous theory of evolution he suddenly discovered that he had lost his interest in literature.

Here is a curious thing in the matter of losing interest. We lose interest if we overindulge in a thing and get fed up and tired if not actually disgusted. On the other hand, we also lose interest if we neglect the thing so that it dies of disuse. To keep up an interest in anything, it seems necessary to indulge moderately and at rather frequent intervals.

OLD APPLE TREES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Old apple trees grow tired of bearing.
Young apple trees are always wearing
Blossoms in spring, and fruit in fall.
Old apple trees grow tired of all
The plucking, plucking, and not caring.

I wish that some old apple tree,
Some harvest season, this could see!
Some mortal kneeling on the sod,
Thanking the tree, and thanking God,
For all the apples that there be.

Old apple trees grown tired of bearing;
Old horses weary of the wearing
Of ancient harness; even men
Weary a little now and then
Of all the taking and not caring.

I wish some night that some old sire
Would find youth grateful for the fire,
The table, and the roof, and all.
Perhaps old trees less soon would fall,
Perhaps old hearts less soon would tire.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

CROWS BIRDS OF ILL OMEN

THE raven and the crow are so nearly related that they are frequently called by the same name and for all superstitious purposes are one bird. In all parts of the world, from time immemorial, the crow—or raven—has been regarded with a superstitious dread. The Australian aborigine, the American Indian, the German peasant, the farmer of old England and of New England, hear in his raucous voice a warning of death or misfortune.

This universal superstition with regard to the crow can evidently have its origin in no mythological association. The various and widely separated races which entertain it prove that it springs entirely from the physical characteristics of the bird—its black gloomy color and its harsh and threatening voice—characteristics naturally calculated to inspire the primitive mind with a sense of foreboding. Added to this is the crow's character as a crop destroyer and his general actions as if he were an enemy of man.

The superstition is merely one arising from an association of ideas with facts apparently symbolic of those ideas, a process natural to the primitive mind now and always. It is true that in Norse mythology the raven was the attendant bird of Odin and ravens flew screaming before him when the god went forth to war. But the assignment to this position was entirely on account of those characteristics which in lands that new knew Odin made the crow a harbinger of evil to the superstitious.

East Side and Bexley Schools Start Work

Slight Increase In Enrollment Noticed as Public Schools Begin Regular Classes

SIX THOUSAND PUPILS REGISTERED

East Main Street School Reports a Considerable Decrease in Its Kindergarten Enrollment

Six thousand strong, pupils of the East Side and Bexley schools thronged the eleven schools in the district and by Friday were working at their tasks in an accustomed manner. The organization in both Bexley and Columbus schools was so perfected that by Wednesday morning classes were being conducted without an interruption.

The enrollment on the second day of school of Bexley High School was 368 as compared with 308 on the second day of last year.

This is an increase of 60 or approximately 17%, the highest number of students that have ever been in Bexley High School at one time.

The new students have moved into Bexley during the summer vacation. They came from the city high schools, and also from the Columbus Academy and the Columbus School for Girls. A few of them have come from schools outside of Ohio.

The senior class has been increased by the addition of six or eight new students.

The Bexley grade school reports an enrollment of 230 students, a number approximately equal to last year's figure.

The Cassingham school enrollment totals 366, which figure is slightly higher than that of last year.

To Organize Choir

Bexley High school opened the school year by having an assembly program in the high school auditorium. Mr. Kent Morse directed the assembly singing. Lillian Levin played two violin solos. Mr. Dieterich conducted the devotional exercises and made some announcements as to the plans for the school year.

He stated that it is the plan of Mr. Morse to organize a chapel choir which will lead the students in their assembly singing. The best voices of the high school will be chosen for this choir.

Mr. Dieterich also stated that greater emphasis will be placed on scholarship and on the preparation for entrance into college than ever before. Ninety per cent of the graduates of 1929 are planning to enter college this fall.

College Day

Next Monday morning, there will be a chapel program given in the interest of the graduates who plan to enter college this month.

All of the former graduates are invited to be present. Members of the Alumni Association will give a program which will consist of music and brief talks. One of the numbers will be a brief address by Hugo Spats on his recent visit to West Orange, New Jersey, where he represented Ohio in the National Edison Contest.

After the conclusion of Mr. Dieterich's announcements, Mr. R. E. Kessler, principal of High school, gave detailed directions to the students for the organizing of the high school. The new teachers and new students were introduced in the beginning of the program.

Increase On East Side

Slight increases in enrollment were reported for most of the East Side schools, while three schools had approximately the same number as last year. These figures are explained by the fact that the thickly populated condition of the East Side leaves very little room for expansion.

East High has 860 students, which figure is slightly less than last year, but the enrollment is expected to increase considerably.

Champion Junior High reports an enrollment of 506, which is similiar to last year's number.

Franklin Junior high has at present about 700 students but final enrollment is expected to exceed last year's figure.

Elementary and Junior high pupils at Roosevelt totaled 960.

Elementaries Increase

All the elementary schools show a slight increase over last year's total. Fair avenue has 410; Fairwood, 574; East Main street, 367; and Ohio Avenue, 610.

Helen Saile is substituting in grade 3-A at Fairwood in place of Sara Haswell, who is ill.

The Main street school reports that kindergarten enrollment is much lower than last year.

Mrs. Leslie Wakefield, 588 Wilson avenue, has begun her work as new president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Ohio avenue school.

WORK BEGUN ON P. O.

Workmen have been excavating for the past week on the site of the new Bexley postoffice which will be located on Drexel avenue near the corner of Main and Drexel.

The postoffice will be completed some time in October.

BOWLING LEAGUES READY FOR SEASON

Leagues on the east side are lined up and ready to start the season Monday, at the Miller and Main recreation center.

Only a few vacancies are left on the bowling schedule.

The schedule for the coming week is as follows: Monday, East End Church League Tuesday, Chevrolet Dealers; Wednesday, Latimer Stevens Thursday, Eastern League; Friday, East End Business Men.

JITNEY DINNER

A jitney dinner will be given Thursday evening, September 12, by Group No. 12 of the Bexley Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. I. C. Christian, 312 South Ardmore, is chairman of the group.

KAUBER APPOINTED COACH

Al Kauber, 1791 East Main street, a June graduate of Capital University, has accepted the position as coach at the Ashville High School.

Mr. Kauber will have charge of all athletic activities. He will also be an instructor in gymnasium and mathematics.

While a student at Capital, Al was a member of the football and basketball teams for three successive years.

GIRL IS INJURED WHEN CARS CRASH

Evelyn Cremeans, 3714 Elm street, was slightly injured when a truck, driven by Ed Blakely skidded across Main street at Plainview and collided with her car.

Miss Cremeans was on her way to Bexley High school where she is employed as secretary to Superintendent Dieterich.

Both cars were completely wrecked. The truck driver and his companion were arrested by Officers Bradfield and Shadrach on the charge of driving while intoxicated.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE BEGINS AT BEXLEY HI

Football practice began immediately with the opening of the Bexley High school. Forty boys responded t othe first call, and more are expected to turn out.

Coach Smith is greatly pleased with the enthusiasm of the candidates and expressed the belief that Bexley High will have another good year in spite of the fact that there are only three or four letter men from last year.

REPAIR BRIDGE FLOOR

The Livingston avenue bridge will be closed for three weeks while a new floor is being laid. The old floor which has been in bad condition for years is being replaced by a concrete floor supported by steel girders.

Bexley Library Goes To New Main St. Site

The Bexley Public Library is being moved from its present quarters in the High School Building to the new site on East Main Street directly opposite Cassady avenue.

The Library is a one-story stone structure and is built on property leased from Capital University.

The main entrance opens into a marble tiled gallery, beyond which is the delivery room with central charging desk.

The adult reading room is located on the east side and is well lighted by many large windows. French doors open on to a large porch at the rear of the library. This room contains books of general interest to all readers.

On the west side the corresponding room is the children's reading room. Tables and chairs suitable for children, and a wide fireplace add to the charm of this room.

The stack room is located behind the delivery room and is equipped with tables and chairs for those who wish a quiet place for study.

A well-equipped workroom and librarian's office complete the plan of the main floor.

The library, which has been serving both as a public and school library, has been overcrowded for a long time, but the circulation has steadily increased. During the months January to July, 1929, very nearly as many books have been circulated as in the entire year of 1927. The library has 2,700 borrowers, while the book stock is numbered at 10,700.

Besides the main library there will be branches in the High school, the Cassingham school and the Bexley grade school for the use of the students.

Others connected with the building are: Perle P. Baughman, general contractor; Miller Reeves, architects; Steel Plumbing Co.; Bohl and Mohlenauer, interior decorators; Diehl Office Equipment Co.; and Superior Electric Company.

The Building Committee of the Library Board is composed of Mr. H. C. Dieterich, chairman, Mr. E. P. Tice, and Dr. C. V. Sheatsley. Other members of the board are Dr. Sidney E. Sweet, president, Mrs. Howard Brightman, Mrs. Hugh Bone, Mrs. Fritz Lichtenberg.

The library is under the direction of Mrs. Sarah H. Bilby, and assistants Miss Ruth E. Laudahn, Miss Dorothy L. Hayes and Miss Audrey Knowlton.

BEXLEY TEACHERS HOLD MEETING

Superintendent Dieterich Talks On Chief Duties Of Teachers

The Bexley teachers held the first general meeting of the school year of 1929-30 Monday afternoon. Superintendent Dieterich addressed the teachers on this occasion.

After making some detailed announcements concerning the year's work, he discussed the aims and purposes of the schools in Bexley.

"One of the chief duties of the schools is the giving of opportunities to every boy or girl to develop his or her own individuality to the highest degree and to prepare himself or herself for a life of useful citizenship," he said. "These opportunities should be given to all alike.

"The aim of the school should be to bring about desirable changes in the boys and girls who attend them. These changes can be brought about by giving knowledge of real importance, by developing useful skills, by promoting right attitudes and inculcating high ideals, by formation of right habits, by the promotion of real thinking by the solution of problems.

He said that these things can be done: by the cooperation of parents, teachers and students, by providing adequate building and equipment, by the employment of experienced and trained teachers, by a high type of instruction in the classroom.

In his talk he referred briefly to his trip to the National Education Association held in Atlanta in June.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

THE GOLDEN RULE

CONFUCIUS, by his teachings endeavored to assure peace and prosperity to the empire of China. He proclaimed a golden rule which was, "Whatsoever you do not wish done to you, do it not to another." If you do not want to be robbed, do not steal. If you do not want to be murdered, do not kill. In other words, let everybody alone and they will let you alone. You will receive just what you give. This negative precept, which was the spirit of all the teachings of the sage of China, failed to bring a national security sufficient to assure the prosperity and peace Confucius so greatly desired. In the very nature of the case it could not, for it advocated "isolation" as the most important principle of life.

L. A. Barrett.

Any theory of life that is to stand the test of time and bring ultimate peace and prosperity must be positive and not negative in character. We have such a philosophy of life taught by the World's Greatest Teacher whose golden rule was just the opposite of the one by Confucius. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." If you wish to receive kindness, express kindness to others. "Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

A rule of life applicable to individuals is likewise applicable to communities and to nations. In our international relations for many years we have been struggling for peace. We fought the greatest war in modern times thinking we would attain it, but we discover that we do not possess it. The experiences encountered in this struggle have taught us some lessons. Certainly we discovered that peace cannot be obtained by any rule or contract which eliminates human relations. A negative attitude toward life will never assure peace. "Do not fire at an enemy if you do not wish to be fired upon," will never bring peace. We have been endeavoring to have peace by spending large sums upon armies and navies with no definite result. Why not try a theory of life which was advocated by the world's greatest teacher? Why not emphasize in our international attitude the same spirit we wish expressed toward ourselves? Suppose we spend less upon preparations for war and more upon methods that will bring about a feeling of good will. Why not substitute for a negative attitude a constructive program that will remove suspicion and stimulate mutual trust, confidence and dependence? If half the money spent upon armaments had been spent upon creating good will we would have had an international peace long ago.

Lesson for September 8

NEHEMIAH REBUILDING THE WALL OF JERUSALEM

GOLDEN TEXT—The people had a mind to work.
LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 2:1-7:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Working Together.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Working Together.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Teamwork.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Co-operation in Religious Work.

In order to prepare to teach this lesson the teacher should master the contents of the book of Nehemiah.

Nehemiah was a cupbearer to the Persian king. While performing his official duty he learned of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem. The walls of the city were broken down, its gates burnt, and the remnant of the captives were in great affliction. This news brought by his brethren greatly moved Nehemiah. He sat down and wept and mourned several days, fasting and praying before God. In answer to his prayer he was granted a leave of absence from the Persian court, and credentials from the king. He journeyed to Jerusalem and made a survey of the city by night without disclosing his purpose to anyone. Having thus obtained first-hand information, he called the representatives of the Jews together and said, "Let us build the walls of Jerusalem."

I. Preparation for the Building (chap. 3).

The division of labor in this project displayed Nehemiah's administrative ability. A wise distribution of labor makes difficult tasks easy. Observe some outstanding features of this great work:

1. Stress laid upon indifference (v. 5).

In administrative tasks it is proper that unfaithfulness should be pointed out as a warning to the unfaithful and encouragement to the faithful.

2. Help rendered by the women (v. 12).

Perhaps Shallum had no sons to aid him.

3. Stress laid upon earnestness of some (v. 20).

Recognition of fidelity will spur one to faithfulness.

4. Every one built over against his own house (vv. 10, 23, 28).

No incentive for exertion is quite so strong as that which concerns one's own family.

5. Certain guilds of men undertook certain work (vv. 8, 31, 32).

II. Hindrances Encountered (4:1-6:14).

1. Scoffing of Sanballat and Tobiah (4:1-6, cf. 2:19, 20).

The oppressors of God's servants frequently begin by hurling ridicule.

2. Conspiracy for a sudden attack (4:7-9).

When the enemy saw that the work was actually succeeding they changed from ridicule to an attempt to throw the workmen into a panic.

3. Conspiracy with the Jews (4:10-23).

They sought to hinder by inducing the Jews who were outside to discourage their brethren by the claim that the task was hopeless and that they were liable to sudden and secret attack.

4. Greed and oppression of the rich (5:1-13).

The Jews of that day, like the profiteers of our day, took advantage of the poor and oppressed them, so that they mortgaged their land and even sold their daughters into slavery.

5. Scheme to take Nehemiah's life (6:1-14).

When Sanballat and Tobiah failed in every other way they sought by craft to get Nehemiah away, that they might kill him.

III. The Wall Completed (6:15-7:4).

So energetically did they pursue their tasks that in fifty-two days the wall was completed. We may learn from this:

1. That though God's children are beset by enemies, they should not fear.

2. That when beset by enemies, we should pray (4:9).

Their faith was accompanied by wise precaution.

(a) They set a watch (4:9).

(b) Men were permitted to be with their families (4:10), and would thus fight better.

(c) Half worked and half watched, all armed for battle.

(d) They worked with sword in one hand (4:17).

(e) They slept in their clothes in readiness (4:23).

Prayer and faith are not slothful or inactive.

Mrs. Ruth Heim Schramm, 31, wife of Edward Schramm, editor of the Lutheran Standard, Ohio Synod paper died Thursday at her home, 840 College avenue, following an illness of three years. Mr. Schramm was formerly Professor of Bible at Capital University. A son, William E. Schramm; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Heim of Columbus, and a sister, Mrs. Winfield Scott, also survive. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1:30 p. m. at the residence and at 2:30 at St. Marks Lutheran church, Fifth and Dennison avenues. Burial will be at Memorial Burial Park.

Through a Woman's Eyes

by Joan Neyton

HUBBY'S GOOD POINTS

A PSYCHOLOGIST, speaking on that important matter of getting along with people, says that we should "bring out each other's centers of attraction and not harp on the areas of repulsion."

That's so true that it's worth reducing to plain language, and it means simply this: In everybody we know we find centers of attraction and areas of repulsion—the things we like about them and the things we don't—usually the things we have in common with them and those in which we are not sympathetic; in other words, perhaps those matters on which they agree with us and those on which they do not!

Now, if there are sufficient "centers of attraction" to make us like them, then we want to get along with them—husbands included. And the way to get along with them is to bring out their "good points," so to speak.

What the psychologist means by bringing out centers of attraction and not harping on areas of repulsion is just this: If you marry a man who shares your taste for books, but has a positive aversion to music, make the most of your common interest, but don't drag him to highbrow concerts. If your husband is a perfect lamb except at the card table, where slight provocation drives him into a violent temper, it would be wise, unless you are an expert and could not possibly give him cause for irritation to avoid being his partner at bridge. If he is the kind of man who can't be a passenger in an automobile without seeing faults in every move the driver makes, particularly if that driver is his wife and the car is his own, a wise woman would do her driving when he is not in the car.

If anyone dares to remark that this advice is merely affirming the obvious, that all that I have mentioned is only common sense and the situations such that only a fool would take the course which is sure to make trouble for herself—then I call upon the thousands of women who constantly find themselves doing just that to stand up and defend me! There seems to be an evil jinx that leads many wives into deliberately creating situations that will bring out the worst side of their husbands' natures, or anyway what the psychologist calls the "areas of repulsion," that emphasize the differences in their tastes or viewpoints or dispositions, so causing friction where there might be harmony and creating reefs and shallows for their marriage ship.

Mother's Cook Book

Being a parent used to be one of the most simple, natural and inevitable developments in the world. But nowadays, one has no business to be married, unless, sleeping and waking, one is conscious of the responsibility.—Abraham Flexner.

THE SCHOOL LUNCH BOX

FOR many weeks in the year some mothers find the lunch box for the children is an added burden to the morning duties. Milk and sandwiches are the usual wholesome contents of the child's lunch box. But sandwiches may become very monotonous, if the fillings and breads are not varied.

Dried fruits offer a change from routine fillings and they combine well with peanut butter, cream cheese and cottage cheese and the sandwiches keep fresh and moist longer than those with drier fillings.

The special sandwich loaf is a convenience, as all the slices are the same size. In using the home made loaf, care must be taken to put together adjacent slices or they will not fit. All bread should be at least twenty-four hours old to cut easily. Many like to spread the butter on the loaf, then cut. Whole wheat bread, graham, bran and steamed brown breads combine well with dates, raisins and figs in the filling.

Have a bowl of softened butter, that is, butter which has been allowed to stand in a warm room to soften, or which has been creamed. If the rounding loaf of home made bread is used, spread the loaf with the butter, and the next slice with the filling. It is far better to leave the crusts on bread given children as they need both the browned crusty edges because of their wholesomeness and it promotes the chewing habit which is so vital to healthy teeth and gums as well as good digestion. The following are a few fillings using the date which will be found most agreeable to the children:

Date and Cheese Sandwiches.

Take one-pound loaf of bread which will cut into twenty-four slices. Use one cream cheese or half cupful of cottage cheese. To the cream cheese add one to two tablespoonfuls of cream. Cut twenty-four dates into quarters lengthwise, spread one slice of bread with softened butter and the next with cheese. Into the cheese press four of the quarters of dates, cover with the buttered slice.

Cream cheese with candied or maraschino cherries in the same amount as the dates, makes a very tasty sandwich.

ELLA'S Cook Book

An exclusive feature for Eastern Times readers consisting of articles and recipes from The Home Dietitian, new recipe book published by Ella Mae Ives.

Readers are welcome to call Mrs. Ives, LAwndale 4019, at any time, concerning household matters.

Mrs. Ives also broadcasts every Tuesday over WAIU.

Picnic Reminders

When ready to spread a picnic lunch have you ever discovered that you had forgotten to bring spoons, salt, coffee, or something equally essential?

The following lists may help in "checking up" or selecting all that is needed for various kinds of picnic lunches, and also furnish suggestions for a cariety of menus.

Equipment

Plates, cups, glasses, knives, forks, teaspoons, serving dishes, large knife, large fork, pancake turner, serving spoons.

Campstove or wire rack, broiler or toaster, frying pan or stew kettle, coffee pot or pan and strainer, pail, pitcher, or thermos jar, matches, and newspapers, kindling and charcoal, asbestos mittens, vacuum freezer, long pointed sticks or wire, antiseptic for wounds or burns.

Towels, soap, corkscrew, bottle opener, tablecloth, napkins, flashlight, first aid kit.

Food Supplies

Bread, butter, cream, sugar, salt, pepper, coffee, milk, iced drinks, catchup, mayonnaise, mustard, peanut butter, jelly.

Meat—bacon, eggs, weiners, steak, fish, etc., chops, fowl, game, cheese, lettuce, fruit — bananas, melons, peaches, etc.

Radishes or onions, cookies or cake, sandwiches or sandwich spreads, tomatoes, pickles or olives, raisins or chocolate, nuts or cracker jack, potato chips.

Salad: fruit, potato, vegetable, baked beans or corn, stew, deviled or boiled eggs, marshmallows, popcorn.

Hot foods carried along should be wrapped in many thicknesses of heavy paper, and woolen cloth or a blanket.

Cold foods should be wrapped in wet cloths and paper, or packed in a thermos jar or an ice-cream freezer.

Lukewarm foods may become dangerous very soon.

Camp Baked Ham

Take a slice of ham about 1 inch in thickness. Mix thoroughly 1 teaspoon of ground mustard and 2 tablespoons of sugar and rub this mixture over the ham. Place in a frying pan or Dutch oven and cover with ½ cup of water in which you have placed 1 tablespoon of vinegar. Cover and bake slowly until very tender.

Baked Bass

After cleaning and scaling, place the bass in cold water for at least an hour. Then lay it in a greased frying pan, skin side down. Cover with condensed milk and water, mixed half and half, sprinkle with bread crumbs. Cover and place over a bed of very hot coals (or in an extra hot oven) and bake for about thirty minutes. By this time part of the milk will have evaporated and the bass will be a rich brown. Lift bass onto a hot platter, pour the sauce over it, and serve piping hot. A garnish of finely chopped ham or bacon may be added when the fish is placed over the fire. This provides seasoning and adds to the flavor.

Campers' Corkscrew Bread

Four cups flour, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 cup milk or water, salt, add shortening, and then milk or water; gradually mix into stiff dough. Wind dough around a green stick. Rest stick on two fork sticks over a good bed of coals. Turn frequently until crisp and brown. Pull out the stick. This is a campers' delight.

Why We Do What We Do

by H. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE FALL FOR FLATTERY

THE story of the fox and the crow is one of the best known of Aesop's fables. A crow, having stolen a bit of meat, the fox spoke to the crow thus: "How handsome you are! And I have heard that the beauty of your voice is equal to that of your form and feathers. Will you not sing for me, so that I may judge whether this is true?" The crow was so pleased that she opened her mouth to sing and dropped the meat, which the fox immediately ate.

From ancient times it was known how human beings fall for flattery. This trait has been the subject of much satire. Now and then we find a person who flatters himself into the belief that he is not subject to flattery. It is very doubtful if any normal human being is entirely immune to flattery. It is all in the way the dish is served.

Flattery coming from a superior or from one whose opinion or affections we cherish will be that much more effective for the simple reason that we like to believe the statement as true even when we know that it is false and mere flattery.

We like flattery for the same reason that we hate to be scolded or have our faults spread abroad. It is quite significant that we speak of a conceited person as having a swelled head or of "swelling with pride." Pride and flattery are expansive. They "blow up" the individual just as the opposite "takes the wind out of one's sails" and the ego collapses like a toy balloon with a hole in it.

We fall for flattery because of innate conceit, because we like to hear nice things about ourselves, because we are only too eager to believe good things concerning our own personality, because we are self-centered, and being social animals we like to get the praise of our fellows.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"NEGRO" AND "NIGGER"

"NEGRO," our name for the colored American as well as the entire Ethiopian race, originated with the Spaniards who first applied it to the earliest colored men who appeared on the Mediterranean or were discovered on their native shores by Spanish explorers. "Negro" is simply Spanish for "black."

Also the term "nigger" used interchangeably with "negro," particularly in the South, though it is regarded sometimes as derogatory or a more or less contemptuously slang term, is in fact inoffensive and a good legitimate word. It is derived from the Latin "niger," meaning black.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

FOWLS AND SNAKE BITES

IN MANY parts of the country the flesh of a fowl is regarded as a sure cure for snake-bite; in fact, the superstition is rather general. There are sections also where the same "folk-medicine" is recommended for rheumatism, shingles, scarlet fever and diphtheria.

There are several variations of the superstition: In some sections it is insisted that the application made should be the raw and bleeding flesh of a fowl which has been stunned and is still alive, while in others it is sufficient that the fowl be newly killed. This superstition should read "a cock" instead of a "fowl," and there are places where they still say that a cock should be used in case of a man and a hen in case a woman is to be cured.

The origin of the superstition is easily seen in the relation which the cock bore in Greek mythology to Aesculapius, the god of medicine and the son of Apollo, the sun-god. The cock's connection with the sun, whose first beams he hails with his crowing, made him a particularly acceptable and appropriate offering to Apollo's son.

"Sacrifice a cock to Aesculapius" were the last words of Socrates. Though the ages have broadened the superstition a little so that we no longer are particular as to the sex of the fowl sacrificed, yet when we attempt to cure disease or snake-bite by the application of the flesh of a newly killed fowl we are, in effect, sacrificing a cock to Aesculapius in the hope that the old Greek god will accept the sacrifice and give relief.

Got Idea From Hoop Skirts

One can hardly see any connection between hoop skirts and the electrical industry, but one may be traced, strangely enough, which took place in the early days of the electrical development. The first cables were not insulated satisfactorily till Walter T. Glover, an Englishman who braided steel hoops with cotton, had an inspiration. Crinolines were going out—so was his business. So he used his machinery for insulating copper wire with cotton braid, and he soon had no cause to regret the passing of the crinoline.

A Picture by Plato

Plato pictured the soul under the figure of a many-headed monster, a lion and a man, combined in one form. The man represented the higher nature, the reason; the lion the passionate element; and the many-headed monster the lusts and appetites. The picture is as true today as when first presented. The lion and many-headed monster exists in every person. It can only be changed by the love of the Christ, by which the lion is made to be as a lamb.

The wedding of Miss Esther Chamberlain and Mr. Walter Skinner took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, 834 College avenue, at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Walter Wilkinson, 62 North Ohio avenue, and Mr. Dan Davies McDowell, Lake Muskoga, have returned from Chippewa Lake. They also attended the air-races at Cleveland.

Mrs. Gustav Bruder, 487 Kelton avenue, head of the women's auxiliary of the Columbus Elks, is arranging with the Elk's charity bazaar committee, which will give a garden party Friday and Saturday, September 13 and 14, at the Elk's country club. The garden party will celebrate the completion of the Elk's dream home, 933 Kelton avenue, and the owner of the home will be announced during the party.

Miss Justina Eich, Dean of Women at Capital University has returned from a trip through western United States and the Panama Canal zone.

Miss Catherine Johnson will leave this evening for New York, to meet her sister, Miss Frances Johnson, who will arrive Sunday from Europe.

VILLAGE TO HAVE NEW CALL SYSTEM FOR POLICE DEPT.

Police Lights and Call Boxes Favored By Council — Street May Be Extended

Plans for a new police signal system were discussed at the meeting of the Bexley Council meeting this week.

The system under consideration would use call boxes and signal lights for the patrolling officers and for calling officers from the central station. A committee was appointed to obtain an estimate of the cost of installing this system.

An ordinance was passed sanctioning the erection of double houses on the north side of Ruhl avenue. All houses must be built of brick, stone, or a combination of those materials.

A request was made by residents of Pleasant Ridge avenue to have their street extended to Livingston avenue.

A request for the extension of Mound street from College avenue to Sheridan avenue was placed before the street committee.

Council gave authority to David Shadrach, street commissioner to pave Powell avenue from Cassady avenue to Gould road. Village solicitor H. E. Peters and Councilman S. C. Betz were authorized to provide rulings allowing the trees to be trimmed along the highways.

A committee was appointed to secure estimates on the proposed improvement to Parkview avenue at E. Main street.

No Parking Signs Ordered

Police Chief Antle was instructed to place "No Parking" signs on Montrose avenue and Remington road to prevent Bexley High school students from parking cars there. Signs will also be placed near the Junior High school on Cassingham road.

Contractors were given a time extension to complete the sidewalks on Main street and Pleasant Ridge avenue. Work is to be completed by Oct. 15.

The street commissioner was authorized by Council to clean up portions of an old fence at the rear of Cassady avenue lot line.

OPENS A STUDIO ON THE EAST SIDE

Miss Anne Lee Johnson, teacher of Expression, Phonetics, and Dramatic Art, has just returned from New York after several weeks study with Lemuel B. C. Josephs, well known teacher of the Drama, and Walter J. Fifer, one of Columbia University's leading teachers of Phonetics.

Her residence studio formerly located at 86 Jefferson avenue, has been changed to 639 Fairwood avenue. A down town studio will be maintained at the Wallace School, 82 Jefferson avenue. The studios will open September 19th.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Mrs. R. S. Atkinson, 410 S. Columbia avenue, was elected chairman of the woman's golf committee at the Scioto Country Club. The election took place after the recent golf tournament.

Mrs. Atkinson was also winner of the second flight in the tournament.

LUTHERANS RECALL PASTOR

Christ Lutheran congregation has sent another call to Reverend Gast of Green Bay, Wisconsin, to accept the pastorate resigned by Dr. C. V. Sheatsley. Rev. Gast refused the first call sent to him but it is hoped that he will reconsider the proposition.

In event that Rev. Gast again refuses another pastor will be called immediately.

BEXLEY SCHOOLS SHOW INCREASE

Enrollment 711 More Than In September, 1924

Attendance at the Bexley schools has increased remarkably during the past five years as shown by a recent survey.

In September, 1924, the first week of school showed an attendance of 147, while this year shows an increase of 285 making a total of 382.

Five years ago the lower grades recorded 352, this year 829, which is a gain of 476.

The total attendance five years ago was 499 while this year's is 1210, a gain of 711.

As these figures show the gain is chiefly in the High school, and it is expected that the enrollment will soon reach 400. The rapid increase shows that the need of a new High school building is imperative.

CAP INCREASES FACULTY

The opening of Capital Univerity found nine new members listed on the faculty making a total of seventy instructors.

Prof. Paul Schacht returned from three years at the University of Chicago to take charge of the English department. Prof. Lyder Unstad of the Lutheran college at Seguin, Texas, will be an instructor in economics. Prof. Kohler returned to the department of biology after a three year leave of absence.

Prof. Herbert C. Lerpold took up work in the department of Old Testament theology at the seminary after having completed his course at the Buffalo Lutheran seminary of Buffalo, N. Y. Prof. Paul Betz of Detroit, a former German instructor in the University of Michigan has assumed his work as head of the German department. He is assisted by Harold Basilius of Toledo.

John Lang, a graduate of the seminary, has a chair in the department of history. Miss Jessie Doersam is an instructor in English in the academy and college department. Mr. Hupp is sixth full-time professor in the department of education.

William Bernlohr has taken the place of Jerry Katherman as head coach of the school. Bernlohr, who is a graduate of Capital has been coaching for the past two years in his home town of Butler, Penna.

BRYDEN ROAD HOMES ROBBED

The home of J. A. Rosenthal, 1714 Bryden road, was also entered. $14 was stolen.

No traces were found of the robbers.

ALUMNI MEETING WELL ATTENDED

The first annual meeting of the Bexley High school alumni given in the High school, Monday evening, was pronounced a huge success by Superintendent Dieterich. Approximately fifty graduates attended the meeting.

Among those appearing on the program were Hugo Spatz, winner of the Ohio Edison contest; Catherine Singer, Capital University student, Frances Holtzman, a former honor student of Bexley High, and David Strickler, a soloist. All were former Bexley students.

Superintendent Dieterich announced that the program would be made an annual affair, with members of each graduating class appearing before the student body.

EAST SIDE STUDENTS SUCCEED IN STATE BAR EXAMINATION

HAROLD GINGHER

"These graduates of the Columbus College of Law, who successfully passed the formidable barriers of the bar examination are stimulating examples to ambitious men and women who are employed throughout the day but who wish legal training," Dean C. C. Williams, 1601 Bryden road, observed as a result of his interviewing prospective freshmen prior to the opening of the law school Monday evening.

Mrs. Lucinda Nieman Madden, 924 East Kossuth street, is the holder of the graduate scholarship which entitles her to her first year of graduate law work tuition free. This is her second scholarship as she also annexed the freshman class honors at the conclusion of her first year at the Y law school. Besides that she holds a record of another kind since her association with the Columbus YMCA schools dates back to the fall of 1923 when she first registered there for high school work. She entered the law school in the fall of 1925. She is the secretary of J. C. Cleary, attorney.

Another legal secretary, who is also a scholarship and prize winner, is Miss Margaret Koos, 593 Berkeley road. Miss Koos, who won the class scholarship in her junior year and the Columbus College of Law Club award last year as the most outstanding senior, is associated with the offices of Hedges, Hoover and Tingley.

The third member of this group, Harold E. Gingher, 526 Kelton avenue, also an Ohio State University graduate, gives the Eastern Times constituency a 1000 percentage at the law school for he is also a scholarship man, having attended his classes last year as the holder of the junior class scholarship.

He is now associated with his brother in the firm of Druggan Gingher.

While regular classes in the law school begin Monday evening, the quiz class for men and women who plan to take the midyear bar examination is already underway. Classwork also starts this week in the Evening College of Commerce, Arts and Engineering, the Evening High School the Day School for Boys and the Trade School at the Y.

Class in the graduate law school are to start Tuesday evening, September 24th, Dean Williams announces.

LIBRARY HAS OLD CLOCK

Visitors to the library at Capital University find their attention drawn to a tall clock which hangs on the wall of the lobby. Cased in beautifully carved black walnut, darkened by time, it suggests an interesting history.

The exact age of the clock is not known, but it was first discovered here in Columbus by the late Judge J. T. Holmes, who saw it hanging in the window of what was then Savage's Jewelry Store, soon after the Civil War. Railroad employees were said to have set their watches by it, and passersby in general found it most convenient in ascertaining the correct time. Judge Holmes became so fond of the clock that he acquired it after the jewelry concern ceased its existence, and had it hung on the walls of his law office.

Since then his son, Mr. Lawrence A. Holmes, has had it in his possession, and last June presented it to Capital University Library.

BOY GETS SCHOLARSHIP

John Lawless, thirteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawless, 658 Berkeley road has been awarded the four year scholarship that is given annually by Aquinas college. This award entitles him to four years at the boy's preparatory school with tuition paid.

The boy was graduated last June from the Holy Rosary grade school.

Cornelius Heinmiller, 1514 Studer avenue, was granted a one-year scholarship award.

BERNLOHR BEGINS WORK AS FOOTBALL COACH AT CAPITAL

40 Athletes Report For Tryout; Squad Crippled By Lack Of Lettermen

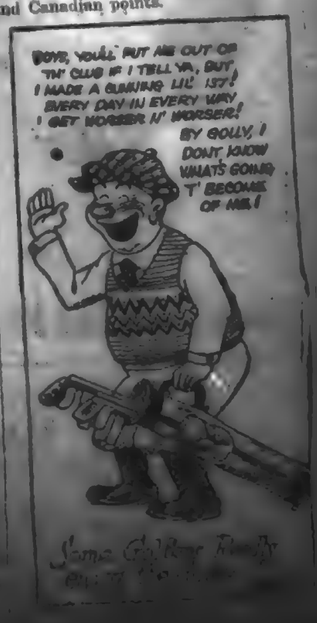
The opening of Capital University last Monday found Coach William Bernlohr on the job ready to take up his duties as successor to Jerry L.

Courtesy Cols. Dis.

Katherman, veteran football coach of the college.

Bernlohr was graduated from Capital in the class of June, 1927, and for the past two years has been coaching the high school teams in his home town of Butler, Penna. He leaves a very good record behind him, having won 75 per cent of all games played.

Bernlohr expressed the fact that he was well satisfied with both the school equipment and the condition of the football field. He made the [illegible] good condition for practice. A new scoreboard will be erected this fall.



In spite of his optimism, Bernlohr does not count on a record breaking team for the first year as he must again become acquainted with the student body and establish his system of coaching. The team also will be handicapped by absence of many lettermen who must be replaced by new material. Word has been received that Hax, quarterback, and Shelgren, half, will not return to Capital this fall. It is doubtful if Brideweser, who was campus star athlete last fall, will return.

Bernlohr is a three-sports man, having received eleven letters during his four-year course at Capital. He is likewise the youngest coach in the Ohio Conference, having attained his twenty-fifth birthday only last week.

Capital faces a stiff schedule for the coming season. The opening game will be played on the Muskingum field, September 28. Bluffton, October 4 will be the first home game. Baldwin-Wallace follows at Berea, Oct. 12, Hiram will be met on the home field Oct. 19, Otterbein will be played at Otterbein, November 2 and Marietta will be met on her home field. The last game of the season will be played with Defiance on the Bexley field, Nov. 15.

SOCIETY NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Christian, 312 South Ardmore road, Bexley, and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Kane, 1047 Studer avenue, have returned from a motor trip including Cutawba Island, Lake Erie; Toledo, Detroit, Lake St. Clair and Canadian points.

WHAT IS NEWS?

The charge is often made that the newspaper of today is tending to become merely an advertising medium. It is true that they are carrying more advertisements, due to the fact that business people are beginning to realize their value in the economic struggle. But is the charge fair.

Appoint yourself a judge of news-values. How many of the current every day events of which you read effect your life or well-being. Very few, you will say. More important are the news items which effect your immediate welfare. And those news items are—advertisements.

Food, clothing, shelter, and relaxation comprise your most important needs. You can read the latest news of these in the advertisements. They will tell you how you can best spend your money for them. They will tell about the things that will make life more pleasant and about the things that will make your work easier. It pays to read the ads, and profit by the news in them.

Warner Baxter

Handsome Warner Baxter of the "talkies" is one of the actors who has ridden in on the waves of this popular improvement on the movies. At one time he was an insurance agent, which some say made a "good talker of him." He has been given the star role in the Movietone "Such Men Are Dangerous." Baxter has had an interesting career on stage and screen. He prefers to do romantic character parts.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A THUNDERSTORM

THE ancient people had strange notions. They were very superstitious. Everything was invented with a spirit. They were afraid of the thunder because they believed it was the voice of their God. They were likewise afraid of the lightning because they thought it was an opening in the skies through which the golden glory of heaven shone. While we of today have outgrown many of these superstitions and fears some persons are still afraid of storms. Such fears might easily be removed if we correctly understood the workings of nature's laws. As the lightning is only the passing of electric current from one cloud to another, so thunder is caused by nature's refusal to tolerate a vacuum. As the air rushes in to fill the space caused by the passing of the bullet of a pistol, so the noise of thunder is only nature's efforts to fill the space made by the lightning flash. The best way to relieve a child of fear of storms is to take him out into the storm and let him see for himself that there is no cause for fear.

Leonard A. Barrett.

There is something majestic about the dashing, smashing and crashing of a summer's thunderstorm. After the storm has spent its strength there follows a calm, a silence, which no words can describe. The sun shines through the clouds, even a silver lining may be seen.

The storms which crash into human lives are much like the thunderstorms of summer. They come suddenly and seem to be disastrous, but are not altogether destructive. Something very valuable is accomplished by a storm. As the beauty of a picture depends upon a proper proportion of shadows, so the storms which come into our experience develop poise and self-control. He is a wise man who has learned how to remain calm and self-possessed in the midst of a storm. Self-mastery of personality is not a gift. It must be toiled for, in daily contact with life's battles. Storms develop resisting power. We are better prepared to meet the storms which assail us tomorrow because we have not been mastered by the failures and disappointments of today.

After the storm is over go out of doors and listen. A silence speaks a language all its own, and it seems to say:

"Trace the rainbow through the rain
And know the promise is not vain
That morn shall follow the night."

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 15

TEACHING THE LAW OF GOD

GOLDEN TEXT—The entrance of thy words giveth light.

LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 8:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Studying God's Word.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Studying God's Word.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Joy in God's Word.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Call for Trained Teachers.

This lesson is a fine illustration of the rightful place of God's Word in the life of a nation. The only certain cure for national ills is a return to God and obedience to His Word.

I. The Word of God Being Read (vv. 1-3).

1. The eager assembly (v. 1).

The people gathered themselves together and requested Ezra to bring the book of the law.

2. A representative assembly (v. 2).

It was made up of men, women and children. The men did not leave the spiritual affairs to the women, neither were the children left at home. The Spirit of God can speak through God's Word to the whole family sitting in the pew.

The lesson lasted for five or six hours, from morning until midday.

II. The People's Attitude Toward God's Word (vv. 4-6).

1. Due reverence shown (vv. 4, 5).

When Ezra opened the law, all the people stood up out of respect for God's Word.

2. They joined heartily in the prayer (v. 6).

As Ezra led them in prayer, they joined heartily in saying, "Amen, Amen," bowing their faces to the ground.

III. God's Word Being Interpreted (vv. 7, 8).

The attitude of the people toward God's Word largely depends upon the minister. Proper dignity and solemnity should be manifested by the minister when reading the Holy Scriptures.

1. He stood up where the people could see him (v. 5).

2. He read distinctly (v. 8).

3. He caused the people to understand the reading (v. 8).

IV. The Effect of Applying God's Word to the Life of the People (vv. 9-18).

1. Conviction of sin (v. 9).

The Word of God is quick and powerful (Heb. 4:12). It brings conviction of sin (Acts 2:37). The divine method of convicting men of sin is to have God's Word applied by the Holy Ghost.

2. Weeping turned into joy (vv. 10-12).

When sins have been perceived and confessed, there is forgiveness. God desires forgiven sinners to enter into the joy of forgiveness. Continued mourning will not atone for sins that are past, unfits one for present tasks, and dishonors a pardoning God. Besides, joy has a salutary effect on one's entire being. "The joy of the Lord is your strength" (v. 10).

3. Blessings were shared with others (vv. 10-12).

True joy manifests itself in giving to others; pure religion goes out to minister to the poor (Jas. 1:27).

4. The people obeyed (vv. 13-18).

From the reading of the Scriptures, they found that the Feast of Tabernacles had long been neglected. They proceeded to keep this sacred feast in a way that had not been observed since the days of Joshua (v. 17). In the keeping of this feast they dwelt in booths, thus typifying their pilgrim character and bringing to remembrance the days of their wilderness journey.

V. Separation from the Ungodly (Neh. 13:1-3).

As soon as they had heard the Word of God, they separated themselves from the mixed multitude.

VI. The House of Worship Was Cleared and Order Restored (Neh. 13:4-14).

No nation or people can be strong which neglects the worship of the true God.

VII. Restoration of the Sabbath (Neh. 13:15-22).

Israel had long violated the Sabbath. To ignore the essential law of the Sabbath is national suicide. Unnumbered evils follow in the wake of the desecration of God's Holy day.

VIII. Restoration of God's Law of Marriage (Neh. 13:23-31).

When those who had intermarried with the heathen were brought face to face with their sin, they separated themselves from their ungodly companions.

Magnetic Power of God

God's word of old, given through His prophet Isaiah, was for the multitudes without the gate, and remained now as ever: "I am found of them that sought me not." Strait is the gate indeed, but it is ever an open gate; and the Heaven behind is too full of love divine for any barrier to constrain it. Many an erring human soul has been drawn to the gate unforced, despite its folly of blindness, by the sheer magnetic force of God's unfailing love within.

Why We Do What We Do

by H. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE INHERIT OUR POLITICS

A GOOD deal of the ammunition in presidential campaigns misses fire because the majority of voters are not open to conviction in politics. They vote their party ticket. They inherited their party and vote as their fathers voted before them.

We inherit our politics along with our religion, and blue eyes or brown, as the case may be.

Before we are old enough to know much about politics we cast our ballot. And in lieu of knowledge we follow example, the example of those who have the greatest prestige with us, those we know and trust. These are our elders in the same household. Thus before we realize it we have completely identified ourselves with a certain party and stick to it from a sense of loyalty if nothing more.

Political prejudice is no different from any other kind. It can be broken down or annulled only by a stronger prejudice of opposite nature.

A man's political views are not altogether a matter of family training, pride and prejudice. The political parties encourage this sort of blind loyalty by giving the preference to those who are "dyed in the wool." In the national conventions certain men boast that they never voted any other ticket for generations and sought special favors on the grounds of party loyalty. Candidates are accepted or rejected on the strength of their allegiance.

Party success depends upon party loyalty, and if a man is going to get any recognition from his party he must stick to the ship, sink or swim.

We inherit our politics through the natural process of family traditions as part of the furniture of the old homestead and the family coat of arms. In addition to the party, system demands the type of loyalty that is calculated to perpetuate the party, of passing it on from father to son.

WAFFLES are more frequently enjoyed during the winter season when the weather is cool, but they are welcome at any season. With the electric waffle irons now so common, one may have a breakfast or luncheon and serve them hot from the iron. It is a pleasure to watch the cooking process and with an iron at each end of the table working, one may serve six to eight persons with little delay. Have the batter in pitchers and it will save time and be much easier to handle. If butter or other fat is added to the batter the iron will need no greasing and the smoke will be avoided.

Fluffy Waffles.

Beat the yolks of two eggs until light and add one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Sift two cupfuls of pastry flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, and when well mixed with the milk and egg add six tablespoonfuls of melted shortening, fold in the stiffly-beaten whites and bake.

Waffles.

Take one and one-fourth cupfuls of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda. Sift the flour, soda and salt, add one cupful of sour milk; thick and rich; two egg yolks lightly beaten and when well mixed add three tablespoonfuls of melted butter and fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs.

Pancake Delicious

Sift together three cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add two and one-fourth cupfuls of milk, stir into the flour mixture with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, add two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening and fold in the stiffy-beaten egg whites. Bake on a hot griddle.

Rice Jack.

One may use rice or wheat in this recipe: Take one cupful each of sugar and molasses with two tablespoonfuls of water. Boil until nearly done then add a tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of soda. Drop a spoonful in water and if brittle, it is done. Stir in three cupfuls of puffed rice and put into a well-greased pan to cool.

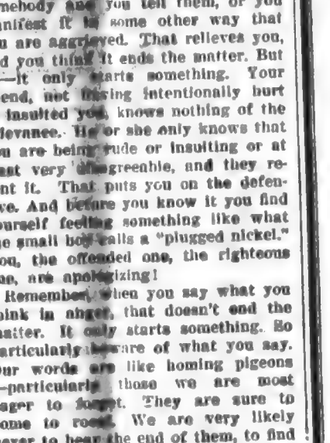
WHEN WE ARE ANGRY

"YOU know, after we've relieved ourselves in a fit of anger, of all the disagreeable things we wanted to say, after we've gotten everything off our chests and are ready to drop it all and be friendly again—we are usually surprised to find that people hold it against us—they seem to keep thinking of the disagreeable things we said in anger and to treat us exactly as if we had meant every word—as if those words were US!"



It was a wise old man who pointed out this sad truth. For it is, indeed, so—people do hold us responsible for what we say when we are angry, just as if we meant it all. And when we are all set for amiability and clear skies again we find that there seems to be something wrong; we find unexpected resistance to our intentions!

The fact is that a grudge begets a grudge; a grievance is like a germ in the way it engenders the other grievances. You have something against somebody and you tell them, or you manifest it in some other way that you are aggrieved. That relieves you, and you think it ends the matter. But no—it only starts something. Your friend, not having intentionally hurt or insulted you, knows nothing of the grievance. He or she only knows that you are being rude or insulting or at least very disagreeable, and they resent it. That puts you on the defensive. And before you know it you find yourself feeling something like what the small boy calls a "plugged nickel." You, the offended one, the righteous one, are apologizing!

Remember, when you say what you think in anger, that doesn't end the matter. It only starts something. Be particularly aware of what you say. Our words are like homing pigeons—particularly those we are most eager to forget. They are sure to come to roost. We are very likely never to hear the end of them, to find that they are regarded as our innermost, or real feelings, as the real we. Yes, it's awful, and tremendously unfair. And the only way to protect ourselves is to consider carefully the price before we indulge in the luxury of letting things out, especially things that can't be killed within ourselves.

NATION'S WEALTH IN HIGHWAYS OF STEEL

A study of economic conditions in other countries shows the dependence of our nation upon its railroads.

Many lands are as rich in resources as the United States, but they have no transportation adequate to move their resources, raw or manufactured.

Russia could feed and clothe the world, if soil, climate, population and natural resources were all that it needed, but Russia has few railroads.

China has as much coal and oil as we have, four times the population, Europe nearly half again as great as the entire United States, but fewer miles of railroads than there are in the state of Iowa.—Kessinger's Mid-West Review.

Words Are True

Bassler—My visit to your golf course as your guest will long be remembered.

Oswalt—Yes; the club had to levy a special assessment to repair the damage you did.—Pathfinder.

Making Him Pay

An Irishman, who had been advised by his attorney, to plead guilty as a first offender, stood in the dock.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge.

"Guilty, yer honor, and I've got witnesses to prove it."

Never Owed Anything

"All that I am," exclaimed the politician, "I owe to my mother."

"Well," exclaimed a voice from the back of the hall, "she won't be sued to be out of debt."—Tit-Bits.

Tomato Preserves

Scald and peel 1 qt. small yellow or red tomatoes; heat to boiling point and skim. Add 2 lbs. sugar, the pulp and juice of 2 oranges and 1 lemon. Add the rinds (cut in strips and boiled tender) and slowly cook all together one and a half hours, then add ¼ cup chopped preserved ginger, if liked. Continue cooking till quite thick. Seal carefully.

Peach Butter

Mash the peach pulp through a coarse strainer, and to every cup add ¼ cup brown sugar and a pinch of ground cloves and all-spice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and a little water, and boil for fifteen minutes. This makes tasty spiced peach butter.

Grape Conserve

3 pts. of grapes (skins and seeded pulp), 3 pts. sugar, 2 oranges, use half an orange peel cut into small pieces, ½ lb. raisins, 1 cup English walnut meats. Seed grapes, then mix all ingredients, and boil until thick enough. To seed grapes, press out the pulp, heat it, then mash through coarse sieve and add to the skins.

Quince and Apple Marmalade

Use 4 large apples and 2 large quinces, the quice of a lemon, and sugar. Pare, core, and slice the fruit. Cook in a covered dish until tender. Measure the fruit, and add to it two-thirds as much sugar as fruit. Cook it rapidly until it is clear. Turn into clean, hot glasses.

Plum Jelly

4 cups juice
1 cup pectin
8 cups sugar

Crush about 4½ lbs. ripe fruit without peeling or seeding. Add 1 cup water, simmer ten minutes, covered closely after it reaches the boiling point. Drain, bring the juice to boiling point (there should be 4 cups), add pectin, boil vigorously one-half minute, and remove from the fire. Let settle a moment, skim, and pour into glasses.

Mulberry Jelly

Use slightly under-ripe mulberries. Cover with water, and simmer till they may be well mashed. Drain. To 1 cup juice add ¾ cup apple pectin and ¾ cup sugar. Boil rapidly to jelly stage.

TIGER LILIES

IN THE rural districts of New England, the Middle states and the Middle West, there is a common superstition that looking closely into a tiger lily will cause freckles. Here is another instance of the persistence in modern man of the primitive mind; an example of how it ranks today just as it did in the dawn of the ages.

The tiger lily is a native of China and was not introduced into the western world until comparatively modern times. Yet this gorgeous, speckled flower at once arouses in the "unconscious" that old, old belief in homeopathic magic so firmly held by our primitive ancestors—like causes like.

This and nature-worship, sometimes separately, sometimes interwoven, have been the parents of the majority of the ancient cults of ancient and modern superstitions. It is an interesting fact, though, that while the "persistent primitive" perpetuates in popular superstitions other forms of ancient magic, such superstitions are inherited, as it were—have a definite pedigree which can be traced. So, too, those superstitions inherited from nature worship and the cults of heathen gods and goddesses. But the generative day for those forces of superstition is gone. Homeopathic magic alone retains such vitality that it is able to create new superstitions from day to day. So if you look into a freckled tiger lily you will be freckled yourself, is a superstition which though widespread is of modern creation.

LIFE PLAYS US PRANKS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LIFE plays us many pranks, no doubt.
Our wishes stout it blows about.
First here, then there—yet who would care
For life with all its pranks left out?
Not I, I swear.

Life played a sorry prank on me:
I once had three good ships at sea,
But they went down with gem and gown
And left me tramping poor—and free—
From town to town.

Life played a stranger prank on you.
Now, why should you be walking, too,
That very way that very day?
And there were many things to do,
And much to say.

Life played a prank and sank my ships.
No pennon dips, no white wing slips
From shore to shore to bear my store.
I lost my ships and found your lips—
And that was more.

(©, 1929, Douglas Malloch.)

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"A MISS IS AS GOOD AS A MILE"

CONSTANTLY in everyday speech we meet with this saying to express the fact that to have almost achieved something, to have just missed reaching a goal, is no better, as far as results are concerned, than never to have made the attempt. It is a far cry from the significance of this saying to the medieval tale in which it had its origin.

"Amis et Amiles" ("Amis and Amile") is a French lyric dating from the Twelfth or Thirteenth century, consisting of about thirty-five hundred verses, which detail the adventures of the two noble knights, the story of their great friendship and mutual sacrifice.

Closer than brothers, and resembling each other to a remarkable degree, Amis and Amile are in the service of Charlemagne, where they battle against and overcome the opposition of the treacherous Hardre, and Amis wins for his bride the niece of Charlemagne. Bellicent, the emperor's daughter, loves Amiles, however, so darkest clouds gather over the heads of the knights. Amis saves his friend and obtains for him the hand of the princess.

In the course of his efforts on behalf of his friend, however, Amis has perjured himself, for which he is punished with leprosy. Amile then voluntarily sacrifices his two sons that Amis may be cured by their blood. By a miracle then the sons are restored to life—and they all live happily ever after!

Whether it was in the thought of their resemblance to each other or their great attachment, which made them inseparable, that our modern saying had its beginning, we do not know. We do know, however, that there is little similarity between its original significance and the sense in which we today say, "A miss is as good as a mile."

Would Ruin Him

Two young prospective aviators were discussing the subject of aviation, and a certain famous flyer, when the smaller, age eight, remarked to the other:

"What if the tail of the plane would get caught as he started up; it would cut a gash in his head, wouldn't it?"

His brother answered: "Yes. It would just mash him down and break his back."

And the little fellow said: "Yes, it would break his general cord."

Shrivelling

Little Betty was left in her bath while mother answered the phone. The telephone conversation became long and caused no end of worrying to the tiny bather, for Betty had never had experience with a prolonged stay in water and its effect on the fingers.

Mother was startled by a cry from the bathroom.

"Muvver," Betty called excitedly, "come quick before I shwivel up into a grandmother!"

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC ENLARGES TEACHING STAFF

Four New Instructors Added To Faculty Of Music School

Because of the unusual growth in the enrollment of the Conservatory of Music at Capital University during the past year, it has become necessary to enlarge the teaching staff.

Wilbur Crist, well-known in Columbus music circles, has been employed as full time director of the University's musical organizations. In addition to this he will teach two classes, one in instrumental conducting and one in instrumentation. Beginning next semester he will also give a course in school bands and orchestras. These courses are very necessary since superintendents all over the state of Ohio are beginning to demand graduates of conservatories who are proficient in handling high school musical organizations.

Two new instructors have been added to the piano department. They are Harold Moench and Nellie Edwards. Miss Edwards will specialize in classwork for beginners and will teach the new Oxford System. She has spent considerable time in Chicago taking specitl work in the field of psychology to fit herself for this work.

Helen Grace Jones, known well in Columbus as an accomplished accompanist, has been engaged to give a new course in accompaniment. Harold Davidson is taking over several classes in theory department, including two classes in composition. One of these classes for those students who are interested in doing practical work in the field of composition. He is also taking over some of the work in harmonic analysis which was formerly given by Dean Mayer.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSO. LAYS PLANS FOR YEAR

At a recent meeting of the Executive Board of the Bexley Parent-Teacher Association, tentative plans for the coming year were discussed. The Board voted to have all of the meetings of this year at night so that fathers as well as mothers can attend the meeting. The meetings will be held in the Junior High school building on the second Tuesday of each month, excepting the first meeting which will be held the third Tuesday in order not to interfere with the dedication of the new Bexley Public Library.

The first program will be known as "Bexley Night." This meeting will also be a reception for the teachers of the schools by the P. T. A.

Brief talks will be made by members of the association on the general topic, "The Relation of the Parent-Teacher Association to the Schools." The speakers for the program will be announced later.

Officers for this year are: Mrs. Hugh Huntington, president; Supt. H. C. Dieterich, first vice-president; Mrs. Harry Drake, second vice-president; Miss Ruby L. Borden, secretary and Mrs. Otto Klingbeil, treasurer.

The following people were selected as delegates to the state meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association to be held in Springfield on the 9th, 10th and 11th of October: Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Drake and Miss Borden.

Another Hammer Murder

On a lonely stretch of the National Pike, somewhere between Petersburg, West Virginia, and Columbus, lie the mutilated remains of a faithful servant, whose spirit was willing but whose flesh was weak. It's long career was terminated suddenly, after a lifetime of bounding and vibrating over the highways.

The trouble started when Charles Stroh, a student at Capital University, bought a Ford to bring him from Baltimore to Columbus.

All went well until the pair reached Petersburg, West Virginia. Then the Ford broke down. The repair bill amounted to more than the original cost. For a few more miles the journey was serene.

But again trouble developed. The very innards of the car gave up the ghost. This was tempting fate too far.

Stroh, vexed and revengeful, rummaged through his tool box until he found a murderous weapon, a ball-pein hammer.

Methodically and thoroughly, with malice aforethought, he began pounding and rending, until the ailing car was a twisted pile of tin and bolts.

A few vicious blows destroyed all of the existing glass. A few more disabled the steering wheel, th carburetor, the spark plugs, and the radiator. Deep dents and gashes appeared on the body. Havoc reigned!

Leaving his victim lying on the road, Stroh flagged a bus, and continued his journey to Columbus.

Moral—For journeys of over 10 miles, take a bus.

Dear Editor:

Is it possible to take the citizen behind the scenes that he may secure better understanding as to government, its cost and the resulting tax rate?

Can it be done so the effect will not be one which causes public officials to feel that they are being criticized.

Most public officials, especially in small communities, are honestly seeking to render the service sought by their constituents and at cost not subject to criticism by the taxpayers of the community

In these the poor are expected to be aided by the local government. Officials are expected to keep up roads and clear ditches. They are expected to keep up schools and to a certain standard, and to provide transportation for the pupils. These agencies often create increasing cost through road wear out, ditch filling, more needy people, increased school attendance, installation of advanced studies for children, compulsory attendance for a larged number of years increased building space, ambitious wish to have better buildings and better locations with desire for recreation facilities and auditoriums.

Accedence to those wishes by officials and approving votes for the new things by voters naturally increases cost despite official desire to prevent tax increase. Another phase is that government and political ambitions are closely associated, with the latter not always willing to give the citizen a true view of government conditions. Politics too often seeks to inject confusion and suspicion rather than understanding and confidence.

But regardless of politics and its attendant ambitions there are basic governmental conditions which neither can change by charges, and little of these basic conditions can be altered by change. There are three things connected with government. One is its expense. Another is property tax value. The other is the tax rate. Legislative andexecutive act can have effect on future policies but cannot greatly undo that which previous policies established.

The items mentioned as relating only to local division cost, and not including the cost of state or county government, are increasing tax rates because increase in expenditure exceeds increase in the value of taxable property. Without mention of any particular district let us illustrate the general condition in the smaller communities exclusive of state and county needs.

Here is a township. In 1924 its tax duplicate was $5,000,000. This year it is $5,500,000 an increase of 10%. If government cost increased 10% the tax rate would remain the same. But! the township expense jumps from $8,000 to $10,000, an increase of 25%. With only 10% increase in taxable value but 25% increase in township government cost there can be no other answer than increased tax. Then comes the schools, the expense of which jumps 50% with but 12% increase in taxable values. To prevent tax rate increase the duplicate values would have to increase 75% instead of 12%.

These conditions of very small increase in taxable values and big increase in expenditures described before, which has been and is compelling official request for voters' approval to extra levies in these districts.

In budget hearings township trustees and school boards explain the roads the people are insisting shall be fixed up and of the insistent demand for pupil transportation which will cost this or that, plus insistence upon establishment of one or another new branch of school activity.

Community wealth is increasing at the rate of about 2% a year, school attendance at about 3% a year but school cost is increasing as to housing and operation about 10% a year.

Road use is increasing. Bad conditions instantly cause active demand for their repair. It is here where township trustees, to meet the augmenting demand of their constituents, seek additional income. And this sought income increases more rapidly in dollar demand than property grows in dollar value.

The conditions noted above, it must be understood, are not necessarily the actual experience of other districts. Some show no greater increase in expenses than increase in property value. Some show greater increases in expense than others without greater increase in value of property.

Such conditions breed but one effect. Either the voting of extra tax levies or decreasing income to local districts. And, with mounting expense of county and with added levies made by the state, the tax charge goes up, even with decreasing revenue to the district. The state rate is compulsory. Minimum rates to schools are compulsory. Cuts to keep inside tax limit laws must be confined to county, township and municipality.

Here is a district where $10,000 revenue must be cut off the township because its rate must count in the village rate. The latter asks $1,000, leaving county and township requests as they are forces out on the village to $200. To give the village the added $800 would necessitate a cut of $1,500,000 on requested county funds or $5,000 cut on township requests. In adjusting budgets to the law the commission must consider ways to produce the least loss. The village can better suffer a cut of $800 than the township $5,000 or the county $1,500,000.

It is wiser for the village to vote an extra levy of $1 per $1,000 than to compel an extra township levy of $2 per $1,000 applicable to village as well as the rest of the township. It is wiser for the village to vote an extra levy of $1 per $1,000 than to compel the whole county to vote an extra $2 per $1,000 applicable to village and township as well as upon all the rest of the county. It is unwise to compel a $2 extra levy over the whole county through such reduction in the rate as will cut off county revenue by $1,500,000 to give a village $800, and so relieve the village from necessity to ask $1 per $1,000 extra tax to secure this $800.

A. J. Thatcher,
County Auditor.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HAIR AND STORMS

THERE came into New York a Norwegian steamer several days overdue because of heavy weather. During the first half of her voyage she encountered gales and tremendous seas which threatened to engulf her. Then when things were at their worst, the captain mustered all hands and had their hair cut. The storm ceased and the ship had good weather for the rest of the trip. The captain said he had ordered the hair cutting because a had heard that his viking ancestors had performed the same rite in similar straits. Here is a most interesting case of "reversion to type."

It was true—his Norse ancestors had done that same thing in the days when Odin gloried and drank deep in Valhalla. Among the ancients the hair, being considered as a peculiarly intimate part of a man—sometimes as the seat of strength—was frequently cut and offered up as a sacrifice to the gods. Juvenal says that the hair should only be cut at sea in times of danger and as a final offering to the gods; as it would offend them to cut it at other times.

In the Norse sagas Odin is represented as the great storm god. The vikings appeased his wrath by the propitiatory offering of their hair—even as did their descendants recently on the storm-tossed Norwegian steamer. A shorn crew at a Brooklyn pier who have just sacrificed to Odin makes "the persistence of the primitive," something more than a theory.

Why We Do What We Do

by H. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY MEN DRESS

A SHORT time ago it was reported that a bishop speaking to a group of ministers advised them to raise mustaches because he thought it was the only mark of distinction between a man and a woman.

In matters of dress the chief distinction is that women spend more time and money on them. The National Retail Dry Goods association was recently told that the average man spends $85 a year on clothes, while the average woman spends $236. Judged by this standard, clothes are about three times as important to a woman as they are to a man. And yet most women admit that they haven't a thing to wear—when they are invited out.

Women are also more exclusive in their dress. No woman will wear a hat that is exact like another woman's hat. What man would think of wearing a hat that is the only one of its kind in existence! Women have common aversions, men have common likes. Women make greater use of dress as a means of expressing their personality in the unusual and distinctive.

A man's chief motive in dress is to be conventional, inconspicuous. It makes him feel more at ease and less self-conscious if he knows that his clothes pass muster. During the World war the men in the trenches were encouraged to shave every day and to look to their clothes as a means of increasing morale and self-respect.

Except in the case of the dude and the dandy the average man would rather be a little under than a little overdressed. Note how hard it is to get a man to attend a full dress affair. No man quite gets over his boyhood aversion to too much finery. The "regular fellers" never doll up. It is not considered manly to carry the thing too far. A well dressed boy suffers unspeakable humiliation at the hands of the gang. He never forgets it.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for September 22

MALACHI FORETELLS A NEW DAY

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me.

LESSON TEXT—Malachi 3:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Part in Bringing in a Better Day.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparing the Way of the Lord.

The subject of today's lesson is broader than the printed text. In order to teach this lesson effectively the entire book should be surveyed. The prophet pointed out the sins of a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, and failure to pay tithes.

I. The Base Ingratitude of Israel (1:1-5).

God approached them with the tender affirmation, "I have loved you." It was the burden of the prophet to declare this fact unto them (v. 1). So worldly were the people that they failed to discern God's good hand upon them. Israel's attitude toward God is shown in the skeptical question, "Wherein hast thou loved us" (v. 2)? Malachi answers this question by showing God's choice of Jacob and his passing by of Esau, his destruction of Edom and his saving of Israel.

II. God's Severe Indictment (1:6-2:17; 3:7-15).

1. Against the priests (1:6-2:9). They were guilty of:

(1) Profanity (1:6). Their profanity consisted in despising the name of God. To fail to honor God is to be profane. To use His name in any unreal way is to be thus guilty.

(2) Sacrilege (1:7, 8).

Their sacrilegious act was in offering polluted bread and blemished sacrifices. To bring such offerings to an earthly ruler would be a gross insult.

(3) Greed (2:10).

They were not willing to open the doors of God's house without pay.

(4) Weariness (1:12, 13). Because of the absence of love, the routine of priestly duties became irksome. God threatened them with severe punishment unless they would take His rebukes to heart.

(5) Not teaching the law to the people (2:1-9). Those set apart to teach God's law to the people have a great responsibility and God will most assuredly demand an accounting.

2. Against the people (2:10-17; 3:7-15).

(1) For ungodly marriages (2:11, 12). God's purpose in the prohibition of mixed marriages was that He might raise up a holy seed (v. 15). The marriage of the believer with the unbeliever today brings confusion into the fold of God and turns aside His purpose.

(2) For divorce (2:13-16). Divorce in Israel was the source of great sorrow—even the tears of the wronged women covering the altar (v. 13).

(3) Public wrongs (3:5, 6).

a. Sorcery—magic arts. This includes the practice of occult sciences.

b. Adultery. This is a sin of wider extent than to the parties directly concerned. It is a canker which gnaws at the very heart of society. Unfaithfulness to the marriage relation should be regarded as a public sin.

c. False swearing.

d. Oppression of the hireling, widow and fatherless.

e. Turning aside the stranger from his rights.

(4) Withholding tithes (3:7-12). Failure to pay tithes is robbery of God. His claim upon Israel was the tenth, plus free-will offerings. Our responsibility is to give as God prospers us (I Cor. 16:1).

(5) Blasphemy (3:13-15). They openly spoke against God, saying that it was profitless to serve Him.

III. The Awful Judgment Which Shall Befall the Nation (3:1-5; 4:1-6).

1. By whom executed (v. 1).

It is to be done by the Lord. All judgment has been committed unto the Son of God (Jno. 5:22, 30, cf. Acts 17:30, 31). When Christ comes in power and glory to render judgment, He will distinguish between the righteous and the wicked, rewarding them according to their deeds.

2. The time of (3:2-4:1).

It will be at the second coming of Christ. John the Baptist was the forerunner of His first coming. Elijah will be the forerunner of His second coming.

3. The result (3:3, 4, 16-18; 4:1, 2).

For the righteous it will be a day of healing and salvation; for the wicked a day of burning and destruction.

More Sorrow, More Joy

The more sorrow the more joy. If we have loads of sorrow, then the Lord's power will turn them into tons of joy. Then the bitterer the trouble the sweeter the pleasures; the swinging of the pendulum far to the left will cause it to go all the farther to the right. The remembrance of the grief shall heighten the flavor to the delight; and the brilliance of the diamond shall be the more clearly seen because of the black foil behind it.—Spurgeon.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

THIS is the time of the year when the housewife looks up the favorite recipes for putting up things for winter.

Pepper Hash.

Take twelve each of red peppers, green peppers and onions the size of a small egg; three pints of vinegar, two cupfuls of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of salt. Peel the onions, remove the seeds and white fiber from the peppers and chop all very fine. Let stand five minutes and drain. Cook the vinegar, salt, sugar; add the peppers and onions and boil up once. Turn into sterilized jars and seal well.

Mustard Pickle.

Take twenty-four small cucumbers, one quart of small onions, two cauliflowers, two quarts of green tomatoes, six green peppers, one-half pound of mustard, one-half ounce of turmeric powder, three-fourths of a cupful of flour, one cupful of sugar, three and one-half quarts of vinegar.

Cut the vegetables into small pieces and let them stand over night in a strong salt and water. In the morning scald and drain thoroughly.

Mix the mustard, turmeric, flour and sugar to a paste with one pint of the vinegar; add this to the remaining vinegar which has been brought to the boiling point. Cook twenty minutes, add the vegetables and when cold place in jars and seal.

Oil Pickles.

If one likes olive oil, these will be greatly enjoyed. The oil should be of the best, nutty and sweet or the pickles will be a failure. Take one hundred small cucumbers and a dozen small onions. Slice the cucumbers without peeling—the onions quite thin. Sprinkle with salt and let stand over night in the salty brine. In the morning rinse off the salt and drain thoroughly. Place in jars, add the following: Two-thirds of a cupful of mustard seed, one tablespoonful each of celery seed and green pepper ground through the meat chopper, one cupful of olive oil and two quarts of vinegar. Mix all together and let stand for a day to season, then can in small jars. The pickles are not cooked. More salt may be needed to season—add it to taste.

Suggestions For Meal Planning For School Children

Breakfast should be a simple meal. Pancakes are a doubtful choice where children are concerned, because they are likely to be eaten hastily, poorly masticated, and require too much energy in digestion. It is better to serve warm, home-cooked cereals.

Breakfast

Fruits—fresh, baked, stewed, or fruit juice.
Plain milk or cocoa.
Buttered toast.
Cooked cereal or eggs.

The noon meal is another hurry-up meal in which the food must be nutritious and satisfying. Most authors find the one-dish meal the best for lunch. One can combine all sorts of good foods in one dish and put the whole thing in the oven. Here are a few varieties: spaghetti, macaroni, and cheese; baked beans with bacon; stew, corn chowder, or jumbelero, which is cooked rice and tomatoes and bits of bacon jumbled together and baked.

Luncheon

Creamed vegetables.
Broiled meat cakes.
Bread.
Butter.
Baked bananas or plain cake or cookies.
Milk.

The school child is entitled to something to eat when he comes home from school in the afternoon hungry. But candy and sweet cookies are not the things to give him. There is nothing that will so ruin his appetite for wholesome food as this between-meal nibbling of candy. An apple, an orange, a glass of grape juice or lemonade, or a slice of bread and butter and a small glass of milk if he is really hungry will satisfy the craving without spoiling his dinner.

After School Lunch

Apples, oranges, plain cake, or plain cookies, or bread and milk.

If the children have not had meat at noon they may have it at night. But once a day is enough. A green vegetable and a salad once daily are necessary, for growing bodies demand minerals and vitamins found in green vegetables, and there is such a number of them to choose from that none of us need be at a loss for variety. Good canned vegetables may be used when the fresh ones are out of season.

Eggs may be included in the evening meal. The desserts can be almost anything except pie, rich pastries, and rich puddings. The list of permitted desserts contain all milk desserts, fruit, and cereal puddings.

Dinner

Cooked vegetables.
Vegetable or fruit salad.
Bread.
Butter.
Fruit and cereal pudding, or plain cake or cookies.

Three Sample Dinners

First Dinner

Creamed carrots.
Individual chicken pie.
Rice.
Junket.
Milk or cocoa.

In the first dinner make the crust for the pie of butter, or vegetable fat, and roll it very thin. After stewing the chicken, take as much as is needed from the bones, cut in small pieces, make a good gravy, and when partially cool fill the pie and bake as usual.

Second Dinner

Mashed potato.
Broiled chopped meat cake.
Boiled beets.
Bread pudding.

In the second dinner be careful to make the meat cakes light and not too thick. Serve the beets with a simple sauce.

Third Dinner

Baked macaroni.
Broiled lamb chops.
Peas.
Frozen custard.

Cheese may be omitted from the macaroni in the third dinner, butter and cream taking its place. Make a good boiled custard and freeze it.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

WHO OWNS THE PICTURE?

A MASTERPIECE, the product of an old Flemish school, has disappeared from the Art museum at Antwerp. Though of small dimensions, only six by eight inches, it is valued at twenty-five thousand dollars. Undoubtedly the person who stole the picture hopes to realize a fabulous sum if he succeeds in evading arrest long enough to find a purchaser.

L. A. Barrett.

Immense sums of money, some as high as hundreds of thousands of dollars, are paid for famous paintings and other works of art. These valuable treasures, either through bequests or purchases, ultimately find their way into art galleries where the public, for a small admittance fee, may see them.

The question naturally arises: Who really owns the picture? The person who has sufficient money to buy it, or the art gallery to which it is bequeathed?

Real possession of an object is not necessarily gained by purchase. One person may hold a title deed to a piece of property environed by very beautiful scenery, but the person who really owns it is the one who is able to appreciate its beauty. For a certain price one may gain admittance to a famous opera or an evening's program by a great orchestra. The price paid for a seat, however generous, is no guarantee of an evening's enjoyment. On the contrary the performance may be very tedious. Like art, which conveys a message only to the person who has eyes to see, so music speaks a language only to those who have ears to hear.

Who owns all the beauty in the world? Not the person who because of his wealth may own a deed of possession, but the one, who through the cultivation of the sense of the beautiful is able to appropriate it; he is its real possessor.

The golden poppy is God's gold,
The gold that lifts, nor weighs us down,
The gold that knows no miser's hold,
The gold that banks not in the town,
But singing, laughing, freely spills
Its hoard far up the happy hills;
Far up, far down, at every turn,—
What beggar has not gold to burn!

"When a girl is said she looks sweet enough to eat, the man pays."

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

NOTHING IS AS BAD AS IT SEEMS!

IT WAS her first visit to a camp, and she was prepared for what she found.

Hot, tired, and wanting nothing in the world so much as to get out of her clothes and into a bath, she was led to a log cabin without walls! In lieu of walls there were heavy canvas awnings which, if let down to give privacy, would have shut out at the same time the faint breeze which that day seemed necessary for life.

Three crude cots—she would have two unknown roommates—and three open shelves topped by a small, poor mirror in a bad light. And she was so hot, and so tired.

"I CAN'T let down those heavy awnings in this sweltering heat," she complained to the boy who had carried her bag to the cabin. "HOW am I going to UNDRESS in this open place! No walls! Whoever heard of such a thing!"

The boy left her, and still in her hot traveling clothes she stretched herself gingerly upon one of the cots, ready to glare belligerently upon the first passer-by who should dare to look toward her reclining form.

One of the roommates, returning from the lake, found her that way. "How," the newcomer asked frigidly, "do you UNDRESS here? How do you bathe? How do you do anything? You know I didn't expect a private bath, but I did expect a HOUSE, something with walls, with privacy, something CIVILIZED! Why, if you pull down the awnings you must suffocate. If you don't, anybody can see you—a man might pass and see you no less than if you were undressing on the street!

"I guess," said the happy camper, "you must be very tired. We undress right here, and we don't usually bother with the awnings. The men don't come over to this side at all. Right now there isn't a soul here, since all the girls are still on the lake. Just do as I'm doing now. Take your things off, put on a wrapper, and come into the shower house with me. You'll get a refreshing shower and feel better about everything."

And she did.

"If only," she said the next morning, "that boy who carried my bag and whom I abused first, didn't talk about it. If only nobody knows how I acted and all the disagreeable things I said. Why, I told him this wasn't civilized! Now that I've got the hang of it, it looks so different!" Moral—Nothing is as bad as it seems, and it's wise not to shoot your head off until you've given things a chance.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TO DINE WITH DUKE HUMPHREY"

THIS phrase, meaning to have nothing to eat, comes to us from England where it has been in use for several hundred years.

Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, who lived from 1391 to 1447, the youngest son of Henry IV, was renowned for his hospitality and known around London as the "Good Duke." When he died there was talk of a monument to be erected to him in St. Paul's but he was at the time under a charge of treason, for which his wife, Eleanor Cobham, was serving a life term in prison and this was not done. Instead he was buried at St. Albans.

According to the story accredited in England, when idlers in the abbey leaving for their dinner would ask others whether they were going, too, those who had no meal to go to would answer that they would "stay awhile longer and look for the monument for the duke." So the expression "dining with Duke Humphrey" became popular in the old days in London and has survived in the language to this day.

A similar saying the same in meaning that is frequently used in England but is not so well known in this country, is "to sup with Sir Thomas Gresham," Sir Thomas Gresham being a sixteenth century financier and philanthropist among whose charities were eight alms houses.

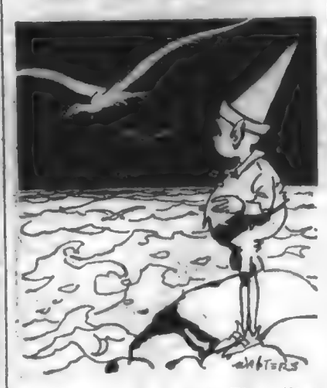
The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT MOTHER OCEAN

PETER GNOME came back to Fairyland one evening just as the stars were coming out and as Mr. Moon was peering down over the tops of the trees.



"Oh, such a splendid trip as I had," he said.

All the Gnomes and Brownies and Elves and Fairies wanted to hear about it.

"First of all I went where it was quite warm. I wandered down to have a look at old Mother Ocean and there I saw, on the sand, the loveliest sand house I have ever seen. It was rather wet and it stuck together beautifully, I must say, and on the top was a little thatched roof made out of seaweed.

"It was a beautiful sand house.

"Mother Ocean told me of some boy

"It Looked as Though They Were Having Gull School."

who said he had seen a big map, but he had no idea of how much space she took up until he took an ocean voyage and kept on going and going and still was on the ocean.

"He said, so Mother Ocean told me, that the 'Open Sea' was certainly very enormous, and it certainly meant something. For it was certainly open and nothing got in its way.

"And she said the boy seemed to be surprised that so many boats went on the ocean and yet, when they were out at sea, they saw hardly any—and only one or two as they were leaving.

"Mother Ocean was amused that the boy didn't begin to realize her great and enormous size until he took a trip with his family crossing the ocean.

"Then down by the bay (I wore my invisible robe—my suit which is made so human eyes can't see me), I watched some children playing among the stones.

"They were playing 'Castle' and days of long ago, and it seemed a beautiful game. They shrieked and squealed with great delight over it.

"Then I went along the street of a little town and the street was named Shoe Lane, but all the children playing along the street were bare-legged!

"They were playing by a narrow river stream and they were playing with a ball which constantly kept falling in the river.

"They really seemed to enjoy seeing it go in for the fun of getting it out, and they would lean down on the bank and try to kick out for it.

"Oh, one child wore shoes, but she went in the water just the same and when she drew her feet out she would jump up and down and try to push the water out. I was dreadfully afraid she would get cold, but it seemed these were to protect her feet which she had hurt on the stones the week before.

"Then I passed by a long, long row of gulls sitting on the narrow ridge around a long building, and on the fence in front of the building was another long row of gulls.

"It looked as though they were having gull school and as though when some one sat on one leg that they were doing this to let the teacher know that they were putting up a hand to show they could answer the question.

"Other gulls I saw flying so beautifully with their feet tucked neatly under them and I heard one say to the other:

"'With all their great ideas and inventions if a boat rocks the people rock too, but we are not bothered by a rough sea passage as our wings carry us where we wish to go.'

"Then I saw an elephant in the zoo and it was a holiday. He was giving the children rides. And there was always a line waiting to climb upon his back. It was certainly his busy day, I said to myself.

"And again I passed by Mother Ocean. Only she was very rough and angry and I said to myself it was a good thing the Wave children didn't mind.

"Certainly real children could never stand so angry a mother. It was raining hard, too. I couldn't imagine that the ocean needed rain. She didn't have any crops to think about or any garden. And she had all the water she needed. But still it was pouring.

"I passed by a house and took a peep in the window where some children were having a party and they had their dolls with them. The dolls were dressed in all kinds of costumes and one in a party dress sat beside a doll in a calico jumper and I was glad to see that there was no foolish snobbery in the doll world.

"And then, on my way home, I saw a beautiful rainbow, which I thought was a lovely ending to my trip."

CONCERT-LECTURE SERIES FOR WHOLE FAMILY SCHEDULED

Werrenrath Opens Series With Concert; Mastersingers in First Local Appearance

The Capital University Conservatory Concert-Lecture series will offer to the people of Columbus some of the best programs in concerts and lectures to be heard here during the coming season. The course is well balanced and varied, so as to accommodate all tastes and preferences.

The schedule for the series is as follows: Reinald Werrenrath, "America's Beloved Baritone," on November 15; Josef Lhevinne, famous Russian Pianist on December 6; the Vienna Mastersingers, a beautifully blended chorus of boys' voices, October 18; the Capital University Chapel Choir, a well known local organization, April 6. In addition to these concerts two other programs of interest and distinction will be presented. Zellner, the wizard at impersonations, will be heard in his famous presentation, "Flashes from Life, History and Literature," on November 26; and Pillsbury, the well known naturalist, will deliver a lecture on growing plants and animals, with motion picture illustrations, on February 6.

Reinald Werrenrath was born and trained in America. Being the possessor of a splendid heritage of musical tradition from ancestors who were all successful as musicians, it was quite inevitable that he should become a great singer. Today he stands pre-eminent, not only as one of the foremost concert baritones of his time, but also as one of the outstanding musical personalities America has produced.

The first home of Josef Lhevinne was in a small village near Moscow. His early musical instruction was received from his father who was a horn player in the Royal Opera. He later studied under the great Anton Rubinstein, later winning the Rubinstein prize scholarship over a field of thirty-two contestants. From that time his ultimate rise to fame was assured.

The Vienna Mastersingers are touring America for the first time and their concert in Columbus will be one of the delightful musical novelties of the current season. It is said to be one of the most perfect singing bodies of its kind. The chorus consists of a group of boys who have trained from childhood for choral singing in the Imperial Venitian Court.

The Capital University Chapel Choir will be heard in its only local concert on April 6. It is conducted by Mr. Ellis Snyder, who has recently enlarged the chorus, and it is expected to be of real eminence in its particular type of music.

Zellner, characterist, is one of the foremost men in the country in presenting realistic and convincing impersonations. His presentation is an innovation in modern entertainment, and will interest all who love drama.

Mr. Pillsbury's illustrated lecture on growing plants, will interest the lay mind as well as those concerned about the technical phases of the subjects to be discussed.

Tickets are on sale at the Capital Conservatory Box Office, and at Heatons Music Store.

BEXLEY HIGH GRADS ENTER WESLEYAN

Six members of the 1929 graduating class of Bexley High school entered Ohio Wesleyan university this month. These students are: Burton Elder, Marjorie Dieterich, David Strickler, Garnet Cain, Marion Manly and Jack Boyland.

Five of this group made the "A" group in the English placement examination for freshmen.

CHURCH HOLDS EXERCISES

The annual promotion exercises of the Junior and Intermediate Christian Endeavour Societies of the Miller Avenue Evangelical Church, will be held Sunday evening, Sept. 29, at 7:30.

A very interesting program has been arranged by the three societies, and Mr. "Wop" Young, Supt. of the Young People's Division of the Ohio Council of Religious Education, has been secured as the speaker.

Others taking part in the program are Virginia Holycross, Ruth Van Hoose, Lucille Howard, Maxine Maxwell, and David Skeen.

Rev. C. L. Allen is the pastor.

TO OPEN NEW GARAGE

A new garage will be opened at the corner of Lilley and Main streets, next Tuesday, October 1, by the Martin Service Company.

All work at the new garage will be guaranteed. No charge for towing will be made when the Martin service company does the work.

Martin has had 17 years of experience as a mechanic.

BOY'S DAY SCHOOL OPENS FOURTH YEAR

Three former and one new registrant from the East Side are included in the group of youths participating in the opening of the fourth year of the Y. M. C. A. day school for boys.

Clarence Douglas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Douglas, 1420 Franklin avenue; Fred Hansberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Hansberger, 1517 E. Fulton street, and Ernest Menendian, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Menendian, 70 S. Ohio avenue, are among the last year's students who are resuming their studies at the Y this fall.

Horace Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dye, 1527 Oak street, is a new boy at the downtown prep school this fall.

General activities are getting under way, with the football team playing its first regular game this weekend and the schedule of special lectures launched. Douglas, a regular last year, was again in the lineup when the Maroons and St. Marys tied in a practice game last Friday afternoon.

HOLD "OLD HYMN NIGHT"

The First Presbyterian church, Bryden road and Ohio avenue, will observe "Old Hymn Night" next Sunday evening. The minister will give a brief sketch of the history of each hymn, after which it will be sung.

The recently organized Willets Young Peoples Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Laughridge Heiston, will sing two numbers, "The Church's One Foundation" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." There are about thirty children in this choir.

The remainder of the program is as follows: "Jesus Lover of My Soul," sung by Mrs. Arthur Kiefer; "Rock of Ages," by Mrs. Alice Heiston; "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," by Mr. Arthur Kiefer, and "Lead Kindly Light," "Just As I Am" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by the Church quartette.

The congregation will sing "O Day of Rest and Gladness," "O God of Bethel" and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

Due to the fact that remodeling in the church auditorium is not quite completed, the services will be held in the Sunday school auditorium.

RADIO AUDIENCE MISTAKEN

An amusing incident occurred during one of the weekly broadcasts of Rev. John Burton Thwing from WAIU, Sunday at 7 o'clock.

The Bexley Male Quartette, his own new organization, took part in his program for the first time, the occasion being Emancipation Day. Dr. Thwing has usually included a spiritual in each program, but in honor of the day, the quartette sang two, and he sang another himself.

A number of students, friends of a member of the quartette, were listening in, and, not being aware of the organization in which he sang, said that they had heard some fine work by a Negro quartette, but "by the time the Negroes got through" Dr. Thwing's talk was all they heard.

It was an unsought compliment to the dialect and manner of the singers, who, of course, were white Ohioans.

Next time they will only sing one spiritual.

EAST HIGH STUDENT WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Lucile C. Lippert, a junior at East High school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lippert, 371 Stoddart avenue, was the winner of the piano scholarship given by the Capital University Conservatory of Music.

Miss Lippert will now study under Mr. Loy G. Kohler, teacher of piano at the Conservatory.

Miss Lippert is a member of the Saturday Music Club and the Gamut Club, a musical club at East High, which is under the direction of Miss Harriet Batterson, the head of the music department.

The Sunday evening services of the Morgan Memorial church will be absolutely different from the regular services. A tableau and pictures will be presented showing Wesley preaching to the Indians.

BOARD OF ED. PLANS FOR INCREASE IN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Ask Bexley People to Support Bond For Erection Of New Building

Few High schools have had a more remarkable increase in attendance than Bexley High. Five years ago the attendance in the Senior High school was only 147, today it is 388, an increase of 247 or approximately 164%. The Freshman class of this year is as large as the entire High School was five years ago. The graduating class of 1925 had 18 members, the class of 1929 numbered 65, a gain of 47 or over 260%. The increase in the size of the graduating classes, in percent, exceeds the increase, in percent, of the attendance by about 100%. This indicates that a larger percent of Bexley's students than formerly are remaining in the high school until they complete their four year's work.

The increase in attendance in five years in the grades below the Senior High school is approximately 140% or slightly lower in percent than the increase in the High School. The result is that many of the classes of the first six grades are larger than they should be if the highest standard of work is to be attained.

Some of the classes enroll more than forty and the average in the Cassingham Road building is approximately 38; in the Main street building it is slightly less. Confronted with crowded conditions in both the High School and grades the Board of Education plans to relieve the situation by asking the people of Bexley to support a bond issue in November for $490,000 for the erection and equipment of a new High school building and for additions to other buildings. It is the plan of the Board of Education to use the present High school building with necessary additions as a Junior High school and grade building and thus eliminate the crowded condition throughout the schools. It is obvious that in a rapidly growing community like Bexley the problem of providing sufficient school buildings is always pressing. Fortunately, however, Bexley's problems along this line can be solved permanently by the passage of the bond issue as both the population and school attendance of Bexley are limited due to the fact that our boundary lines are definitely determined. This bond issue should provide adequate, well-equipped buildings for any possible growth in Bexley's school population.

CAPITAL OPENS SEASON SCHEDULE

Coach Billy Bernlohr of Capital university sends his first Capital team into action tomorrow afternoon when the locals open the season with the Muskingum eleven at New Concord. Hopes for a Capital victory are low.

Bernlohr has only five lettermen around which to build his grid machine. Three of these are in the backfield, and only two on the line. Although the Bexley mentor seems to have little trouble with the prospect of ball carriers, yet he is having a difficult time getting his line in good shape for the initial fray of the season.

Then there is an old tradition that says Muskingum is unbeatable as far as Capital is concerned. For four seasons of organized competition the schools have met, and each time the Lutherans have bowed to the attacks of the Muskies. However, the Capital teams have always been able to score on the other team no matter how overwhelming the opposition seemed.

Incidentally, the old-timers may recall the first football battle that Capital officially played. The game was played with Muskingum in 1920. The authorities had frowned upon intercollegiate football, but permission was granted and the Capital boys trained without a coach. The game, which was won by the Muskies, was the last one played by Capital until 1923, when permission was officially granted. Muskingum was not met again until 1925.

Whether or not the tradition will hold good remains to be seen. Bernlohr's proteges will make a desperate attempt to upset the jinx that Muskingum seems to hold over the Purple camp.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Brewer, 1149 Franklin avenue, entertained with a dinner at their home Tuesday evening.

TIMES OFFICE MOVED

TIMES WILL LAUNCH CAMPAIGN OCT. 1ST

Contribution-Subscripion System Adopted For Eastern Times Canvass

A contribution-subscription campaign will be launched by the Eastern Times the week beginning Monday, October 21.

Every family on the east side and Bexley will be requested to contribute what the paper is worth to them. No set rate for subscriptions will be made, everyone can contribute any amount they choose.

The contribution-subscription plan has been adopted by the management because they believe it is futile to evaluate the paper by any one specific sum. By the proposed plan, each family can judge the value of the paper to them and contribute accordingly.

The management believes the people of the East Side and Bexley will be interested in supporting the Eastern Times, an institution devoted to the interests of the people in this locality and dedicated to their service.

It would be unfair to expect the advertisers to carry a larger share of the constantly mounting costs of publishing a community newspaper and by the contribution-subscription system every family in the area served by the Times will have an opportunity to help in its support.

Everyone contributing to the campaign will be entitled [illegible] subscription.

AN OPEN LETTER

To Editor of The Eastern Times:

Thinking it may interest you to be informed of the results obtained from our ad on the Employment Bureau at Capital University, I take this opportunity to tell you that we are highly pleased in every respect.

We feel also that the Bexley public appreciates the service rendered them by The Eastern Times in bringing our Employment Service to their attention.

Cordially yours,

(Signed) CHAS. H. RAGSDALE,

Supervisor of Employment.

BUILDING RULE REVISED BY VOTE OF BEXLEY COUNCIL

Ban On Wooden Houses Lifted By Council; New Light Installed

Restrictions against the erection of wooden dwellings in a section of Bexley were removed at the Council meeting Tuesday evening.

Specifications of the United States Bureau of Standards furnished grounds to remove the restrictions in future construction on Rhul avenue, from the east corporation line to Cassady avenue.

The Columbus Lumbermen were well represented by R. G. Kimball, Washington, D. C., who was successful in representing that Council had been ill advised in passing an ordinance against frame houses.

The paving of Main street from Parkview avenue to Alum Creek bridge was postponed until spring.

Hartley Peterson, Bexley attorney, was instructed to advise Hansberger, Marion and Beery, contractors that they had exceeded their time limit in the installing of sidewalks on their Cassady avenue property.

A new type of traffic light was ordered installed for approval at Cassingham avenue and Elm street, near the junior high school. The old light taken from there will be installed at Cassady and Broad streets.

Contract for the Livingston avenue intercepting sewer was won by Ben Canini, 369 Clinton Heights avenue with a bid of $12,210.25.

A slight change was made in the contemplated extension of Pleasant Ridge avenue, from a dead end at Aster avenue to Livingston avenue. The street will turn at a right angle for a block on Aster avenue then be cut through to Francis street, and run on Francis to Livingston, instead of cutting directly through as before planned.

ANNUAL FRESHMAN WEEK OBSERVED AT CAPITAL

Out at Capital University life has been anything but pleasant for the freshmen this past week. It was all brought about by the annual class fight. As usual the yearlings lost the fracas and with the loss came the obeying of numerous rules formulated by the sophomores.

On Monday, all freshmen were required to have their noses painted a bright shade of red. Tuesday was set aside as the annual Peanut Day, when yearling students were required to furnish all upperclassmen with peanuts when asked. All freshmen were required to pull a toy on wheels after them on Wednesday.

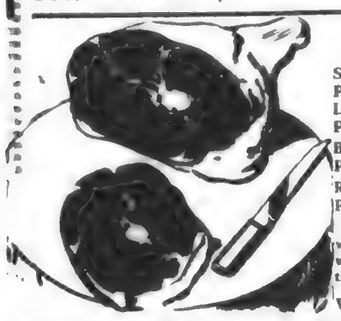
Whatever peanut shucks and paper may have been resultant of Tuesday was dutifully cleaned up on Thursday, when each new student carried a waste basket with him or her while on the campus. Friday ended the stunts. On the final day, each co-ed was required to wear her dress backwards, while the men wore their shirts wrong side to the front.

The freshmen caps made their appearance last Monday and must be worn until Christmas. For the first semester, the two main walks of the campus, the Center walk and Drexel walk, were forbidden to Freshmen. As for dates, Freshmen boys are permitted feminine company only on Monday nights, and the co-eds only on Wednesday evenings. This lasts for two weeks. For a similar period, no new student is permitted to smoke on the campus.

Rules for the entire year state that the Freshmen class shall raise and lower the flag each day. Also, after each athletic victory, the old bell in the Recitation Hall must be rung. Freshmen must also pass out hymnals in Chapel exercises. These last rules are traditional on the Capital campus. This is the only form of hasing permitted on the Lutheran campus.

GIRL YOUNGEST HUNTER

Clara Ketner, aged 18, of 2959 Fair avenue, Bexley, got her quota of squirrels on the opening day of the season in spite of the fact that she is the youngest licensed woman hunter in Franklin county. In company with her father, F. G. Ketner, she shot four squirrels in Highland county woods.



Miss Ketner, a graduate of Bexley High school and a sophomore at Ohio State university, owns a [illegible] gauge double-barrel, and [illegible] her limit of game.

Suggestions For Meal Planning For School Children

Breakfast should be a simple meal. Pancakes are a doubtful choice where children are concerned, because they are likely to be eaten hastily, poorly masticated, and require too much energy in digestion. It is better to serve warm, home-cooked cereals.

Breakfast

Fruits—fresh, baked, stewed, or fruit juice.
Plain milk or cocoa.
Buttered toast.
Cooked cereal or eggs.

The noon meal is another hurry-up meal in which the food must be nutritious and satisfying. Most authors find the one-dish meal the best for lunch. One can combine all sorts of good foods in one dish and put the whole thing in the oven. Here are a few varieties: spaghetti, macaroni, and cheese; baked beans with bacon; stew, corn chowder, or jumbelero, which is cooked rice and tomatoes and bits of bacon jumbled together and baked.

Luncheon

Creamed vegetables.
Broiled meat cakes.
Bread.
Butter.
Baked banannas or plain cake or cookies.
Milk.

The school child is entitled to something to eat when he comes home from school in the afternoon hungry. But candy and sweet cookies are not the things to give him. There is nothing that will so ruin his appetite for wholesome food as this between-meal nibbling of candy. An apple, an orange, a glass of grape juice or lemonade, or a slice of bread and butter and a small glass of milk if he is really hungry will satisfy the craving without spoiling his dinner.

After School Lunch

Apples, oranges, plain cake, or plain cookies, or bread and milk.

If the children have not had meat at noon they may have it at night. But once a day is enough. A green vegetable and a salad once daily are necessary, for growing bodies demand minerals and vitamins found in green vegetables, and there is such a number of them to choose from that none of us need be at a loss for variety. Good canned vegetables may be used when the fresh ones are out of season.

Eggs may be included in the evening meal. The desserts can be almost anything except pie, rich pastries, and rich puddings. The list of permitted desserts contain all milk desserts, fruit, and cereal puddings.

Dinner

Cooked vegetables.
Vegetable or fruit salad.
Bread.
Butter.
Fruit and cereal pudding, or plain cake or cookies.

Three Sample Dinners

First Dinner

Creamed carrots.
Individual chicken pie.
Rice.
Junket.
Milk or cocoa.

In the first dinner make the crust for the pid of butter, or vegetable fat, and roll it very thin. After stewing the chicken, take as much as is needed from the bones, cut in small pieces, make a good gravy, and when partially cool fill the pie and bake as usual.

Second Dinner

Mashed potato.
Broiled chopped meat cake.
Boiled beets.
Bread pudding.

In the second dinner be careful to make the meat cakes light and not too thick. Serve the beets with a simple sauce.

Third Dinner

Baked macaroni.
Broiled lamb chops.
Peas.
Frozen custard.

Cheese may be omitted from the macaroni in the third dinner, butter and cream taking its place. Make a good boiled custard and freeze it.

WHO OWNS THE PICTURE?

A MASTERPIECE, the product of an old Flemish school, has disappeared from the Art museum at Antwerp. Though of small dimensions, only six by eight inches, it is valued at twenty-five thousand dollars. Undoubtedly the person who stole the picture hopes to realize a fabulous sum if he succeeds in evading arrest long enough to find a purchaser.

L. A. Barrett.

Immense sums of money, some as high as hundreds of thousands of dollars, are paid for famous paintings and other works of art. These valuable treasures, other through bequests or purchases, ultimately find their way into art galleries where the public, for a small admittance fee, may see them.

The question naturally arises: Who really owns the picture? The person who has sufficient money to buy it, or the art gallery to which it is bequeathed?

Real possession of an object is not necessarily gained by purchase. One person may hold a title deed to a piece of property environed by very beautiful scenery, but the person who really owns it is the one who is able to appreciate its beauty. For a certain price one may gain admittance to a famous opera or an evening's program by a great orchestra. The price paid for a seat, however generous, is no guarantee of an evening's enjoyment. On the contrary the performance may be very tedious. Like art, which conveys a message only to the person who has eyes to see, so music speaks a language only to those who have ears to hear.

Who owns all the beauty in the world? Not the person who because of his wealth may own a deed of possession, but the one, who through the cultivation of the sense of the beautiful is able to appropriate it; he is its real possessor.

The golden poppy is God's gold,
The gold that lifts, nor weighs us down,
The gold that knows no miser's hold,
The gold that banks not in the town,
But singing, laughing, freely spills
Its hoard far up the happy hills;
Far up, far down, at every turn,—
What beggar has not gold to burn!

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

NOTHING IS AS BAD AS IT SEEMS!

IT WAS her first visit to a camp, and she was prepared for what she found.

Hot, tired, and wanting nothing in the world so much as to get out of her clothes and into a bath, she was led to a log cabin without walls! In lieu of walls there were heavy canvas awnings which, if let down to give privacy, would have shut out at the same time the faint breeze which that day seemed necessary for life.

Three crude cots—she would have two unknown roommates—and three open shelves topped by a small, poor mirror in a bad light. And she was so hot, and so tired.

"I CAN'T let down those heavy awnings in this sweltering heat," she complained to the boy who had carried her bag to the cabin. "HOW am I going to UNDRESS in this open place! No walls! Whoever heard of such a thing!"

The boy left her, and still in her hot traveling clothes she stretched herself gingerly upon one of the cots, ready to glare belligerently upon the first passer-by who should dare to look toward her reclining form.

One of the roommates, returning from the lake, found her that way. "How," the newcomer asked frigidly, "do you UNDRESS here? How do you bathe? How do you do anything? You know I didn't expect a private bath, but I did expect a HOUSE, something with walls, with privacy, something CIVILIZED! Why, if you pull down the awnings you must suffocate. If you don't, anybody can see you—a man might pass and see you no less than if you were undressing on the street!

"I guess," said the happy camper, "you must be very tired. We undress right here, and we don't usually bother with the awnings. The men don't come over to this side at all. Right now there isn't a soul here, since all the girls are still on the lake. Just do as I'm doing now. Take your things off, put on a wrapper, and come into the shower house with me. You'll get a refreshing shower and feel better about everything."

And she did.

"If only," she said the next morning, "that boy who carried my bag and whom I abused first, didn't talk about it. If only nobody knows how I acted and all the disagreeable things I said. Why, I told him this wasn't civilized! Now that I've got the hang of it, it looks so different!"

Moral—Nothing is as bad as it seems, and it's wise not to shoot your head off until you've given things a chance.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TO DINE WITH DUKE HUMPHREY"

THIS phrase, meaning to have nothing to eat, comes to us from England where it has been in use for several hundred years.

Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, who lived from 1391 to 1447, the youngest son of Henry IV, was renowned for his hospitality and known around London as the "Good Duke." When he died there was talk of a monument to be erected to him in St. Paul's but he was at the time under a charge of treason, for which his wife, Eleanor Cobham, was serving a life term in prison and this was not done. Instead he was buried at St. Albans.

According to the story accredited in England, when bills in the abbey leaving for their dinner would ask others whether they were going, too, those who had no meal to go to would answer that they would "stay awhile longer and look for the monument for the duke." So the expression "dining with Duke Humphrey" became popular in the old days in London and has survived in the language to this day.

A similar saying the same in meaning that is frequently used in England, but is not so well known in this country, is "to sup with Sir Thomas Gresham." Sir Thomas Gresham being a Sixteenth century financier and philanthropist among whose charities were eight alms houses.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT MOTHER OCEAN

PETER GNOME came back to Fairyland one evening just as the stars were coming out and as Mr. Moon was peering down over the tops of the trees.

"Oh, such a splendid trip as I had," he said.

All the Gnomes and Brownies and Elves and Fairies wanted to hear about it.

"First of all I went where it was quite warm. I wandered down to have a look at old Mother Ocean and there I saw, on the sand, the loveliest sand house I have ever seen. It was rather wet and it stuck together beautifully, I must say, and on the top was a little thatched roof made out of seaweed.

"It was a beautiful sand house.

"Mother Ocean told me of some boy

"It Looked as Though They Were Having Gull School."

who said he had seen a big map, but he had no idea of how much space she took up until he took an ocean voyage and kept on going and going and still was on the ocean.

"He said, so Mother Ocean told me, that the 'Open Sea' was certainly very enormous, and it certainly meant something. For it was certainly open and nothing got in its way.

"And she said the boy seemed to be surprised that so many boats went on the ocean and yet, when they were out at sea, they saw hardly any—and only one or two as they were leaving.

"Mother Ocean was amused that the boy didn't begin to realize her great and enormous size until he took a trip with his family crossing the ocean.

"Then down by the bay (I wore my invisible robe—my suit which is made so human eyes can't see me), I watched some children playing among the stones.

"They were playing 'Castle' and days of long ago, and it seemed a beautiful game. They shrieked and squealed with great delight over it.

"Then I went along the street of a little town and the street was named Shoe Lane, but all the children playing along the street were bare-legged!

"They were playing by a narrow river stream and they were playing with a ball which constantly kept falling in the river.

"They really seemed to enjoy seeing it go in for the fun of getting it out, and they would lean down on the bank and try to kick out for it.

"Oh, one child wore shoes, but she went in the water just the same and when she drew her feet out she would jump up and down and try to push the water out. I was dreadfully afraid she would get cold, but it seemed these were to protect her feet which she had hurt on the stones the week before.

"Then I passed by a long, long row of gulls sitting on the narrow ridge around a long building, and on the fence in front of the building was another long row of gulls.

"It looked as though they were having gull school and as though when some one sat on one leg that they were doing this to let the teacher know that they were putting up a hand to show they could answer the question.

"Other gulls I saw flying so beautifully with their feet tucked neatly under them and I heard one say to the other:

"'With all their great ideas and inventions if a boat rocks the people rock too, but we are not bothered by a rough sea passage as our wings carry us where we wish to go.'

"Then I saw an elephant in the zoo and it was a holiday. He was giving the children rides. And there was always a line waiting to climb upon his back. It was certainly his busy day, I said to myself.

"And again I passed by Mother Ocean. Only she was very rough and angry and I said to myself it was a good thing the Wave children didn't mind.

"Certainly real children could never stand so angry a mother. It was raining hard, too. I couldn't imagine that the ocean needed rain. She didn't have any crops to think about or any garden. And she had all the water she needed. But still it was pouring.

"I passed by a house and took a peep in the window where some children were having a party and they had their dolls with them. The dolls were dressed in all kinds of costumes and one in a party dress sat beside a doll in a calico jumper and I was glad to see that there was no foolish snobbery in the doll world.

"And then, on my way home, I saw a beautiful rainbow, which I thought was a lovely ending to my trip."

CONCERT-LECTURE SERIES FOR WHOLE FAMILY SCHEDULED

Werrenrath Opens Series With Concert; Mastersingers in First Local Appearance

The Capital University Conservatory Concert-Lecture series will offer to the people of Columbus some of the best programs in concerts and lectures to be heard here during the coming season. The course is well balanced and varied, so as to accommodate all tastes and preferences.

The schedule for the series is as follows: Reinald Werrenrath, "America's Beloved Baritone," on November 15; Josef Lhevinne, Famous Russian Pianist on December 6; the Vienna Mastersingers, a beautifully blended chorus of boys' voices, October 18; the Capital University Chapel Choir, a well known local organization, April 6. In addition to these concerts two other programs of interest and distinction will be presented. Zellner, the wizard of impersonations, will be heard in his famous presentation, "Flashes from Life, History and Literature," on November 26; and Pillsbury, the well known naturalist, will deliver a lecture on growing plants and animals, with motion picture illustrations, on February 6.

Reinald Werrenrath was born and trained in America. Being the possessor of a splendid heritage of musical tradition from ancestors who were all successful as musicians, it was quite inevitable that he should become a great singer. Today he stands pre-eminent, not only as one of the foremost concert baritones of his time, but also as one of the outstanding musical personalities America has produced.

The first home of Josef Lhevinne was in a small village near Moscow. His early musical instruction was received from his father who was a horn player in the Royal Opera. He later studied under the great Anton Rubinstein, later winning the Rubinstein prize scholarship over a field of thirty-two contestants. From that time his ultimate rise to fame was assured.

The Vienna Mastersingers are touring America for the first time and their concert in Columbus will be one of the delightful musical novelties of the current season. It is said to be one of the most perfect singing bodies of its kind. The chorus consists of a group of boys who have trained from childhood for choral singing in the Imperial Venitian Court.

The Capital University Chapel Choir will be heard in its only local concert on April 6. It is conducted by Mr. Ellis Snyder, who has recently enlarged the chorus, and it is expected to be of real eminence in its particular type of music.

Zelner, characterist, is one of the foremost men in the country in presenting realistic and convincing impersonations. His presentation is an innovation in modern entertainment, and will interest all who love drama.

Mr. Pillsbury's illustrated lecture on growing plants, will interest the lay mind as well as those concerned about the technical phases of the subjects to be discussed.

Tickets are on sale at the Capital Conservatory Box Office, and at Heatons Music Store.

BEXLEY HIGH GRADS ENTER WESLEYAN

Six members of the 1929 graduating class of Bexley High school entered Ohio Wesleyan university this month. These students are: Burton Elder, Marjorie Dieterich, David Strickler, Garnet Cain, Marion Manly and Jack Boyland.

Five of this group made the "A" group in the English placement examination for freshmen.

CHURCH HOLDS EXERCISES

The annual promotion exercises of the Junior and Intermediate Christian Endeavour Societies of the Miller Avenue Evangelical Church, will be held Sunday evening, Sept. 29, at 7:30.

A very interesting program has been arranged by the three societies, and Mr. "Wop" Young, Supt. of the Young People's Division of the Ohio Council of Religious Education, has been secured as the speaker.

Others taking part in the program are Virginia Holycross, Ruth Van Hesse, Lucille Howard, Maxine Maxwell, and David Skeen.

Rev. C. L. Allen is the pastor.

TO OPEN NEW GARAGE

A new garage will be opened at the corner of Lilley and Main streets, next Tuesday, October 1, by the Martin Service Company.

All work at the new garage will be guaranteed. No charge for towing will be made when the Martin service company does the work.

Martin has had 17 years of experience as a mechanic.

BOY'S DAY SCHOOL OPENS FOURTH YEAR

Three former and one new registrant from the East Side are included in the group of youths participating in the opening of the fourth year of the Y. M. C. A. day school for boys.

Clarence Douglas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Douglas, 1420 Franklin avenue; Fred Hansberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Hansberger, 1517 E. Fulton street, and Ernest Menendian, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Menendian, 70 S. Ohio avenue, are among the last year's students who are resuming their studies at the Y this fall.

Horace Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dye, 1227 Oak street, is a new boy at the downtown prep school this fall.

General activities are getting under way, with the football team playing its first regular game this weekend and the schedule of special lectures launched. Douglas, a regular last year, was again in the lineup when the Maroons and St. Marys tied in a practice game last Friday afternoon.

HOLD "OLD HYMN NIGHT"

The First Presbyterian church, Bryden road and Ohio avenue, will observe "Old Hymn Night" next Sunday evening. The minister will give a brief sketch of the history of each hymn, after which it will be sung.

The recently organized Willetts Young Peoples Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Laughridge Heiston, will sing two numbers, "The Church's One Foundation" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." There are about thirty children in this choir.

The remainder of the program is as follows: "Jesus Lover of My Soul," sung by Mrs. Arthur Kiefer; "Rock of Ages," by Mrs. Alice Heiston; "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," by Mr. Arthur Kiefer, and "Lead Kindly Light," "Just As I Am" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by the Church quartette.

The congregation will sing "O Day of Rest and Gladness," "O God of Bethel" and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

Due to the fact that remodeling in the church auditorium is not quite completed, the services will be held in the Sunday school auditorium.

RADIO AUDIENCE MISTAKEN

An amusing incident occurred during one of the weekly broadcasts of Rev. John Burton Thwing from WAIU, Sunday at 7 o'clock.

The Bexley Male Quartette, his own new organization, took part in his program for the first time, the occasion being Emancipation Day. Dr. Thwing has usually included a spiritual in each program, but in honor of the day, the quartette sang two, and he sang another himself.

A number of students, friends of a member of the quartette, were listening in, and, not being aware of the organization in which he sang, said that they had heard some fine work by a Negro quartette, but "by the time the Negroes got through" Dr. Thwing's talk was all they heard.

It was an unsought compliment to the dialect and manner of the singers, who, of course, were white Ohioans.

Next time they will only sing one spiritual.

EAST HIGH STUDENT WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Lucile C. Lippert, a junior at East High school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lippert, 371 Stoddart avenue, was the winner of the piano scholarship given by the Capital University Conservatory of Music.

Miss Lippert will now study under Mr. Loy G. Kohler, teacher of piano at the Conservatory.

Miss Lippert is a member of the Saturday Music Club and the Gamut Club, a musical club at East High, which is under the direction of Miss Harriet Batterson, the head of the music department.

The contest closes Sunday noon and the award will be made at the Sunday evening service. Merchandise has been donated by Main street stores for the prizes.

The pageant was built around the "Old Trail" and was directed by Clarence Sullivan of the Ursuline Sullivan Studios.

BOARD OF ED. PLANS FOR INCREASE IN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Ask Bexley People to Support Bond For Erection Of New Building

Few High schools have had a more remarkable increase in attendance than Bexley High. Five years ago the attendance in the Senior High school was only 147, today it is 388, an increase of 247 or approximately 164%. The Freshman class of this year is as large as the entire High School was five years ago. The graduating class of 1925 had 18 members, the class of 1929 numbered 65, a gain of 47 or over 260%. The increase in the size of the graduating classes, in percent, exceeds the increase, in percent, of the attendance by about 100%. This indicates that a larger percent of Bexley's students than formerly are remaining in the high school until they complete their four year's work.

The increase in attendance in five years in the grades below the Senior High school is approximately 140% or slightly lower in percent than the increase in the High School. The result is that many of the classes of the first six grades are larger than they should be if the highest standard of work is to be attained.

Some of the classes enroll more than forty and the average in the Cassingham Road building is approximately 38; in the Main street building it is slightly less. Confronted with crowded conditions in both the High School and grades the Board of Education plans to relieve the situation by asking the people of Bexley to support a bond issue in November for $490,000 for the erection and equipment of a new High school building and for additions to other buildings. It is the plan of the Board of Education to use the present High school building with necessary additions as a Junior High school and grade building and thus eliminate the crowded condition throughout the schools. It is obvious that in a rapidly growing community like Bexley the problem of providing sufficient school buildings is always pressing. Fortunately, however, Bexley's problems along this line can be solved permanently by the passage of the bond issue as both the population and school attendance of Bexley are limited due to the fact that our boundary lines are definitely determined. This bond issue should provide adequate, well-equipped buildings for any possible growth in Bexley's school population.

CAPITAL OPENS SEASON SCHEDULE

Coach Billy Bernlohr of Capital university sends his first Capital team into action tomorrow afternoon when the locals open the season with the Muskingum eleven at New Concord. Hopes for a Capital victory are low.

Bernlohr has only five lettermen around which to build his grid machine. Three of these are in the backfield, and only two on the line. Although the Bexley mentor seems to have little trouble with the prospect of ball carriers, yet he is having a difficult time getting his line in good shape for the initial fray of the season.

Then there is an old tradition that says Muskingum is unbeatable as far as Capital is concerned. For four seasons of organized competition the schools have met, and each time the Lutherans have bowed to the attacks of the Muskies. However, the Capital teams have always been able to score on the other team no matter how overwhelming the opposition seemed.

Incidentally, the old-timers may recall the first football battle that Capital officially played. The game was played with Muskingum in 1920. The authorities had frowned upon intercollegiate football, but permission was granted and the Capital boys trained without a coach. The game, which was won by the Muskies, was the last one played by Capital until 1928, when permission was officially granted. Muskingum was not met again until 1925.

Whether or not the tradition will hold good remains to be seen. Bernlohr's protages will make a desperate attempt to upset the jinx that Muskingum seems to hold over the Purple camp.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Brewer, 1140 Franklin avenue, entertained with a dinner at their home Tuesday evening.

TIMES OFFICE MOVED

The office of The Eastern Times has been moved to Apt. A, 1445 East Main street. The telephone number, FRanklin 0560, remains the same.

All communications to The Eastern Times should be addressed to 1445 E. Main street. We are always glad to have news and society items telephoned in to us. The Eastern Times can still be reached as usual by calling FRanklin 0560.

TIMES WILL LAUNCH CAMPAIGN OCT. 1ST

Contribution-Subscription System Adopted For Eastern Times Canvass

A contribution-subscription campaign will be launched by the Eastern Times the week beginning Monday, October 21.

Every family on the east side and Bexley will be requested to contribute what the paper is worth to them. No set rate for subscriptions will be made, everyone can contribute any amount they choose.

The contribution-subscription plan has been adopted by the management because they believe it is futile to evaluate the paper by any one specific sum. By the proposed plan, each famcan judge the value of the paper to them and contribute accordingly.

The management believes the people of the East Side and Bexley will be interested in supporting the Eastern Times, an institution devoted to the interests of the people in this locality and dedicated to their service.

It would be unfair to expect the advertisers to carry a larger share of the constantly mounting costs of publishing a community newspaper and by the contribution-subscription system every family in the area served by the Times will have an opportunity to help in its support.

Everyone contributing to the campaign will be credited with a subscription.

AN OPEN LETTER

To Editor of The Eastern Times:

Thinking it may interest you to be informed of the results obtained from our ad on the Employment Bureau at Capital University, I take this opportunity to tell you that we are highly pleased in every respect.

We feel also that the Bexley public appreciates the service rendered them by The Eastern Times in bringing our Employment Service to their attention.

Cordially yours,

(Signed) CHAS. E. BASEL,

BUILDING RULE REVISED BY VOTE OF BEXLEY COUNCIL

Ban On Wooden Houses Lifted By Council; New Light Installed

Restrictions against the erection of wooden dwellings in a section of Bexley were removed at the Council meeting Tuesday evening.

Specifications of the United States Bureau of Standards furnished grounds to remove the restrictions in future construction on Rhul avenue, from the east corporation line to Cassady avenue.

The Columbus Lumbermen were well represented by R. G. Kimball, Washington, D. C., who was successful in representing that Council had been ill advised in passing an ordinance against frame houses.

The paving of Main street from Parkview avenue to Alum Creek bridge was postponed until spring.

Hartley Peterson, Bexley attorney, was instructed to advise Hansberger, Marion and Beery, contractors that they had exceeded their time limit in the installing of sidewalks on their Cassady avenue property.

A new type of traffic light was ordered installed for approval at Cassingham avenue and Elm street, near the junior high school. The old light taken from there will be installed at Cassady and Broad streets.

Contract for the Livingston avenue intercepting sewer was won by Ben Canini, 360 Clinton Heights avenue with a bid of $12,210.25.

A slight change was made in the contemplated extension of Pleasant Ridge avenue, from a dead end at Aster avenue to Livingston avenue. The street will turn at a right angle for a block on Aster avenue then be cut through to Francis street, and run on Francis to Livingston, instead of cutting directly through as before planned.

ANNUAL FRESHMAN WEEK OBSERVED AT CAPITAL

Out at Capital University life has been anything but pleasant for the freshmen this past week. It was all brought about by the annual class fight. As usual the yearlings lost the fracas and with the loss came the obeying of numerous rules formulated by the sophomores.

On Monday, all freshmen were required to have their noses painted a bright shade of red. Tuesday was set aside as the annual Peanut Day, when yearling students were required to furnish all upperclassmen with peanuts when asked. All freshmen were required to pull a toy on wheels after them on Wednesday.

Whatever peanut shucks and paper may have been resultant of Tuesday was dutifully cleaned up on Thursday, when each new student carried a waste basket with him or her while on the campus. Friday ended the stunts. On the final day, each co-ed was required to wear her dress backwards, while the men wore their shirts wrong side to the front.

The freshmen caps made their appearance last Monday and must be worn until Christmas. For the first semester, the two main walks of the campus, the Center walk and Drexel walk, were forbidden to Freshmen. As for dates, Freshmen boys are permitted feminine company only on Monday nights, and the co-eds only on Wednesday evenings. This lasts for two weeks. For a similar period, no new student is permitted to smoke on the campus.

Rules for the entire year state that the Freshmen class shall raise and lower the fing each day. Also, after each athletic victory, the old bell in the Recitation Hall must be rung. Freshmen must also pass out hymnals in Chapel exercises. These last rules are traditional on the Capital campus. This is the only form of hazing permitted on the Lutheran campus.

GIRL YOUNGEST HUNTER

Clara Ketner, aged 18, of 2239 Fair avenue, Bexley, got her quota of squirrels on the opening day of the season in spite of the fact that she is the youngest licensed woman hunter in Franklin county. In company with her father, P. G. Ketner, she shot four squirrels in Highland county woods.

Miss Ketner, a graduate of Bexley High school and a sophomore at Ohio State university, shoots a [illegible] gauge double-barrel, and [illegible] her limit of game.

Miss Ketner is also a [illegible]

REVIEW: SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE AND THE RESTORATION

GOLDEN TEXT—The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Stories Retold.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Some Great Men of the Period.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Providence in the Exile and the Restoration.

The grade of the class, the aptitude of the scholars and the genius of the teacher are factors which determine the method of review. For adult classes the following suggestions are made:

I.

Study the lessons of the quarter as illustrating the philosophy of history in God's dealings with His people in their captivity and restoration. Assignment of topics should be made at least one week in advance. Only adult scholars should be expected to use this method. The following subjects might be assigned:

Why God Permitted Israel to Go into Exile.

What Changed Views of Life Resulted from the Exile.

The Bearing of the Exile Upon Prophecy.

The Relationship of Divine Chastening to Divine Love.

II. Character Study.

Assign the outstanding heroes of the quarter's lessons to members of the class to have them report. This assignment should be made at least a week in advance. Some of the outstanding characters for consideration are: Ezekiel, Daniel, Nehemiah, Ezra, Zerubbabel and Malachi.

III. Summary of Contents.

This method is usable at all times and can be adapted to most of the grades. The following suggestions are made for carrying out this method:

Lesson for July 7—Before Ezekiel was commissioned as a prophet he was given a vision of the Almighty. After this vision he was given an experimental knowledge of God's Word.

Lesson for July 14—Ezekiel sets forth personal responsibility as bearing on the prophet and upon the people to whom he ministered. Ezekiel's responsibility was to hear God's Word and sound the warning. The people's responsibility was to hear and obey.

Lesson for July 21—Ezekiel is the prophet of hope. He ministered to Israel in captivity. God sent him to show to Israel the fulness of His plan for the world through them.

Lesson for July 28—Because Daniel made the Lord the arbiter of his life he was able to make known the king's dream, with its interpretation.

Lesson for Aug. 4—While Belshazzar and his lords were engaged in drunken revelry, a mysterious hand recorded divine judgment.

Lesson for Aug. 11—Because of jealousy certain wicked men plotted Daniel's downfall. They trumped up a charge against him on the ground of his foreign religion. Though the foolish decree of the king was executed, Daniel was delivered and his accusers were cast to the lions and destroyed.

Lesson for Aug. 18—Though Israel went into captivity as a chastisement of the Lord, later He restored them.

Lesson for Aug. 25—In the restoration of the people to their own land, the first thing necessary was the provision of a place for the worship of God. As soon as this work was done, violent opposition was in evidence. That which God sets out to do shall be completed.

Lesson for Sept. 1—Through Zerubbabel the people were brought back and established in their own land, but they had gone far away from God. There was now need of a religious leader. Ezra was moved by the Spirit to lead them back to fellowship.

Lesson for Sept. 8—When Nehemiah heard of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem he took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord gave him favor with the king, who permitted him to go back and build the walls.

Lesson for Sept. 15—The method used in bringing back the people to God was God's Word. Because the Word was made plain, the people repented of their sins.

Lesson for Sept. 22—Malachi as an aid to Nehemiah in effecting reforms pointed out the sins of the people, namely, base ingratitude, a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, and robbing God by withholding tithes. He pointed to a Day of Judgment when righteous retribution would be meted out to the wicked and rewards would be given to the faithful.

Jesus Prophesieth His Death

And Jesus went before them. And he took again the 12, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him, saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him unto the Gentiles; and they shall mock him and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him; and the third day he shall rise again.—Mark 10, 32 to 34.

Hard to Credit

Money talks, but none of us would believe the old dollar if it started telling us what it used to buy.

HOME MADE CANDY

TODAY with the value of candy appreciated for all ages, used as a food and a fatigue saver, it behooves the mother to brush up her knowledge of candy-making. Children love to make candy as much as ever. Pure candy is the only kind to give a child and the home is an economical place to prepare it.

One will find it a very useful thing to be able to make two or three kinds of candy extremely well. Practice makes perfect. When asked to make something for a church sale or fair, this candy-making ability will come into action. There is always a vigorous demand for home-made candy everywhere, at all times and places. The following are easy to make and always enjoyed:

Nougat.

Soften four tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin in a cupful of cold water for five minutes, then add a teaspoonful of corn sirup and one cupful of sugar. Place over the heat and boil for eight minutes, stirring constantly. Beat the white of an egg and slowly pour over the gelatin mixture, beating all the while as if making boiled frosting. Add a teaspoonful of lemon extract, one-third of a cupful of blanched almonds and one-third of a cupful of candied cherries and pistachio nuts, chopped. Mix confectioner's sugar—a third of a teaspoonful and the same of cornstarch, sprinkle in a flat pan and pour in the mixture. When firm cut into squares or bars and wrap in waxed paper.

Chocolate Caramels.

Take one cupful of molasses, one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of rich milk, one-quarter cupful of butter, one teaspoonful of vanilla and one-fourth pound of bitter chocolate.

Put the molasses, sugar, milk and butter over the fire and stir constantly until it thickens. Have ready the chocolate melted over steam, add it and cook until a bit dropped in cold water will snap. Add the vanilla, stir until well mixed, then pour into shallow pans to cool. When quite cold mark off into squares with a long strong knife and cut into one-half inch squares. Wrap in paper.

Through a Woman's Eyes

by Joan Newton

DOES IT GET YOU ANYWHERE?

A WELL-KNOWN educator, talking to the graduating class of one of our foremost universities, gave them, most probably in jest, some advice for getting on in life that is interesting chiefly for the foolish discussion it has brought forth all over the country.

"Be snobs, young men," said he. And for the gist of his program for a young man to get ahead in the world, he told them to stand aloof, to throw a bluff, to cultivate the right people, to make a play for the boss' daughter instead of his stenographer.

And people have been commenting and discussing and interviewed on the question of whether it is really better to be a snob and get ahead or not to be a snob and not get ahead! "What happiness," is one naive remark, "in marrying the boss' daughter if you don't love her?"

The assumption seems to be that it's sure to work—this being a snob. You're sure to get what you want—the boss' daughter can't fail to fall into your arms! The only question seems to be—will you be happy accepting all this good fortune just for being a snob?

And that's all bunk, of course. I suppose it has happened that someone has risen by hanging on to someone higher up—but it doesn't happen often. All other things being equal, good connections are usually a valuable asset. In their way they may be as valuable to a young man who has something really worthwhile to give, as that other asset, the necessity to make his own way. But good connections are rarely acquired by concentrating on them. They are rather a part of the recognition that comes to people who are trying to do something worth while, who are in work for the love of it rather than for where it is going to get them, witness the phenomenon of Lindbergh.

Don't assume this to be a preachment against being practical. Far from it. One must be practical. But the most impractical thing in the world is to try to get ahead by concentrating on that, by being a snob. The point is that in the first place it is bound to keep you from giving of your best to the work that should get you ahead—and then people always see through it. If you look back you will come upon a recollection, as we all can, of someone who tried to cultivate "the right people," who always had an eye open for those who would be of use to him, for "getting in right"—someone who tried to get ahead by being a snob. And you will have a recollection of someone avoided and despised, someone doubtless who is still marking time on the same old treadmill of trying to "get in right."

Dear Editor:

I HAVE developed a delightful absentmindedness. I put on the brown suit and found 35 cents in the pockets. Then I doned my white flannels and found $1.

If this keeps on I'll soon have money enough to retire on.

But absentmindedness has its faults. I mis-sent a letter to Buffalo, Ohio—yes, there is such a place. Also there's a Boston, Ohio, and a Vienna, Ohio. But probably all three together wouldn't make one Loyal Oak or Parma Center or Western Star.

When it comes to the size of towns names don't mean much.—Fred Barton.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By M. IRVING KING

TWIN CALVES

A RATHER common superstition in this country—that is, among farmers—is that twin calves bring bad luck. "You will never be rich," "the end of possession" are some of the significations of the omen. This is a survival from the cult of the Roman goddess Diana, who was the Greek goddess Artemis. Now Artemis—or Diana, as we prefer to be Greek or Roman—was the protectress of domestic animals and one of the identities of Artemis was Ilithyia. As Ilithyia she presided over birth. Diana was generally a beneficent goddess; but she was not always so.

The ancients endued their gods and goddesses with very human qualities and Diana, the Virgin Huntress, was represented as a rather "touchy" spinster, very much of a prude and taking vengeance upon those who offended her prudery. As witness the manner in which she treated that unfortunate nymph, Callisto, and that Peeping Tom of an Actaeon. Now Diana was born a twin herself and, considering that she presided over domestic cattle and over birth, regarded the birth of twin calves as having a personal touch offensive to her sense of decorum. It was that same delicate sensibility which caused the early Victorian spinster to take offense when some crude person mentioned the "legs" of the piano. An offense of that sort Diana always punishes.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE GET DOWN IN THE MOUTH

IT IS a very unusual person who can keep sweet and even-tempered under all circumstances. The great majority of us have our ups and downs. And perhaps down more often than up.

The behavior of a ship on the ocean depends considerably on the weather conditions and the mood of the ocean as well as on the mechanism of the ship itself. Yet there are those who somehow expect to sail the seven seas of life in a perfect calm and under ideal conditions. In the first place the thing is impossible and in the second place it is undesirable.

We get down in the mouth when we are lost and cannot see our way out of the fog. The blows of adversity, the stings of failure play havoc with us. There are disappointing experiences that dry up the juices in a man and leave him shriveled up like a dried prune.

It isn't so much the physical blows that floor us as it is the more subtle forces, mental and spiritual. A man can stand a lot of physical punishment and pain because he knows what hit him and where it hurts most. But when we deal with disillusionment an outraged sense of justice and fair play, jealousy, envy and hate it is like trying to capture a ghost.

Life is a series of adventures. We are constantly meeting up with new problems which necessitate new adjustments. If these problems crowd in upon us faster than we are able to meet them we become temporarily disorganized, unadjusted and consequently, down in the mouth.

We get down in the mouth because the mental and spiritual apparatus that constitutes our particular personality is temporarily out of gear and needs to be adjusted. We make the adjustment in time to avert the disaster of complete demoralization.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A MOUNTAIN TOP POINT OF VIEW

THIS article is written on one of the highest elevations in the Allegheny mountains. From this point of view three states and seven counties are visible. The vast expanse of territory is a veritable dreamland of trees and shadows of vastness and silence.

In the presence of such beauty nature seems to teach valuable lessons. She seems to say, "Come along with me and I will show you real power and beauty. Enter into the silence with me and I will point the way to calmness and self-control. In the music of my cathedral songs of birds and rustle of tree tops—there are no discordant notes. My music is a grand march of progress ever onward and upward which is attuned to major chords."

L. A. Barrett.

From a mountain top point of view the perplexities of every day life, which we have left behind for a while, seem very unimportant. Return to them we must; but when we do so, it is with a broader and wiser insight because we have been permitted to see these perplexities from a point of view of calm detachment.

The beauty of an oil painting is enhanced when viewed at a distance. A too near point of view spoils the picture for us. A lily lifted too near the sun will wither to white ashes, but when allowed to grow in earth's gardens sufficiently removed from the sun, its heat and light contribute to its beauty.

Get away from your work and go into the mountains. It is one of the best investments one can make. It pays big dividends in terms of those life values which enable a man to master his work and not be mastered by it.

Fatigue is nature's warning signal that we need a vacation. Rest is nature's method of storing up energy and reserve force. Therefore, get up to the mountains!

Rest is not quitting the busy career; Rest is getting out of self to higher ground.

MENUS

1. Baked Ham with Potatoes, Creamed Carrots, or Celery, Buttered, String Beans, Bread or Rice Pudding.

Put slice of ham 1 inch thick in greased baking dish, surround with thick slices of potatoes. Cover with milk. Bake uncovered four hours at 250 F. Cut the vegetables, cook separately or together in boiling salted water (enough to cover) in covered dish. Place in oven with the meat. Prepare pudding as usual, baking same time as meat atthelow temperature.

2. Roast Veal, Creamed Cauliflower, Browned Potatoes, Baked Tomatoes, Graham Pudding.

Place roast (about 6 pounds) in oven at 500 F. Keep uncovered thirty minutes, then cover and reduce heat to 250 F. for four to five hours. About 3 cups of boiling water should be added with the potatoes before covering the roaster. The tomatoes may be stuffed with crumbs or butter and seasonings, and ½ cup water poured in the baking dish.

3. Baked Chicken, Mashed Potatoes, Scalloped Corn or Brussels Sprouts, Bellevue Molasses Pudding with Creamy Hard Sauce or Lemon Sauce. Add fruit salad or celery or sliced tomatoes.

Cut up the fowl, season with salt and pepper, dip in milk and cracker crumbs mixed with melted butter. Sear at 450 F. for fifteen minutes. Cover roaster and bake at 275 F. for three hours.

Cocoanut Cream Pie

1 pt. milk.
3 tablespoons cornstarch.
2 or 3 eggs.
½ cup sugar.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
½ lb. cocoanut.

Stir cornstarch to thin paste with some of the milk. Heat the rest of the milk in a double boiler, then add the paste. Stir and cook fifteen minutes. Stir the unbeaten yolks into the sugar, add a little of the hot mixture, then pour all into the double boiler, stir in the butter and vanilla and remove from the fire. Add most of the cocoanut and pour into baked pie crust. Spread the whites (beaten with 3 tablespoons sugar and a pinch of baking powder) over the top. Sprinkle with cocoanut and brown about twenty minutes in a slow oven.

Sour Cream Pie

1 cup sour cream.
2-3 cup brown sugar.
1 tablespoon flour.
2 beaten egg yolks.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Speck of salt.
¼ teaspoon nutmeg.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
½ cup raisins may be added.

Bake like custard pie, or cook in double boiler and put in baked crust, using the whites for meringue.

Grape Pie (Large)

Make like cherry pie, using 2 or 3 cups whole grapes without seeding, or pulp them and then heat and mash pulps through course sieve to remove seeds. Add pulp to skins, put into crust, add other ingredients; ¾ cup sugar, 4 tablespoons flour or 2 tablespoons minute tapioca, a pinch of salt (a beaten egg if desired), and about ½ cup water or juice from pulps. Cover like cherry pie.

Quick Lemon Pie

Mix 1 scant cup sugar, the juice and grated rind of 1 small lemon, and the slightly beaten yolks of 4 eggs. Heat the mixture and when it comes to the boiling point, remove from the fire and immediately fold in half of the well beaten whites. Pour into a baked crust, then spread the two remaining (beaten) whites mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar, a pinch of baking powder, and a drop of vanilla, on top, and brown in a slow oven for about fifteen minutes.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

IT "RINGS TRUE"

WE SPEAK of a story or an account of something "ringing true" when we mean it bears every semblance of truth and sincerity. Usually it doesn't "ring" at all. The story may come to us without even the sound of the human voice. We may read of it and yet use the expression "it rings true." The words however are a survival of a time when it was by literal "ringing" that certain truth or falsity was established.

The expression "it rings true" had its origin in the days when a large quantity of counterfeit money was being unloaded in the country and it was a common sight to see people drop a coin they had received in change to the counter in order to hear the ring by which they could distinguish the genuine from the imitation. The term took hold and came into popular usage in the figurative sense in which it is familiar today.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH CELEBRATES 3RD ANNIVERSARY

226 Members Received By Church Since Rev. Speaker Began His Pastorate

Anniversary Sunday will be celebrated in the First English Lutheran Church at both morning and evening services. The occasion marks the third anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Lewis P. Speaker and also the tenth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry. The sermon of the morning will be preached by the Rev. Joseph Sittler, D.D., president of the Synod of Ohio, who is also a member of the First Church. The evening sermon will be preached by Mr. Speaker on the topic, "Who Is Fit?" Special musical numbers will be given by both the Junior and Senior choirs.

Ten years ago Mr. Speaker was ordained to the Lutheran ministry in Trinity Lutheran Church, Louisville, Ky., his home congregation. For three years he was pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church of Battle Creek, Michigan. This church was a mission congregation when he went there but became self sustaining in less than a year. His second pastorate was the parish of Christ Lutheran Church, Carey, Ohio, where under his pastorate of four years a fine Parish House and Sunday School building was erected.

During the three years of Mr. Speaker's pastorate in Columbus two hundred and seventy-six members have been received into the church, or an average of more than ninety a year. The present active membership is 905, with a baptized membership of 1240. During these three years the church has expended $63,000 for all purposes, $23,000 of which has been contributed for benevolences. Beside this there is a Building Fund of $12,000 for future use. The First Church located at the corner of East Main street and Twenty-second has property valued at between $150,000 and $175,000. A Parish worker in the person of Mrs. Elsie Swoyer, 290 Rhoads avenue, has been employed, in addition to the full time secretary, Mrs. Henrietta M. Flook.

Looking into the future, the First Church is planning an enlarged work in the community, as well as more thorough organization within the parish itself. A committee is working on a building project that will probably result in a new Parish House. The program for the coming year calls for at least 100 new members and for more intensive work on the part of a larger number of members.

In addition to his duties at the First Church, Mr. Speaker is president of the Southern Conference of the Synod of Ohio, chairman of the Luther League committee of Synod, a member of the synodical committee on examination of candidates for the ministry, and a director of Wittenberg College.

Bexley Public Library To Be Dedicated Tuesday, Oct. 8th

The new Bexley Public Library will be formerally dedicated and opened to the public Tuesday, October 8, at 8 p. m.

The building is erected on a site about midway between the Bexley High school and Capital University on East Main street. Capital University has leased the ground to the library for an indefinite period of years without cost. This is in behalf of the university students who regularly avail themselves of the services offered.

The building was designed by Miller and Reeves and is of modified French classical design.

The cost of the entire building and equipment was a little less than $86,000. This was the bond issue voted on by the Bexley citizens.

An outstanding feature of the library is the large children's room provided in the west wing. This room has every feature that would contribute to the reading and study habit of youngsters. At the same time it relieves the adult reading room of the disturbance caused by children.

A large room in the rear center is arranged for quiet study and research. The other novel feature of a reading porch is added to the rear of the west wing. The entrance door is of solid bronze. The grounds about the building have been pleasingly landscaped affording a quiet setting for the library.

At the dedication exercises next Tuesday evening, Dr. Sidney Sweet, chairman of the library board will preside, directing the rendition of the following program: "Slavonic Dance", Dvorak—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins; Invocation—Dr. C. V. Sheatsley; Violin Solo—Earl Hopkins; Remarks—Mayor Stephen Ludwig; Remarks—Fritz Lichtenberg; Our New Building—H. C. Dieterich; "Nocturne and Intermezzo"—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins; address—M. S. Hirshberg; Remarks—Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital University; "Faust and Fantasia"—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins. Miss Frances Neall will be at the piano.

The library is under the direction of Mrs. Sarah Bilby. Mrs. Bilby is assisted by Ruth E. Laudahn, Dorothy Hayes and Audrey Knoulton.

30,000 NOSES FOR NEWS

With this issue the Eastern Times will reach five hundred more homes on the east side, making a total of 5,500.

We are again asking the thirty thousand people reached by the Eastern Times to keep an eye open for news and to send it to the Times office, 1445 East Main or call Fr. 0560. All news should reach us before Wednesday evening. Due to the necessarily limited size of the staff on a community newspaper, we must depend to a large extent on the interest of readers for news.

News happens in your locality every day, send it to the Times. The easiest way to recognize news is to constantly keep this question in mind: is what I am seeing or doing news? Every one of the 30,000 people reached by the Eastern Times has a nose for news, all it needs is exercise.

NEW PASTOR INSTALLED

Rev. H. E. Hoesman, who recently accepted the call extended to him by the Hope Lutheran Congregation will be installed in a service to be held Sunday morning at 10:30.

Prof. G. C. Gast will preach the sermon, after which he will conduct the installation service assisted by Rev. C. W. Bachman and Rev. Karl Braeuer. Special music will be rendered by the choir.

GARAGE AND AUTOS BURN

A short circuit in an automobile resulted in a fire which destroyed two automobiles and a garage in the rear of the home of Herman McNichols, 743 Euclaire avenue, Wednesday morning.

The total loss amounted to $1800.

CHURCH OBSERVES RALLY DAY

The Bexley Community Methodist church will observe Rally Day in the Sunday school, next Sunday. A special musical program will be rendered in the opening service.

Promotion Day, which was observed last Sunday, created several new classes.

Dr. Fowler will speak in the morning on the subject, "The Sacredness Of All Things" and in the evening on "The Mountain of Despair."

The Adult Choir under the direction of Arthur Roberts will put on a musical program at 7:30.

VOTERS MUST REGISTER

All persons wishing to vote in the coming November election must register October 10, 18 or 19. Hours of registering are from eight to two and from four to nine.

This is with the exception of the Bexley residents who need not register in order to vote.

Elections will be held November 5 in both the city and village.

GUILD TO INSPECT PLANT

All members and friends of the Ladies' Guild of Bexley M. E. church, are requested to meet at the Carolyn Rug Cleaners, 1987 East Main street, Thursday, October 10. The purpose is to inspect the plant.

For each lady registering, Group No. 3 will receive $.25.

Mrs. Homer C. Howard, 1622 Clifton avenue, was elected the delegate to the meeting of the alumnae council of Wells college, to be held the middle of October, in Aurora, N. Y.

NO SPECIFIC RATE SET FOR EASTERN TIMES CAMPAIGN

Contributors Will Be Credited One Year's Subscription To Times

No set rate will be made for subscriptions in the Contribution-Subscription Campaign to be launched by the Eastern Times, Oct. 21. Everyone can contribute whatever amount they feel the paper is worth to them.

The management has adopted this system because they believe it futile to make any set assessment on the paper.

Advertisers cannot fairly be expected to carry the whole expense of publishing a community newspaper. However, the management believes that the Eastern Times readers will be interested in supporting the paper.

Everyone will be credited with a subscription for the following year regardless of the size of the contribution made.

VALUE OF COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER

It is difficult to estimate the aggregate benefits of a weekly newspaper that reaches every home in a community. Very few people appreciate the fact that a local newspaper is a friend as well as a source of valuable information.

In the first place, it serves to keep the people of a locality more closely acquainted with each other by printing items of general and personal interest. It is the only medium through which local news can be widely and accurately circulated.

Then, too, a community newspaper serves as a connecting link between various business men and their customers. Careful reading of ads results in money saved as well as money well spent.

Lesson for October 6

RECOGNIZING OUR DEBTS TO OTHERS

GOLDEN TEXT—Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Philippians 2:4.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:28-34; James 2:14-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping One Another.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping One Another.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Do We Owe to Others?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fulfilling Our Obligation to Others.

The sum total of human duty as set forth by Christ in Matthew 22:34-40 is love to God and one's neighbor. This comprehends every conceivable relationship and responsibility of life. The measure of love to God is the whole capacity of man to love. The measure of love to one's neighbor is one's love for himself.

I. Loving God (Mark 12:28-30).

Man's first duty is to God. The word which sums up his duty to God is love. By loving is meant a sincere desire for and a delight in the welfare of the one loved, and a willingness to do everything possible to further it. Love is not a sentimental emotion, but an ardent passion which absolutely sways the one who loves. When one is swayed by the passion to please, honor and glorify God, he is loving Him with his whole heart, strength and mind. To fail to render full obedience to this, the first and great commandment, is to be guilty of committing the greatest sin. By this test we can readily estimate our freedom from sin. Determined by this standard, all are guilty before God. We should put God first in all of life's relationships.

II. Loving Our Neighbor (Mk. 12:31-34).

This obligation is like unto the obligation to God in that it centers in love. The measure of love is not the same. The measure of love to God is the absolute limit of human capacity. That unto our neighbor is "as thyself." Our neighbor is a finite being, therefore the love is not absolute. Who is my neighbor? This is answered by the story of the good samaritan in Luke 10:30-37. Our neighbor is one who is in need of our help. It is not a question of where he lives, but of his need of help. Some of the ways we can love our neighbor, as suggested by the texts selected by the lesson committee, are:

1. By co-operation (Neh. 4:15-23). The walls of Jerusalem needed to be rebuilt. The task was great and the enemies strong. Nehemiah could not have done it alone, though working all the days of his life, but "every one unto his work" made the walls a reality in a short time. Racial solidarity is a reality. "No man liveth unto himself," therefore human life is lived at its best in co-operation with one another.

2. By the strong bearing the infirmities of the weak (Rom. 15:1-7).

By this means we build up each other. We are given strength, not to use for ourselves, but that we may help sustain the weak. We are not to please ourselves. Our supreme example in this is Jesus Christ. If He had pleased Himself, He never would have come down to earth, taken our nature and suffered the shame of the cross. The rich are to help the poor. Indeed, some are made rich in order that they may intelligently render helpful service to the poor.

3. By rendering lowly service (Phil. 2:1-9).

The supreme business of life is to serve, not to be served. Christ came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (Mark 10:45). Christ, though equal with God, humbled Himself to become the servant of men. The human mind is naturally selfish, therefore the only way man can possibly render lowly service to others is to have the mind of Christ. The only way this mind can be in us is as Christ is in us, the Lord of our lives.

4. By rendering justice to everyone (Col. 3:12; 4:1).

All our fellows have rights which must be recognized to accomplish which the elect of God must put on a mind of mercy and kindness (Col. 3:12). This kind of treatment finds illustration in our home relationships—wives and husbands, parents and children, masters and servants. Failure to render justice is a source of discord and confusion.

5. By giving to others (Jas. 2:14-17).

Christianity shows itself in practical living and charitable giving. To profess to have faith and be destitute of practical deeds is to give the lie to our profession.

Brothers All

During the World war a desperately wounded German and an equally desperately wounded Englishman were lying on the field side by side. They heard each other murmur "Mutter" and "Mother," and through ignorant of each other's language they found in "mother" a word that made them brothers. They made each other feel that they must pray together, and together they prayed "Unser Vater der bist im Himmel!" and "Our Father which art in heaven."

One Benefit of the Home

Home may lose popularity, but there never will be a substitute as a satisfactory place to eat corn on the cob.

MARGUERITE CHURCHILL

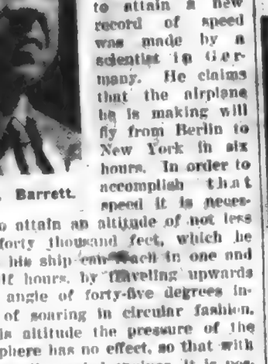
During the season 1927 and 1928 Marguerite Churchill, now a leading lady in movietones, was the youngest leading lady on the New York stage. She is still in her teens and was born on Christmas day, in Kansas City. Miss Churchill is five feet six inches tall, weighs 124 pounds, has beautiful long auburn hair, dark brown eyes, and a gracious aristocratic poise. Her only hobby is dramatic art.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A FLYING FISH

NOT many years ago it was thought incredible that automobiles should ever supplant the horse and wagon, and today we assume the same attitude toward the airplane. Many persons confidently affirm that planes will never take the place of automobiles. Is it not within reason to believe that, if traveling in the air can be made as comfortable and safe as land travel, the airplane will become a very common method of transportation? Granted that this comfort and safety can be assured, the outstanding advantage of the airplane over the automobile would be speed.



L. A. Barrett.

A recent effort to attain a new record of speed was made by a scientist in Germany. He claims that the airplane he is making will fly from Berlin to New York in six hours. In order to accomplish that speed it is necessary to attain an altitude of not less than forty thousand feet, which he claims his ship can reach in one and one-half hours, by traveling upwards at an angle of forty-five degrees instead of soaring in circular fashion. At this altitude the pressure of the atmosphere has no effect, so that with hermetically sealed engines, it is possible to attain a speed of from four hundred to five hundred miles an hour. As no charts are available for traveling at such a height, the pilot directs his course according to directions received from the earth by radio. The ship resembles a large fish. It is twenty-two feet long and weighs about one-half ton. Six hours of travel would not be costly as it has been estimated that the trip from Berlin to New York would not consume more than ten dollars worth of fuel.

While it may be possible for air travel to supplant automobiling for the tourist who may enjoy the novelty and the speed of the former, it is a serious question if the airplane can ever accommodate a very large percentage of those who travel or transport heavy freight in large quantities.

First, the horse and wagon—followed by the cable car, now the electric trolley, followed by the automobile, geared to run at eighty-five miles an hour, now a flying fish—Berlin to New York in six hours—What next?

Attractive Porcelain

Belleek porcelain is an extremely thin ware, decorated with a pearly luster laid over the glaze, suggesting the interior of shells. It derived its name from Belleek, Ireland, where it was originally made.

Great-Hearted

It adds nothing to my satisfaction to know that another man has been disappointed.—Abraham Lincoln.

Mother's Cook Book

"Ah, what would the world be to us,
If the children were no more?
We would dread the desert behind us
Worse than the dark before."

GOOD FOOD

TRY this different lemon pie, for a change from the ordinary one:

Chiffon Pie.

Mix one and one-fourth cupfuls of sugar with one-half cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one and one-fourth cupfuls of boiling water, stirring until well mixed and cook fifteen minutes. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs, rind and juice of a lemon, the juice and rind of an orange and add to the mixture, stirring until well mixed, and cook lightly. Make a meringue of the egg whites and a half cupful of powdered sugar, whip one-fourth of it into the mixture, the rest use as a cover for the top. Brown in a moderate oven.

Mint Sauce for Lamb.

Chop one-fourth cupful of mint, add one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and one-fourth cupful each of orange juice and lemon juice. Let stand in a warm place for half an hour, then serve.

Peach Ice Cream.

This is a delicious ice cream, if the peaches are ripe and rubbed through a sieve. Take a pint of peach pulp, one cupful of sugar and a quart of thin cream, or a pint each of cream and milk. Add a pinch of salt, lemon juice, a half teaspoonful of almond extract and freeze as usual.

Ginger Creams.

Take one cupful of sugar, three-fourths cupful of molasses and one-fourth cupful of corn sirup, one cupful of sour milk, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of ginger, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, one cupful of shortening, two eggs and three cupfuls of flour. Add two cupfuls of flour and use the rest to roll out and cut into large cookies. Separate the egg yolks and whites and mix as usual. When baked drop on a teaspoonful of icing made with powdered sugar mixed with cold coffee to make of the right consistency to spread.

Pralines.

Boil one pound of brown sugar with just enough water to dissolve it until it forms a fine thread when poured from the end of a spoon. Stir in one pound of pecan meats and when evenly mixed drop into buttered gem pans to cool and make a large thick patty.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WOMEN DRESS

WHY women dress is a mooted question. Some would-be authorities claim that women dress to please the men. Others say that women dress to make other women envious.

Probably there is some truth in each of these explanations but they do not tell the whole story. Women are a little differently sensitized to the opinions of other people. They have the curious combination of being more sensitive than men in some respects and less in others. They are more eager to be admired and yet they are less disturbed by criticism.

Consider what tortures a man will endure before he will get up and leave in the midst of a public performance where people are likely to be disturbed. A woman has no such fear. Note also a difference in their attitude when late to church or a recital. The man will slink into the back seat and try to appear inconspicuous. The woman will walk right up to the front row and take her seat as unconcerned as you please.

Men tolerate clothes; women adore them.

Men dress in order to avoid something, the loss of morale and self-esteem or perhaps the censure of some woman; women dress to gain something, self-expression, display of good taste and affluence, the envy of other women, to attract men, and to exercise their esthetic love of beauty and fine things.

Some one has said that a woman's future depends on her looks. Her face, meaning her personal appearance, is her fortune, while a man's future depends largely on his brains. If this be true we have an additional motive for the fact that women make so much bigger fuss over dress. It means more to them. It means everything to some of them.

The SANDMAN STORY

BEATRICE'S RAG DOLL

BEATRICE had never been to a big city. It was a great event when her father and mother told her they were going to take her for a visit with them to a very, very big place.

Beatrice packed her bag, a little straw bag which Santa Claus had given to her the Christmas before.

It was such a nice straw bag, very light and easy to carry and yet it held quite a good deal, too—particularly so if you pushed everything in hard enough.

The bag was of green and tan straw, and this was the first time it had been taken away on a trip.

Beatrice began packing a week before, but she kept putting more and more things in each day, until the bag was very queer looking, with its sides bulging out in all directions.

The Rag Doll and Monkey Had to Go Along.

And then she didn't have all the things in she really needed at all.

So the day before they started she took everything out and packed all over again.

Of course her rag doll had to go along and so did the toy monkey, but she decided to leave the rest of her dolls at home. There was no room for them, and they were a little too young to be taken on such a trip after all.

They could go later, she told them, when they were older. They were very good about it, too. They didn't act disappointed or sulky in the least.

Then she put in her little rubber bag with a toothbrush and sponge and all the little things she needed every night and every morning. Her brush and comb—oh, there were a number of these odds and ends which Beatrice knew must be taken along.

There was her best dress and hat but her mother had said she would take those.

So Beatrice put handkerchiefs and stockings and little things in her bag.

At last they reached the big city. It was the strangest place in the world.

There were just crowds and crowds of streets and cars and motors and people all the time.

At night there was a constant noise—a queer humming sound quite unlike the sounds of the crickets and the owls and the leaves of the trees swishing and laughing as they thought of things to say to each other.

The next day they went shopping. The shops, too, were crowded. And Beatrice began to feel homesick for the country and her own friends and the places she knew.

But now her mother said they were going to visit a top shop.

It was a dream shop. Beatrice had, actually, to pinch herself to make sure that she wasn't asleep. There was everything in this shop.

There was all the toys one could ever think of and so many more besides.

But of all the wonderful toys a little doll, a tiny china doll with a dress made of china lace filled her heart with longing.

Oh, if she could own that doll, she would be perfectly, perfectly happy always.

She stood looking at it, not noticing that she had forgotten to follow her mother who had gone to look at some bigger dolls. And then, something more wonderful than any dream happened to her.

A kindly man looked down at her, and said:

"Little girl, do you like that doll?"

"Oh, I think it's the most beautiful thing I've ever seen in all my life. I adore it."

"Maybe you'd like to own it," the kindly man said.

"Oh, I'm sure it's so beautiful it must cost dollars and dollars."

"No, it's not so very expensive—it is rather unusual—but it needn't be expensive at all. I'll give it to you."

"But how can you give it to me? Are you so very, very rich?"

"I own this shop," the kindly man said, "and I think I know children. I know the little china lace doll will always be happy with you, so it is yours!"

2 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup cream
1 cup cold mashed potatoes
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt

How It Started

"LIKE SAM HILL"

THE phrase "like Sam Hill," as "He ran like Sam Hill" or "He works like Sam Hill"—always with the connotation of hectic or excessive activity—is commonly used in everyday speech and many people have wondered about its origin and whether there was in fact such a person as "Sam Hill."

There was a descendant—yes, there was. And we have tracked him to his lair! Not only that, but a descendant has been found, living in Westchester county, New York, who has but to turn to the family album to supplement our biography of him!

Col. Sam Hill (for that is what he was) was born in Guilford, Conn., February 21, 1678, and died in May, 1752. He was elected to the general assembly, and re-elected term after term. He was for a time justice of New Haven, County court. In 1717 he was town clerk and clerk of the proprietors of the common and undivided lands. From 1720 to 1726 he was clerk of the Probate court and later judge of probate, which he remained until his death.

In fact, so often and so continuously was Sam Hill elected to public office, we learn, that the moderator at town meetings might have been said to have the habit of remarking: "We are again assembled to nominate Col. Sam Hill!" And in and about the town of Guilford to this day, people say with reference to an unusually successful and surviving candidate for public office, "he runs like Sam Hill." Throughout the country the phrase gained popularity, and an expression for unusual activity, which is the sense in which we use it today.

Great Shakespearean Drama

"King Richard III" was written in 1594 and first printed in 1597. The title page of the first edition reads as follows: "The Tragedy of King Richard the Third. Containing his treacherous plots against his brother Clarence; the pittiefull murther of his innocent nephews; his tyrannicall usurpation; with the whole course of his detested life, and most deserved death." "King Richard the Third" has kept perpetual possession of the stage ever since it was written, and the character has been a favorite one of nearly every English-speaking tragedian of eminence, from Burbage down.

KILLING CATS

FROM Maine to California it is considered bad luck to kill a cat. That is because the Egyptians of old regarded the cat as a sacred animal under the protection of the cat-headed goddess, Pakht, who was identified with Isis as a moon-goddess; or rather—it seems probable represented some attributes of Isis. Some Egyptologists even speak of a cat-headed god called Pusht, though the moon was considered feminine as a rule and Isis was its goddess. It appears as if Egyptian mythology varied under the different dynasties. At any rate the moon and the cat were intimately connected in the ancient beliefs, the cat was considered a sacred animal and mummies of cats were reverently placed in the tombs.

It is thought that the domestic cat originated in Egypt, and spread from there to other countries. It was sacrilege to kill a cat in the land of the Pharaohs and as we have inherited the cat from Egypt so have we inherited the idea that it brings bad luck to kill one. Sailors are particularly firm in their belief in the mystic qualities of a cat and while they are sure that she can bring on a storm if she wishes yet they are convinced that some disaster is sure to happen if one is killed on board the ship—the moon-goddess avenging its own.

SINCE FRIENDS ARE HARD TO FIND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SINCE friends, good friends, are hard to find,
Why should I be to friends unkind?
I guard my gold with so much care,
And put it here, and lock it there,
Yet thoughtless do, or thoughtless say,
And lose a friend along life's way,
Although a friendship I should hold
Surely as rich a thing as gold.

Since friends, good friends, are good to know,
I wonder I neglect them so.
I watch my garden for each weed,
Yet friends, not roses, are my need.
However beautiful the flow'r
Men bring me in my final hour
To lay upon my breast or brow,
My need is friends and friendship now.

Since friends, good friends, are much to me,
I wonder that I do not see
That other men need friendship—why
I pass the lonely stranger by—
Why I, who grief have also known,
Ever let sorrow grieve alone—
Why to all men I am not kind—
Since friends, good friends, are hard to find.

SPEED APPOINTED VILLAGE FORESTER BY MAYOR LUDWIG

Pretzman to Confer With Superintendent H. C. Dieterich Relative to School Traffic

CHANGE ZONING

Mayor Stephen E. Ludwig appointed W. Stanley Speed as village forester, at the council meeting Tuesday night. Mr. Speed held the position this spring and summer. The ordinance passed by council at this time extended the time limit for which a forester might be employed to eight months of the year, at a salary not to exceed $250 per month.

Councilman Allen Pretzman was appointed a committee of one by Mayor Ludwig to talk over the problem of traffic regulations at the various school buildings, with H. C. Dieterich, superintendent of schools. One solution of the problem would be the appointing of school traffic police.

Petition Approved

A petition was received by council requesting the installation of two lights on Boston avenue from Parkview avenue to Columbia avenue. The request was approved by council.

Council instructed Mayor Ludwig and Village Clerk S. W. Roderick to enter into a contract with the city of Columbus for the disposal of sewage into the sanitary interceptor sewer now being constructed in East Livingston avenue.

The rates to be established are as follows: single houses, $4 a year; double houses, $3.50 a side; apartment houses, $3 for each apartment; business establishments, $1 for each person employed.

The zoning ordinance was amended to the effect that no building in class 1 district shall be erected closer than 30 feet to the street line.

Council granted the request of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Co. to lease a plot of ground 12 by 15 on the municipal lot for the erection of a gas regulation station.

The question of establishing a 30 foot limited parking space on South Drexel avenue just north of Main street was referred to the safety committee.

Clerk Roderick was instructed to write a letter of appreciation to the Columbus Automobile club for the cooperation which the village has received from the club. A number of safety signs have been erected within the village by the club, which has done much to assist in regulating the traffic in Bexley.

An ordinance was passed to change the zoning of the lots on the north side of Ruhl avenue from a class one district to class two or double house zone.

Upon the request of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company for the grade of East Broad street for the laying of conduits, council instructed Engineer Kennedy to establish the grade. It is estimated that the cost of determining the grade will amount to about $800.00.

Ten years ago Rev. Speaker was ordained in the Trinity Lutheran church at Louisville, Ky., his home church. For three years he was pastor of the St. Paul's English Lutheran Battle Creek, Mich. His second pastorate was at Christ Lutheran church, Carey, Ohio.

St. Olaf's Choir To Be Presented In Concert

The nationally famous St. Olaf Lutheran Choir will be presented as one of the concerts on the Capital University Conservatory of Music Concert-Lecture series, on February 9. This choir has been substituted for the scheduled concert of the Vienna Mastersingers which has had to be cancelled because of passport difficulties.

The St. Olaf Choir is under the direction of Dr. F. Melius Christianson, who was the organizer of the choir and has been its sole director for a period of twenty years. Four years ago when the choir last performed in Columbus, the honorary Doctor of Music degree was conferred upon Mr. Christianson by both Capital University and Oberlin College.

The St. Olaf Lutheran Choir comes from Northfield, Minn., from St. Olaf College. The choir of sixty mixed voices is made up entirely of students of the college.

Unlike many organizations of its kind, St. Olaf's Choir is not interested in the professional aspects of its work. Any surplus money over the actual expenses of the tours is turned over to the college to be added to an interest bearing fund, which from time to time is used for the enlargement and improvement of the music building at the school.

The music sung by the choir is selected from the works of Schumann, Schrek, Mendelsohn and other great composers of church music. The purpose of the choir is primarily religious, although its broader ideal is to promote better church singing throughout the country.

On February 9, two programs will be offered, one in the afternoon, and one in the evening; both will be devoted only to sacred music according to the usual custom of the choir.

The new schedule for the Capital University course is as follows: Werrenrath, baritone, November 15; Zellner, characterist, November 26; Lhevinne, pianist, December 6; Pillsbury, naturalist, February 4; St. Olaf Lutheran Choir, February 9; and the Capital University Chapel Choir, April 6.

Tickets are on sale at the Capital University Box Office and at Heaton's Music Store.

SINGERS CANCEL CONCERT AT CAP.

Series Open With Reinald Werrenrath, Famous American Baritone, November 15th

The concert of the Vienna Mastersingers, who were to open the Capital University Conservatory of Music Concert-Lecture series has been cancelled because of difficulties with the State Department over passports. Negotiations with another world famous choral society are at present being made; the announcement of its identity and the final arrangements will be made shortly.

Reinald Werrenrath will open the Concert series on November 15, to be followed by Zellner, the famous American Characterist, on November 26.

Werrenrath's golden baritone and his dynamic personality made him popular in the beginning of his career, and in recent years he has even more firmly entrenched himself in the hearts of the music-loving public. The great artist has his own following wherever he goes not only in New York but everywhere he has ever sung, and a Werrenrath "fan" would sooner forgo his breakfast than one of the master's concerts.

Not only in America but also in Europe does Werrenrath hold an enviable position among contemporary artists.

Zellner, the second on the series, presents an innovation in modern entertainment. Color, speed, variety, comedy, glamour, romance, and drama combine to form a production of originality and distinction. Last season the University of Michigan pronounced Zellner the best on its entire course of dramatic and concert programs.

Benvenuto Cellini, Francois Villon, Socrates, Richard III, Faust, Mephistopheles, Benedict Arnold, John Brown, Robert E. Lee, Abraham Lincoln, Napolen, and many others, startling in their vividness, live again for a moment before the astonished on-looker.

Tickets are at Heaton's Music Store and at the Conservatory Box Office.

READER SUPPORT ASKED BY TIMES IN LATEST DRIVE

Residents To Place Own Value On Their Community Newspaper By New System

CONTRIBUTIONS ASKED

Readers of the Eastern Times will be asked to contribute to the support of the paper. The management feels that the people of the East Side who have received the paper for the past two years will gladly pay our solicitors the amount which they think the paper is worth to them as members of this community.

No amount will be considered too small as we have no way of evaluating the paper in relation to its worth to you. Every contributor will be given a subscription for one year.

This plan has been adopted because the management of the Eastern Times believes that the advertisers should not have to carry the whole burden of the increasing costs of publishing a community newspaper.

LIBRARY GROWTH SUBJECT OF TALK BY H. C. HIRSHBERG

Dedication Speakers Congratulate Bexley Upon New Library Building

CROWD ATTENDS SERVICE

The growth of the free public library movement in America, beginning with the library founded by Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia, was discussed briefly by H. C. Hirshberg, dean of Western Reserve University Library school, in his address at the dedication of the Bexley Library, Tuesday night.

He congratulated the people of Bexley on the splendid building which they have erected, declaring that for its size, it is the most unusual building for library purposes in the country. The value of the library not only to the children but to the adults was emphasized by Mr. Hirshberg.

Mayor Stephen E. Ludwig in a brief address received the library as a part of the village organization. other speakers on the program were: Fritz A. Lichtenberg, president of the Board of Education, Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital University, who referred briefly to the contribution which Capital University has made to Bexley's new library and Superintendent of Schools, H. C. Dieterich, who discussed the various departments of the library and emphasized the fact that the people of Bexley would never really own the library until they have used it to the greatest possible degree.

The musical program was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins and Miss Frances Beall.

A capacity crowd attended the dedication services which were held in the auditorium. Many floral decorations were received from friends of the library.

Back In the Harness Again

After a three months vacation (?) we are back in the harness again. Some people would say back to the daily grind, but we can't, because this is a weekly job. Anyway we are glad to be back to work again.

One nice thing about this vacation is that our friends seems to be glad to see us. We are thus assured that we stayed away long enough and yet did not stay too long. So from now on it is our intention to diet and otherwise economize so that all of our vacations may be for three months.

Times Puts on Drive

You as a resident of the East Side or Bexley have been receiving The Eastern Times for the past two years. It has been delivered to your door every Friday during this time. Do you appreciate it?

If you are community spirited we are sure that you do, for it is the one medium through which the people of this community may learn what their neighbors and friends are doing and saying.

This paper has been delivered to your door without cost to you for the most part of this time. We have devised a plan whereby we may ascertain whether or not you like the paper. The week of October 21, our solicitors will be in your community, your response to them will tell us whether our work has been in vain.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

WHY MEN FAIL

WHEN we speak of failure we think of the collapse of business organizations, the stock market or an individual who has been beaten in the fierce competition of modern life. We think of a moral failure as the result of disobedience of fixed standards which we have inherited and upon which the superstructure of our civilization safely rests. In all such failures some definite action was necessary in order to bring about the result.

L. A. Barrett.

Business organizations fail because of over production and an inability to meet competition. Moral failure results from the lack of self control. Thus failure is usually thought of as the result of definite action.

All failure, however is not positive in character. Failure may be due to a negative rather than a positive attitude of mind. It may have been better to have tried and failed than never to have tried at all. Many persons, however, do not even try. They will not make the plunge. They refuse to take the risk. Lacking self-confidence, their attitude is largely negative with no definite results on the credit side of their life's record. We somehow admire the man who has made a heroic effort even though he may not have succeeded; but, we do not like to see the absence of effort in the struggle of the world's work. Failure, because one has not made the effort, is more lamentable than a battle lost, but heroically fought.

Men fail to attain, negatively, for two reasons. They do not venture because they refuse to assert self-confidence and self-reliance. They wrap up their talent in a napkin because they are afraid they will lose it. They will not struggle because they fear they will not have the strength to win. The second reason why men fail is greed. Shylock demanded the pound of flesh but he got nothing.

Greed always kills. In the very nature of the case it must bring failure. Greed does not inspire confidence and trust without which no success is possible. Think of the men you have known who have failed. How many of these could attribute their failures to either fear or greed or both?

Many a person is credited with good judgment who is merely a fool for luck.

RELATION OF DIET TO SOUND TEETH

(Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles on Oral Hygiene written by Dr. H. G. Prather, D.D.S., 2266½ East Main street. Dr. Prather is a graduate of the College of Dentistry of Ohio State University. For the past six years he has been practicing his profession on the East Side and in Bexley. He is a member of the Columbus Dental Association, the Ohio State Dental Association and American Dental Association).

By DR. H. G. PRATHER

The Indian had the laugh on the civilized races when he first emerged from the semi-barbaric condition. One of the most startling peculiarities which all Indians noticed among the white people was the misshapen appearance and the absence of their teeth, which the Indians believed were destroyed by "the number of lies passing over them."

It was the common practice of the Sioux Indian to preserve the skulls of the members who had gone to their "happy hunting ground" and place them in a large circle on the ground. An observer was struck with the completeness and soundness of their beautiful teeth.

Their teeth did not decay and were arranged as regularly as the keys of a piano.

At the National Museum they have a large collection of Indian skulls and bones from the Eskimo of Northwestern Greenland. These bones are remarkable for their good development and solidity; while the teeth of the Eskimo as a whole are probably the best of any large group of people living today.

Investigation has shown that 96 per cent of the children coming to this country from southern Europe have sound teeth, while it is well known that the teeth of 96 per cent of the American children are defective. Strange, too, when we consider that the majority of the foreign children never knew what a tooth brush looked like until they entered American schools.

The answer may be partly indicated by the experience of free dental clinics. These clinics show that a very small percentage of negro children have dental defects and also a very much smaller percentage of negroes are treated in the clinics.

The explanation given is that the negro children eat as soon as they can eat solid food, quantities of greens, turnips, cabbage, salads and vegetables. They do not have the sugar and fancy foods which the average child eats. Their diet contains a larger percentage of lime, iron and other salts, than is the case with the white child.

Almost all adult dental diseases except pyorrhea are the result of poor tooth development or neglect of the proper diet and hygiene during childhood. Dead teeth, focal infections and diseases of the heart, kidneys, and joints are often the result of childhood neglect of the teeth. If dental decay could be eliminated it would prevent many of these later complications.

We thus see that certain groups of people have escaped the ravages of the dental disease which evidence seems to show that teeth fail to form during their development period due to lack of mineral containing foods.

Diseased teeth seem to result from the eating of foods which do not demand chewing and consequent exercise of the teeth, the "sticking" of pastry foods to the surface of the teeth with the resulting decomposition which attacks the enamel, unhygienic condition of the mouth, also an abnormal composition of the saliva, which should protect the teeth, but under certain conditions may fail to do so.

The development of sound teeth is, in a great part, a dietary problem. The small jaws and crowding of the teeth is almost certainly the results of faulty bone development and will be influenced by any dietary errors. Such deformed positions favor the packing of food and maintains a source of fermentation between the teeth.

Mother's Cook Book

Thou wouldst be loved? then let thy heart
From its present pathway part not!
Being everything which now thou art,
Be nothing which thou art not.
So with the world thy gentle ways,
Thy grace, thy more than beauty,
Shall be an endless theme of praise,
And love—a simple duty.
—Edgar Allen Poe.

SEASONABLE HINTS

DURING the season when fresh fish of various kinds are plentiful is the time to prepare a few cans of them for use in the winter when such food is scarce or unobtainable.

Pickled Fish.

Clean and prepare the fish. Take one quart of vinegar, one quart of water (salt to taste), four dozen pepper corns, three dozen allspice, eight slices of lemon, ten bay leaves, five medium-sized onions. Cook the vinegar and water with the spices half an hour, then add the lemon and cook five minutes. Add the fish a few at a time and cook until the fins pull out easily. Pour the boiling vinegar over them and can in well-sealed jars. Keep in a cool place.

Sometime when you wish an especially dainty dish, scald a dozen oysters in their own liquor. Take seasoned mashed potato (hot), add finely minced parsley, make a cavity in the center of a tablespoonful of the potato and insert two large oysters which have been dipped into melted butter and pepper. Fry in fat and serve very hot. This is called oyster surprise.

Date Bars.

Dates are so well liked and as we now have them all pitted and packed ready for use in perfectly clean and sanitary boxes, one may enjoy serving them with no time lost for preparation.

Sift one-half cupful of flour, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder together. Mix two cupfuls of sliced dates, one cupful of chopped nuts (pecans are especially good, so are hickory nuts), add to the flour and mix well, beat two eggs and add one-half cupful of sugar; add a teaspoonful of vanilla, mix all together and pour into a shallow pan eight inches square. Bake in a slow oven until the surface springs back when touched. Turn out, cool and cut into bars. Roll in confectioner's sugar if desired. This makes two dozen bars.

Date and Peanut Butter Sandwiches.

Soften the butter for spreading the sandwiches, for the same sized loaf, one pound, use one-fourth of a cupful, four tablespoonfuls of butter, or one-eighth of a pound. To three-fourths of a cup of peanut butter add one-third of a cupful of thin cream or rich milk, beat it into the peanut butter until well blended. This does away with the clinging habit of the peanut butter. Spread one slice with butter and the next with peanut butter.

I HAVEN'T SMOKED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I HAVEN'T smoked now for a week,
But no one else has thought to speak
About my sudden noble resolve.
Through lack of error man stands,
It seems that people note his faults,
But only note 'em when he has 'em.

I haven't smoked for many days,
But no one notes my rounded ways.
Although it's hard to do without it,
A word would help me keep my vow,
"I notice you're not smoking now."
But no one says a word about it.

I haven't smoked upon each known whos,
But know I soon shall smoke again,
I feel unconscious growing britten,
Although to vi... I may obey,
At least for now I keep clear
They might ju... mean a mile.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

DIVINING BY LIVE-FOR-EVER

DO you ever, when a child, take a leaf of live-forever—sedum Telephium—and squeezing it to loosen the inner and outer skin, blow into it to make it puff up like a balloon? If you never did there were many thousands of other children who did and many thousands who do the same today. It is a time-honored way of finding out whether you will have a long life and be married, or the reverse. If the leaf blows up easily the answer is in favor of the long life and the marriage.

Another common way of divining by live-forever is to pin two shoots of it on the wall and let them represent a couple of young people who are "keeping company." If the shoots grow towards each other the couple will be married; if from each other they will become estranged.

This is a good classic superstition of the most respectable sort and is highly spoken of by Theocritus in his Third Idyll, written nearly three hundred years before the birth of Christ. The Telephium was so named from Telephus, a legendary king of Mysia, the son of Hercules and Auge, or Augeia, that indiscreet priestess of Athene. In the birth and history of Telephus love played a leading part which fact, combined with the idea of the ancients that the order of plants to which what is commonly known as live-forever belongs possessed certain medical qualities, makes it very appropriate material for divinations regarding love and marriage.

GRIDDLE CAKES, WAFFLES, FRITTERS

Griddle Cakes

When a drop of water, dropped on the griddle, rolls around like a bead, the iron is hot enough for griddle cakes or waffles. When the griddle is greased, the butter should be added as soon as the fat starts to smoke; do not wait till a heavy smoke arises.

A pastry brush is excellent, except that the bristles are apt to singe if the griddle becomes too hot. To avoid the smoking grease, the griddle may be rubbed over with the cut side of a potato; no fat will then be necessary. Keep the griddle wiped clean with soft paper.

Sour Milk Griddle Cakes

Mix and sift 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, and 1¼ teaspoons soda. Add 2 to 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2 cups sour milk and 1 egg well beaten. Bake on a hot griddle. A handful of cornmeal or crisp flakes makes the cakes lighter.

Rice Griddle Cakes

1 cup cooked rice
1½ cups hot milk
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons fat
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
3½ teaspoons baking powder.

Add the hot milk to the rice, then the fat, flour, salt, and baking powder. Beat the eggs until well blended and light, and add to the mixture. Mix thoroughly and drop at once on a hot griddle. Serve hot with maple syrup, marmalade or honey.

Buckwheat Cakes (Baking Powder)

2 cups buckwheat flour
1 cup flour
6 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
2½ cups milk (or milk and water
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 tablespoon molasses.

Sift together flours, baking powder, and salt; add molasses and shortening to liquid, beat well. Bake on hot, slightly greased griddle, turning only once.

Waffles

Heat an electric iron about ten minutes before starting to add batter. When baking waffles, keep the iron closed till no more steam escapes from between the griddles—about two minutes for thin batter, and two to three minutes for thick batter. Heat the iron a minute between each baking.

Sour Milk Waffles (for 2)

1¼ cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 beaten yolks
1 cup sour milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
2 beaten whites.

Mix dry ingredients. Mix milk, yolks, and butter and add. Then fold in whites, and bake on hot waffle iron.

Pumpkin Pie (two small)

One and one-half cup pumpkin, 1 to 3 eggs, 1 heaping tablespoon flour or finely rolled crackers (omit most of flour if 3 eggs are used), 1 pt. milk, 2-3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger (cloves and allspice if liked), ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 to 4 tablespoons melted butter. Pour into unbaked crust, and start baking in a hot oven (425°F.) for fifteen minutes, then bake about thirty minutes longer at 325°F. May be covered with whipped cream.

Squash Pie

One and a half cup cooked squash (mashed through colander), 2 tablespoons flour or bracker crumbs, 1 cup scalded milk, ½ cup sugar. Bit of cinnamon, mace, salt, and grated lemon rind. For richer and larger pie, add a lump of butter, and 1 or 2 beaten eggs with an extra ½ cup milk. Bake as pumpkin pie.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fravel, 1409 Franklin avenue, spent the past week as guests of Mr. Fravel's brothers, John Fravel and Samuel Fravel and families in Pataskala.

Mrs. Sarah Bilby, Bexley librarian, and Miss Dorothea Conrad, librarian at Capital University, left Wednesday to attend the Ohio Library Association meeting which is being held at the Hotel Sinton, Cincinnati, Oct. 9 to Oct. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Williams, 51 Meadow Park Place, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller and daughters, Jane and Louise, 36 North Cassady avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Krumm and daughter, Carol of 164 S. Cassingham road, spent Sunday in Cambridge where they were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ora Jerome Shoop, a former pastor of Bexley M. E. church.

Miss Virginia Whitcomb, daughter of Mrs. Arnette Whitcomb, 521 Kimball place, and Mr. Howard Brown, son of Mrs. Olive Brown of New Vienna, were married Saturday evening in the Wilson Avenue Church of Christ by Rev. W. E. Collins.

A dinner for the immediate members of the family was served at the Mary Mathilda Club following the ceremony.

Miss Whitcomb wore a brown satin frock with hat to match. She is a graduate of East High school and attended the Conservatory of Music at Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will live in Chillicothe.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY SOME MEN ARE HENPECKED

PEOPLE have wasted a lot of sympathy on the poor henpecked husband. Being henpecked is regarded as a great calamity. No man is henpecked without just cause. The stronger personality usually dominates in every relationship, in a business partnership, a political party, a ball team or in the marriage relationship. Usually the man is more aggressive and dominates. Not always, whenever the wife proves the stronger and the responsibility of managing the household we call the husband henpecked.

In any relationship the dominating personality gets authority by virtue of some superiority whether real or fancied. This principle applied to the henpecked husband reveals the fact that the wife has the balance of power. She usually secures it through having a better education, being older in years, having more money or being otherwise favored.

If a man is out of work and his wife takes in washing to support him he is not usually inclined to be very self-assertive. Power and prestige no matter how attained are the source of influence over others. When they fall into the hands of a wife the husband is in for a pecking, especially if he lacks personal qualities of self-assertion.

The reason, then, why some men are henpecked is because they cannot help themselves. The fact that they are henpecked shows that they lack initiative and are fearful of assuming responsibility. Hence, they are very happy to get rid of troublesome duty. It is so much easier to take orders from the boss than it is to use our own heads and take the blame if things go wrong. Some men have a horror of assuming any responsibility even in very trivial matters. These are the kind that make obedient husbands and are easy to peck.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"MOUNTAIN DEW" AND "MOONSHINE"

THE nickname "Mountain Dew" for illicit liquor may crop out in speech more frequently now than it did formerly, but it is by no means a product of prohibition days. Long before the advent of Mr. Volstead's innovation liquor illegally distilled and sold was called "Mountain Dew." The obviously humorous reference was, of course, to the highland districts which housed hidden distilleries, not only in our Southern states, but in Scotland, whose hills have of yore been no less well dotted with revenue-evading stills than our own Kentucky or Tennessee!

As a matter of fact, the term "Mountain Dew" is not an Americanism, but a product of Scotch familiarity with moonshine liquor and Scotch picturesqueness of speech.

"Moonshine," however, is native to our shores—or rather our mountains! In its syllables we have the story of the traditional conflict between the "revenuer" and the mountaineers of half a dozen states along the Appalachian mountain range. The real beginning of this conflict would date from the passage of the Alexander Hamilton excise law of 1791, and it is still going on. It rested, prior to prohibition, on the fact that the unproductivity of the soil and the absence of variety of possible occupations in those mountain districts made the manufacture of whisky from the scant harvests of corn the most advantageous occupation. If subjected to the high federal tax, however, it became a less profitable resource. So the mountaineer looked upon the government agent as an invader of his rights and his natural enemy. And from his viewpoint, "moonshining," the occupation which had to be pursued under cover of night to avoid detection, lost the stigma with which we naturally associate with any evasion or breaking of the law.

CAPITAL PLAYS HIRAM COLLEGE IN HOMECOMING

Hockey Game to Precede Homecoming Football Game Saturday Afternoon

Saturday, October 19th, has been set aside as Homecoming Day for Capital University. Festivities will start Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. when the Lutheran football team stacks up against the Hiram College eleven in the second home game of the season. Following the game, an old-time reception will be staged in Loy gymnasium with an entertainment and refreshments.

The Hiram College team which meets Capital on Capital Field should furnish the Bexley eleven with their first victory this season. Neither Capital nor Hiram have won a game thus far this season. Hiram has bowed to Case and Wooster by scores of 26-6, and 38-0, respectively. Capital has played three games, losing two and tieing the other. Bluffton was held to a tie, but Muskingum stopped the Lutherans, 29-0, and Baldwin-Wallace repeated by a count of 39-7.

Coach Billy Bernlohr is planning a complete shakeup in his starting line-up for Saturday's game. The brunt of the changes will be borne by the line which has never been overly strong this season. Meehling at tackle and Anderson at center are the only sure candidates starting.

Due to injuries, Bernlohr did not scrimmage his men all week. He stated that he had too small a squad to take a chance on injuring his regulars. The week was devoted to extensive signal drills, mixed with punts and passes. Bridewesor had a cracked nose from the Baldwin-Wallace game, while Marsh had an infected foot.

In previous games with Hiram, Capital has managed to break even. In 1927, Capital defeated the up-state eleven at a Homecoming festival by a score of 19-0. Last year, the trick was turned and Capital came back from a return game on the short end of a 6-0 score. It is the third meeting of the schools, with a victory chalked to the credit of each.

The game is slated to start at 2 o'clock at Capital Field. A Hockey game between two co-ed teams will precede the main attraction at 1:30. In addition, the band, in new regalia and led by the new girl drum major, will be out to do their strutting before the game and during the half.

WARM WELCOME ASSURED WERRENRATH IN CAPITAL CONCERT

Few singers are assured of so warm a welcome in Columbus as Reinald Werrenrath whose concert is announced for November 15, under management of the Capital University Conservatory of Music. The work of this baritone in the years that he has been before the public has been followed with keenest interest by all who are in touch with music in America. He has created for himself an individual place in American music, not only through his encouragement of American composers but by the very high artistic merit which is found in all the work he does. And few artists are able in this measure to make a programme which never drags, every item of which has its own delights. Werrenrath makes it a point of introducing many new numbers each year, and always obliges with the favorites which are so closely allied with his name.

Mr. Werrenrath has not only won fame in his native country but in Europe as well. During one of his recent foreign tours a prominent Copenhagen newspaper said of him: "He is an artist from top to toe. His delivery bears the imprint of the surest musical culture. His piano is exquisite. In short, he is a singer who is able to hold his own anywhere."

One of the extraordinary gists of Werrenrath is his genius for friendship. One of his friends has said: "It isn't Werrenrath's fault any more than his six feet or his fair hair or his blue eyes that look straight through everything and everybody. Nor the fact that all men and most women who know him and a whole lot who don't, call him "Werry," his college soubriquet. It's because back of that keen look of his is a readiness to weigh the good with the bad; and a willingness to go way down deep to understand the other fellow's point of view. These qualities have made him one of the 'best-friended' of men anywhere; and they've also helped to make him the artist that he is."

HOLD RALLY DAY AT HOPE LUTHERAN

Sunday will be Rally Day at Hope Lutheran church. In place of the regular morning service, the Sunday school will present the Rally Day program, "Loyalty."

Joint reformation service of all Lutheran churches will be held at Central High school auditorium in the evening. Special music will be furnished by the Lutheran Choral Society.

CHILDHOOD DREAM BECOMES REALITY

Although of the gentler sex, it has always been the dream of the writer to ride a fire truck to a fire. From earliest childhood the shrill screech of the fire siren has had a strange effect. No other siren can arouse quite the same emotions as the fire siren.

The firemen aboard the fire truck have always called forth a feeling of awe which could never be dispelled. But at last the dream of a life time has been realized.

Thrilling is a tame word for the feeling which we derived from our ride. For once in our life we were able to ride through a red traffic light without fear of hearing a gruff voice shout in our ear, "Pull over to the curb." Moreover everyone with a few exceptions pulled to a curb and waited for us to pass.

The wind whisked in our ears, stung our face and brought tears to our eyes as we sped to the fire.

Arrived at the fire we were elated with the envying looks directed at us by the school children who were attracted by the fire truck while on their way home from school.

Arriving back at the municipal office, we strutted around as if we had been somewhere. We were in the popular jargon just "thrilled to pieces."

CHALK TALK ARTIST TO APPEAR ON PROGRAM AT MORGAN MEMORIAL

Sunday is annual rally night for men at Morgan Memorial M. E. church. One of the features of the evening will be chalk talks by H. E. Maxwell. He will illustrate "The WWayside Cross" and "The Church in the Wildwood" with chalk as the hymns are sung by the congregation.

County Superintendent of schools, George Beery will extend a greeting to the men. The music will be by the massed men's glee club under the direction of Roy Houser.

The baseball players of the city have been invited to attend the services. The pastor, Rev. R. O. McRae, a former professional baseball player and former catcher on the Ohio Wesleyan team, will speak on "The World Series."

ORGANIZES COUNTY TAX COMMITTEE IN FRANKLIN CO.

A Franklin County committee which will be composed of members from every community in the county is being organized by C. W. Tanner to work for the passage of the tax limit amendment when it comes up for vote Nov. 5.

Tanner has been designated general chairman of the campaign in the county by proponents of the amendment. He will direct the campaign, assisted by his committee which will probably number 150 persons.

"Because this is the most important issue to face voters in recent years, we wish every person to clearly understand it. Ohio's taxing system is 78 years old and is inadequate for present use. Adoption of this amendment will enable the Ohio legislature to enact a taxation system for the state in keeping with modern ideas and business. It will permit a system which will operate equitably and justly upon all classes of property. Citizens will then have no reason to misrepresent their taxes," Mr. Tanner said in a statement made today.

A speaker's bureau, with John K. Kennedy, Columbus attorney as chairman, is now being organized. This bureau will include 25 speakers who will be available for all political, luncheon and other meetings before Nov. 5.

The work of the Franklin County committee is similar to that being carried on in other counties of the state, as a part of the general campaign being waged by the Ohio Tax League.

Offices of the committee have been opened at 30 East Broad street, Columbus.

First public discussion of the amendment will be held as a feature of the convention of the Ohio Building Association league, Wednesday, at 8 p. m. at Memorial Hall. L. B. Palmer, Ohio Farm Bureau; Seldon R. Glenn, Kentucky tax commissioner; J. G. Armson, Minnesota tax commissioners, and Earl C. Rohn, trust officer of the National City Bank, Lima, will speak at the open meeting.

CLASS OFFICERS ELECTED AT EAST HIGH THIS WEEK

Robert Ebinger, James Kurtz and William Ayers Will Head Their Class Coming Year

REPRESENTATIVES CHOSEN

Class officers were elected at East High school Wednesday for the school year of 1929-1930. The following were elected by the seniors: president, Robert Ebinger; vice president, Elizabeth Williamson; secretary, Emily West; treasurer, Allen Loofbourrow; representatives, Ruth Putnam and James Dursee.

Junior class officers are: president, James Kurtz; vice president, Genevieve Burr; secretary, Betty Irwin; treasurer, Edward Gillivan; representative, Gwendolyn Armstrong.

The sophomores elected the following: president, William Ayers; vice president, Joan Davies; secretary, Alice Brooks; treasurer, Bert Elias.

BOARD SPONSORS NEW BUILDING

The increase in the attendance in Bexley High school has been most remarkable. At the end of the first month of school in 1924 the attendance was 155 and for the corresponding month in 1929 it was 398, an increase of 243 or 157 perecent. The increase in attendance this year over last year is 74 or 22.8 percent. There were 18 in the graduating class in June, 1925 while this year's class numbe red 65, an increase of 47 or 261 percent. This rapid growth in the school population has resulted in crowded conditions in the High School which should be relieved by the erection of a new high school building.

The grade schools are also crowded. The average room enrollment in the buildings is approximately 38. This average is too high for the highest standard work. A new High School building costing $490,000 will permit the use of the present High School building as a Junior High and grade building, and thus the crowded conditions will be eliminated throughout the schools.

It is very important that the bond issue be passed at the election this November so that the schools will not become so crowded as to make necessary the use of portable buildings. With the greatest possible progress it will be two years from this fall before the new building is ready for use, providing that the bond issue receives a favorable vote in the coming election. It is imperative that there should be no delay in passing this bond issue.

The passage of this bond issue will result in only a slight increase in Bexley's tax-rate for three reasons: (1) Bexley's tax-duplicate is rapidly increasing. (2) By the time the levy for the new building is added to the tax-rate, the tax for the state office building now being assessed will have expired. (3) Bexley's tax-rate at the present time is 1.93. By proper financing after the passage of the bond issue it should still be less than 2.00. This will leave Bexley's tax-rate low as compared with many other taxing districts as the following table of tax-rates show:

Bexley, 1.93; Columbus, 2.30; Upper Arlington, 2.06; Grandview (est.), 2.48; Bucyrus, 2.22; Chillicothe, 2.06; Cleveland, 2.53.

Cleveland Heights, 2.20; Dayton, 2.54; Delaware, 2.26; Marion, 2.40; Marysville, 2.41; Newark, 2.30.

Lakewood, 2.39; Piqua, 2.08; Portsmouth, 2.30; Oakwood, 2.14; Shaker Heights, 1.94; Toledo, 2.60; Zanesville, 2.12.

Bexley is fortunate in that it will not be necessary to purchase a site for the new building. The Board of Education made provision for this a few years ago when it purchased the wonderful site on Cassingham road. This plot of ground will make an excellent site for both the present Junior High school building and the new building. These two buildings with their playground and athletic field offer most unusual possibilities for a remarkable community center, a center in which Bexley will always take great pride.

The Board of Education hopes to make this new building most adequate in every respect. While the highest standard of utility will be the aim the building should be attractive and in keeping with Bexley's beautiful homes.

Bexley's tax-rate for school purposes, and for all other purposes as a matter of fact, should become very low in the future as compared with other districts when ample school facilities will have been provided and public improvements will have been largely completed. Bexley's limited area makes this true. Few communities are so fortunate in this respect. The people of Bexley have a wonderful opportunity to make their community and schools outstanding. Bexley should continue to have excellent schools, economically and efficiently administered. The schools continue to bring to the children of Bexley educational opportunities second to none. Let us, as parents and voters, promote the highest interests of our schools and children by giving the finest advantages possible. A favorable vote on this bond issue will help to bring this result. Let us all get back of it and maintain Bexley's fine reputation.

Bexley Board of Education,
Fritz A. Lichtenberg, Pres.
J. L. W. Heaney, Clerk
J. F. Elder
K. G. Busch
O. C. Altmaier.

The residents of the East Side and Bexley have been getting the Eastern Times for the past two years and should know whether the paper is of any value to them or not. The Times is not putting any set value on the paper to the readers but are asking you to place your own value upon the paper. If you enjoy reading it or if you derive something worthwhile from reading this community paper of yours, the management would like for you to contribute something for the support of the paper.

The management feels that the advertisers cannot be expected to carry the whole burden of the increasing cost of supplying the community with a newspaper, so are taking this means of asking for your support for the paper.

Any contribution, no matter how small will be accepted as payment for your subscription. Do not hesitate. No amount is too small.

The Times as a community paper helps to build up the East Side and Bexley. It promotes business and a better community spirit. If you wish to help in this work for your community then contribute to this subscription campaign.

GIVING THE RIGHT OF WAY

It has been brought to our attention that some motorists are slow to give the fire truck the right of way. They do not immediately pull to the curb and stop. This caused the truck to be delayed. Lives may be lost because some one is reluctant to give the right of way.

If their house or auto were on fire I wonder if they would risk delaying the firemen? Undoubtedly they would not. It would be well if they remember that someday it may be their turn to be burned out. Or perhaps it is their house on fire and they are not aware of it.

Whether you give the right of way to the other motorist is a small matter compared to delaying the fire truck. If you must keep the right of way while driving, then drive your car in an open field where other people will not drive.

JUST HUMANS

By Gene Carr

"DO YOU MAKE BOOKS ON THE RACES?"

Mother's Cook Book

"Good sense, good will, sincerity self-restraint, and social cohesion reside in a nation just in proportion to the real democracy of feeling that is shown its boys and girls in the nursery and the school."

RICE AS DESSERT

WE MUST not slight the old standbys in these days of rich desserts. There is no more delectable, wholesome and digestible food than rice when well cooked.

Plain boiled rice served with a chocolate sauce will appeal to any chocolate lover.

Chocolate Rice.

Boil one-half cupful of rice in two cupfuls of milk and add a pinch of salt. Cook in a double boiler until the grains are soft to the touch. Pour into a deep baking dish, add another cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and vanilla to flavor. Mix together one-half cupful of milk and two tablespoonful of cocoa, with one tablespoonful of sugar until smooth. Pour over the pudding and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven. Serve with cream.

California Rice.

Cook half a cupful of rice in two cupfuls of milk, sugar to taste and a bit of salt, until tender. Flavor with the juice and rind of half a lemon and mold in cups. Serve with a tablespoonful of preserved figs on top of each mound and thin cream.

Rice Fluff.

Cook one tablespoonful of rice in three cupfuls of milk in a double boiler until the rice has almost dissolved into the liquid. Add a pinch of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar with vanilla to flavor. Remove from the fire and cool; then stir in the stiffly beaten white of an egg and chill. Serve with a bit of bright jelly on the top of each glass of rice.

Rice Surprise.

Prepare cooked rice with sugar and flavoring cooked in milk, then add a beaten egg yolk to give color. When the rice is cool and thick line buttered molds and fill with a spoonful of stewed fruit, coconut, jelly or raisins, then top with rice. Serve very cold with fruit sauce.

New Cabbage Salad.

Shred a small hard head of cabbage very fine, pound it well with a potato masher and dress with sweet cream, sugar and a bit of vinegar. One may use sour cream and omit the vinegar. Add a bit of salt and serve very cold.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"FOOLSCAP"

A CURIOUS name to indicate the size of a sheet of paper! And in it is hidden an interesting tale.

As a measure to increase his ever needy revenues, Charles I of England made patronage of the privilege to manufacture paper. And as proof of the fact that the paper was made under the auspices of the crown it bore as its water mark the royal coat of arms.

Under Cromwell, parliament decreed that the old royal heraldry should be replaced by a fool's cap and bells. And though this was later repealed, the change was made and the paper used for governmental records, was called "foolscap."

And the title has remained, being applied now to legal sheets, though the cap and bells have been supplanted by other watermarks!

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

THE WOMAN WHO LOVES AND TELLS THE PUBLIC

"WHAT do you think of that American woman with millions who is 'making the front pages' by getting engaged and disengaged from that notorious Spanish prince?" writes one reader, whose letter follows:

"First she gives long interviews to the newspapers announcing her engagement, telling of her love of twenty years for this dissipated man who has been expelled from several countries in Europe while she was married to and divorced her multi-millionaire American husband. She vies with his mother in telling how she is marrying this cousin of the king of Spain to reform him—and they even tell the newspapers how much she will allow him for spending money.

"Then it is all off again and both she and his mother told the newspapers that she refuses to leave her chateau while he will not go to her because 'it is healthier for him than his former round of night life.' His mother openly speaks of her money settlement being insufficient, and says: 'I do not know which will give in. I trust it will not be my son!'

"Then the American millionairess sadly admits that it is all off because he will not come to her chateau and because she does not like marriage to be made a bargain counter! Finally off?—oh, no, she says, nothing is final! Did you ever hear of such a thing? Can you imagine such a woman. If she didn't want marriage to be a bargain counter why did she make it one by first marrying millions and then attempting to use them by publicly buying a man with a title?"

I personally have not followed that odoriferous case in all its details. What I think about it, however, is this: If a woman with millions wants to buy a title, if she wants to marry a debauched and dissipated man who has been ejected from several countries of Europe—that's her business. Perhaps she sees in him something besides his bad reputation and his title; who can tell? Anyway she has a right to try to find happiness in her own way, if she keeps it quiet and brings no notoriety to her country.

But I think it is a disgrace and a scandal and a shame on America that an American woman, doing all this, should make it public, should shamelessly and with enthusiasm regale the public with her sordid story. It is always cheap and disgraceful to discuss one's personal affairs and one's emotions for public consumption. Worthwhile people in whose affairs the public takes an interest will go to all lengths to maintain their personal privacy. Naturally it is always the person who does not count who is trying at any cost, to make the front page. And usually it is merely amusing. But I think that when a matter cries to heaven for shame as does this scandalous thing of which you have written me, there should be a law enjoining people to keep their soiled linen to themselves.

Dental Decay

By DR. R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.

Dental decay of the enamel is caused by the removal of the intercementing substance from between the enamel rods. This removal is accompanied by acids produced by the fermentation of the carbo-hydrates or starch of foods.

Carbohydrates are without doubt the only class of foods that can produce a local concentration of acids sufficient to cause rapid decay of the teeth. This is due to its sticky or glue-like consistency. It sticks to the teeth and holds with it the starch granules. The starch is acted on by bacteria and broken down to lactic acid while being held in direct contact with the teeth. This acid will remove the intercementing substance of the enamel unless it is neutralized by the saliva.

The control of dental decay is accomplished (1) by the eating of raw fruits, which have a physical and chemical action on the starchy foods, and by careful brushing of the teeth; (2) by maintaining a high alkalinity of the saliva in order to neutralize mouth acids. (This can be accomplished by the use of a mixed diet rich in alkaline forming foods such as fruits, vegetables, milk and nuts; by removing diseased tonsils and infected teeth and by maintaining a very low cereal diet). (3) and by maintaining as high a calcium content of the saliva as possible, this is accompanied by a generous intake of calcium foods such as milk, cheese and leafy vegetables, and by getting plenty of sunshine.

Dear Editor:

THIS business of seeing America first is more of a job than you think. To get from Ohio to Memphis you cross Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

Sights and signs today: "Farina 16 miles." Too far to go for the food. "Gas 19.4 cents a gallon. Why the compound interest? "Souvenir spoons given away at the 'movie' tonight." Did anybody ever find a use for a souvenir spoon?

There's the state fair grounds of this region, with horses getting their morning tryout around the track. I'd like to see a good horse race. But we've got to keep going.—Fred Barton

Why We Do What We Do.

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY YOUNG PEOPLE HATE TO BE ADVISED

NO ONE is fond of being advised, much less a boy or girl of high school age.

They are in the adolescent stage and making a fairly rapid change from boyhood and girlhood into manhood and womanhood. Many adjustments have to be made; many new interests are acquired. This is the period when they dream and see visions of the mighty things they hope to achieve.

Young people resent advice because they mistake their fond dreams for realities. They unconsciously believe that they are already on the road to greatness.

At this stage of the game they are trying out their powers. They have not yet learned the great lessons of life that come through defeat and failure. They are very critical of others and of themselves. Contrary to the popular notion, young people are very idealistic even though they are impulsive and often act hastily.

If it were not for this cocksureness on the part of the rising generation we should make little or no progress. It is the fellow who does not realize the dangers and difficulties in the way who is most likely to try. Many fail, but now and then somebody gets through and wins the success that makes the world richer.

The most effective way of humiliating young people is not through advice, but through their heroes. They are willing to do what their particular hero says and does.

Young people hate to be advised because they do not feel the need of it, hence advice seems an impertinence. The impulse of self-assertion and self-realization pushes them out on the sea of life. It is nature's method of preparing them to meet the burdens and responsibilities ahead. Experience is life. They must live and learn. They must discover the truth for themselves. It is neither fair nor desirable to rob them of this, their greatest privilege.

ROOSTERS AND COMPANY

WHEN a rooster crows in the front yard, or on the front steps, it is a sign that "company is coming." This is a superstition common in most sections of the United States, with slight variations in some localities. In some places it is a "stranger" who is coming.

The rooster was quite an important bird in the ancient mythological systems. Not only was he a "solar animal," sacred to the sun-gods, Osiris, Apollo, etc., but he was, also, the symbol of Mercury, and Mercury among other things, was the patron of travelers. As the symbol of Mercury the cock especially signified vigilance. It was believed by the ancients that even the fiercest beasts were afraid of the cock and even the lion fled at the sound of his crow or the sight of his crest. In short he was a valiant and excellent watchman and a patron of those who traveled.

Therefore when he crows in front of the house he announces, like the good sentinel he is, that "a traveler is approaching," "company is coming," "a stranger is coming." He makes the same announcement today before the New England farmhouse that he made when Maecenas came to visit Horace at his Sabine farm, nearly two thousand years ago, and is believed in just as implicitly with this difference: Horace could give an explanation—the explanation given above—of why he considered that the cock was announcing company coming; whereas the modern farmer has lost the explanation and retained merely the superstition.

5 ears corn
1 pt. lima beans
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Lima Bean Loaf
(Men's favorite meat Substitute)

2 tablespoons grated onion
1 tablespoon dried celery leaves or poultry seasoning
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper (scant)
4 tablespoons peanut butter
1 cup liquid (rice or potato stock or milk)
1 tablespoon drippings or butter

Wash and soak beans over night. Cook till soft (about forty-five minutes). Drain, and when cool, chop coarsely; add crumbs mixed with seasonings; add peanut butter then add liquid and fat. Put into greased bread pan and bake in moderate oven about thirty minutes. Serve with a creamed or stewed vegetable (such as tomatoes) and a fruit salad for a meatless dinner.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

MY LAST OPPORTUNITY

A NUMBER of friends spent an entire evening around a camp fire discussing the following question:

"If this were my last opportunity to influence a group of people for the higher and better realities in life, what would I say to them?"

Each person in the group gave his answer, stating just what words he would speak.

The last person in the group, when it came his turn to speak, hesitated, and in an apologetic attitude, remarked:

"I certainly would not say a word. Rather than do that, I would take them to see the most beautiful scenery in nature that I knew about, and I would there play for them the most wonderful music of which I was capable."

L. A. Barrett.

To what extent beauty may become the medium through which an appreciation of the higher and better things in life can come to one, may be a debatable question. To some persons beauty, whether in art, nature or music, brings no message; because, though they have eyes they see not, and though they have ears they hear not. To some persons a picture is nothing more than daubs of paint, and music nothing more than mere sound. A visit to a cathedral or an art gallery may become very tiresome to one who receives no message from those who wrought their life's work in marble or expressed it upon the canvas. To another the entire day may seem as but the passing of a few hours because an enraptured soul always rises above the claims of the physical and the material.

That there lies dormant in every person an innate appreciation of beauty is beyond question. The Italian ditch digger loves his music and you can hear him singing while he digs, because the appreciation of music has been a part of his early educational training.

The plea of this article is for the development of the appreciation of the beautiful. Every child, very early in his life, should be taught to see what a wonderful thing is a snowflake, a flower, the sunset, the heavens. The meaning of art and the power of music should form a very definite part of his common school education. An appreciation of beauty, developed in child life, would help very much toward growth in moral and spiritual values. In the judgment of the readers of this article, was the answer given by the last member of the group beside the camp fireside correct?

Named for Inventor

The control bar of an airplane by which the pilot moves the ailerons and flippers is called a joystick, and the term originated from the name of its inventor, Joyce, an English aeronautical engineer working during the pioneer days of aviation, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The stick method of control has remained practically unchanged since the early days of flying, although the larger planes of today use the wheel control.

CONTINUE CAMPAIGN FOR CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ANOTHER WEEK

Due to the Inclement Weather the Eastern Times Will Extend Their Drive For More Subscriptions

RETURNS SATISFACTORY

The Eastern Times campaign for contribution-subscription will be continued in Bexley for another week because of the bad weather during the greater part of this week.

The solicitors were handicapped in their canvass of Bexley due to the unfavorable weather conditions which prevented their working. They have met with success in their canvass.

The campaign in the East Side will be delayed for another week as the solicitors will be busy in Bexley.

The management wishes to impress upon the readers that no certain amount has been set for the campaign. The readers of the Eastern Times are to place their own value on the paper and to contribute accordingly.

The pupils of Ohio Avenue School are holding a paper sale today.

GYMNASIUM CLASSES NEED COMMENDATION

The Parent-Teacher Associations of the schools on the East Side, sponsoring the gymnasium classes for the women are to be complimented upon filling a need which probably has not until recently been thought of as such.

Women doing housework do not get the proper exercise and moreover do not have time to go down town two or three times a week, so have not been able to get the proper exercise.

If the family is to be happy and contented the mother must be well and strong. When a mother is not feeling her best she is irritated easily by the children which results in unpleasant scenes for both. If she is healthy and strong she will be able to cope with the situations which arise.

Regular supervised exercises will do much to keep the peace at home as well as to keep mother fit.

CAPITAL LOSES AGAIN

Band Will Follow Team To Westerville For Football Game November 2

Capital University's football squad failed to stop the line drives of Hiram College in the annual Homecoming game at Capital Field last Saturday and as a result the Lutherans lost 32-19. Nearly 2000 friends and alumni were present at the game, the largest crowd ever to assemble at an athletic event at Capital.

The Bexley eleven, under the efficient coaching of Bill Bernlohr has been suffering bad breaks the entire season and thus far has yet to chalk up a win. The next game is on Nov. 2 with Otterbein. The game is to be played at Westerville and is the Otterbein Homecoming. Capital authorities have named this game as the occasion for the annual Migration Day program. ANNEXATION IS NOT AN ELECTION ISSUE

Annexation will not be an issue in any shape or form at the coming election according to Bexley officials, though a report to the contrary seems to be in circulation.

An advisory board of twelve citizens was appointed last summer to study all matters past, present and future pertaining to the welfare of the village and a report of this committee will be made before the people of Bexley are called upon to decide by vote their future form of government.

TRUSTEES ACCEPT BONDS FOR STREET LIGHTING FIXTURES

Manly to Discuss Matter of Erecting Airway Signs With State Director of Aeronautics

SURVEY SCHOOL TRAFFIC

The Trustees of the Sinking Funds of the Village of Bexley have accepted the bonds of the Village in the sum of $2400.00 on the installation of a lighting system for Stanwood road between Broad street and Maryland avenue.

The Jennings-Lawrence Co., submitted their estimate on the cost of installing two ornamental street lights on Boston between Parkview avenue and Columbia avenues. Since the amount of the estimate of $485 is under $500, if the property owners will pay their share of the expense in cash it will not be necessary to go to the expense of advertising for bids.

Mayor S. E. Ludwig appointed Councilman O. C. Manly to see John M. Vorys, state director of aeronautics, regarding the necessity of having airway signs erected in the village. Council feels that since Bexley is so close to Columbus and that the airport can be seen from Bexley that the signs would not only be unnecessary but would also be confusing to the aviators.

Fred A. Schenck of the Columbus Sign Co. presented council with estimates on the cost and described how the signs would have to be in order to conform with the state law. The letters of the sign must be 10 feet high and the width of the letters must be one-seventh of the height. The proposed sign would be placed on the Cassingham school building. It would be necessary to have the sign of metal as the lettering could not be put on the roof. A baked enamel sign would cost the Village $720, while a dece sign would be, $627, according to Schenck.

Councilman Allan Pretzman gave a report of his meeting with H. C. Dieterich, superintendent of schools, relative to the traffic question in relation to school children. Pretzman discussed the advisability of having a corps of school boys who would act as traffic officers of the schools. This was deemed inadvisable as the younger children are dismissed a half hour earlier than the older pupils who would be appointed to the posts.

Council instructed Chief of Police R. A. Antle and Marshal David Shadrach to make a survey of the streets to see how many of the smaller children cross Broad street before and after school.

The matter of rezoning of Livingston avenue to conform with the set back line established by the city of Columbus, was referred to Engineer Harold Kennedy and the coming committee.

The next meeting of council will be held Tuesday, November 12.

APPOINTED MEMBER OF COMMITTEE

Miss Ruby McMahon, principal of East Main Street School, Evan L. Mahaffey, South High School and H. W. Emswiler, Starling Junior High School, have been named on a committee to prepare a program for the observance of National Education Week in Columbus Schools, Nov. 11.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

MY LAST OPPORTUNITY

A NUMBER of friends spent an entire evening around a camp fire discussing the following question:

"If this were my last opportunity to influence a group of people for the higher and better realities in life, what would I say to them?"

Each person in the group gave his answer, stating just what words he would speak.

The last person in the group, when it came his turn to speak, hesitated, and in an apologetic attitude, remarked:

"I certainly would not say a word. Rather than do that, I would take them to see the most beautiful scenery in nature that I knew about, and I would there play for them the most wonderful music of which I was capable."

L. A. Barrett.

To what extent beauty may become the medium through which an appreciation of the higher and better things in life can come to one, may be a debatable question. To some persons beauty, whether in art, nature or music, brings no message; because, though they have eyes they see not, and though they have ears they hear not. To some persons a picture is nothing more than daubs of paint, and music nothing more than mere sound. A visit to a cathedral or an art gallery may become very tiresome to one who receives no message from those who wrought their life's work in marble or expressed it upon the canvas. To another the entire day may seem as but the passing of a few hours because an enraptured soul always rises above the claims of the physical and the material.

That there lies dormant in every person an innate appreciation of beauty is beyond question. The Italian ditch digger loves his music and you can hear him singing while he digs, because the appreciation of music has been a part of his early educational training.

The plea of this article is for the development of the appreciation of the beautiful. Every child, very early in his life, should be taught to see what a wonderful thing is a snowflake, a flower, the sunset, the heavens. The meaning of art and the power of music should form a very definite part of his common school education. An appreciation of beauty, developed in child life, would help very much toward growth in moral and spiritual values. In the judgment of the readers of this article, was the answer given by the last member of the group beside the camp fireside correct?

Named for Inventor

The control bar of an airplane by which the pilot moves the ailerons and flippers is called a joystick, and the term originated from the name of its inventor, Joyce, an English aeronautical engineer working during the pioneer days of aviation, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The stick method of control has remained practically unchanged since the early days of flying, although the larger planes of today use the wheel control.

GYMNASIUM CLASSES NEED COMMENDATION

The Parent-Teacher Associations of the schools on the East Side, sponsoring the gymnasium classes for the women are to be complimented upon filling a need which probably has not until recently been thought of as such.

Women doing housework do not get the proper exercise and moreover do not have time to go down town two or three times a week, so have not been able to get the proper exercise.

If the family is to be happy and contented the mother must be well and strong. When a mother is not feeling her best she is irritated easily by the children which results in unpleasant scenes for both. If she is healthy and strong she will be able to cope with the situations which arise.

Regular supervised exercises will do much to keep the peace at home as well as to keep mother fit.

CAPITAL LOSES AGAIN

Band Will Follow Team To Westerville For Football Game November 2

Capital University's football squad failed to stop the line drives of Hiram College in the annual Homecoming game at Capital Field last Saturday and as a result the Lutherans lost 32-19. Nearly 2000 friends and alumni were present at the game, the largest crowd ever to assemble at an athletic event at Capital.

The Bexley eleven, under the efficient coaching of Bill Bernlohr has been suffering bad breaks the entire season and thus far has yet to chalk up a win. The next game is on Nov. 2 with Otterbein. TRUSTEES ACCEPT BONDS FOR STREET LIGHTING FIXTURES

Manly to Discuss Matter of Erecting Airway Signs With State Director of Aeronautics

SURVEY SCHOOL TRAFFIC

The Trustees of the Sinking Funds of the Village of Bexley have accepted the bonds of the Village in the sum of $2400.00 on the installation of a lighting system for Stanwood road between Broad street and Maryland avenue.

The Jennings-Lawrence Co., submitted their estimate on the cost of installing two ornamental street lights on Boston between Parkview avenue and Columbia avenues. Since the amount of the estimate of $485 is under $500, if the property owners will pay their share of the expense in cash it will not be necessary to go to the expense of advertising for bids.

Mayor S. E. Ludwig appointed Councilman O. C. Manly to see John M. Vorys, state director of aeronautics, regarding the necessity of having airway signs erected in the village. Council feels that since Bexley is so close to Columbus and that the airport can be seen from Bexley that the signs would not only be unnecessary but would also be confusing to the aviators.

Fred A. Schenck of the Columbus Sign Co. presented council with estimates on the cost and described how the signs would have to be in order to conform with the state law. The letters of the sign must be 10 feet high and the width of the letters must be one-seventh of the height. The proposed sign would be placed on the Cassingham school building. It would be necessary to have the sign of metal as the lettering could not be put on the roof. A baked enamel sign would cost the Village $720, while a neon sign would be, $627, according to Schenck.

Councilman Allan Pretzman gave a report of his meeting with H. C. Dieterich, superintendent of schools, relative to the traffic question in relation to school children. Pretzman discussed the advisability of having a corps of school boys who would act as traffic officers of the schools. This was deemed inadvisable as the younger children are dismissed a half hour earlier than the older pupils who would be appointed to the posts.

Council instructed Chief of Police R. A. Antle and Marshal David Shadrach to make a survey of the streets to see how many of the smaller children cross Broad street before and after school.

The matter of rezoning of Livingston avenue to conform with the set back line established by the city of Columbus, was referred to Engineer Harold Kennedy and the coming committee.

The next meeting of council will be held Tuesday, November 12.

APPOINTED MEMBER OF COMMITTEE

Miss Ruby McMahon, principal of East Main Street School, Evan L. Mahaffey, South High School and H. W. Emswiler, Starling Junior High School, have been named on a committee to prepare a program for the observance of National Education Week in Columbus Schools, Nov. 11.

Destruction or removal of property, placing of obstructions in the streets or car tracks will lay the offenders open to being taken before the juvenile court.

READERS RESPOND HEARTILY

The Bexley readers of The Eastern Times are responding readily by subscribing to our contribution-subscription campaign which opened this week. In spite of the rain our solicitors were active and found that nearly every person in the community was in sympathy with the movement.

We were pleased with the results of the first few days of the campaign which is still in full swing. The returns received thus far has more than convinced the management that the people appreciate what we are attempting to do for the community through the Eastern Times.

Dear Editor:

THE BOND ISSUE

TO The Eastern Times:

In your issue of 18th inst. the Bexley Board of Education submitted to the people of Bexley their reasons for asking the approval of a Bond Issue of $490,000.00. As might be expected, only such information was given which would indicate the necessity of such a bond issue at this time. Now let us look at this from another side and see.

At a special session of the Board held Sept. 11th, 1929, we find the following record: "Mr. Henney moved the adoption of the following Resolution: Be it resolved and hereby determined by the Board of Education of the Bexley Exempted Village School District, Franklin County, Ohio, that it is necessary for the purpose of constructing, enlarging and furnishing fire proof buildings and improving site to issue and sell $490,000.00 of bonds of said School District. Said bonds shall be approximately the first day of January, 1930, and shall bear interest at not to exceed 6% per annum; Said bonds shall mature as follows: April 1st, 1931—$12,250.00; October 1st, 1931—$12,250.00" and like amounts for 20 years.

On the Ballot to be voted on will appear:

"Shall bonds be issued by the Bexley Exempted Village School District for the purpose of constructing, enlarging and furnishing fireproof buildings and improving site in the sum of $490,000.00 and a levy of taxes be made outside of the fifteen mill limitation, estimated by the County Auditor to average 1.60 mills for a minimum period of twenty years to pay the principal and interest of such bonds."

You will notice, that the resolution as given above conforms with the requirements of the law, but at the same time gives the School Board a wide latitude in the use of the funds obtained from this requested bond issue.

The County Auditor's books show, that the Bexley Schools will receive for this coming year 9.10 mills of the total 19.30 mill levy for State, County, Village and School purposes. If the bond issue is approved at the coming election, then there will be added 1.60 mills to the above, making it 10.70 mills for the schools with probably more asked as years roll by, and all this in the face of an assessed valuation for taxes way above anywhere in the state of Ohio. The writer in that article gave the total tax rates of several villages in Franklin County, but did not out of fairness state that while our school enumeration was in proportion much less, that the assessed valuation for taxes in Bexley was a great deal more. Nor does he seem to think that most of the home owners of Bexley have still to pay for their homes, have to pay for various public improvements besides the regular taxes, and thus have to economize in more ways than one in order to keep square with the world.

The Board and the Superintendent no doubt will set up the plea that real economy consistent with good school has been and is practiced all along the line. But there are many people in Bexley who are beginning to doubt this very much. Take this for an example: Columbus School District pays its superintendent $8500.00 for the present school year, having under his supervision 73 schools, 88 principals and vice principals, 1432 teachers and 42,500 pupils. Bexley Board pays its Superintendent $6500 with 3 schools, 3 principals and vice principals, 47 teachers and 1200 pupils. Let each one give this a good think.

The Grandview School District outside of Superintendent, employs 3 principals, 46 teachers and has an enrollment of a little over 1300. The Bexley Board spends however, 50% more in the maintenance of the Bexley Schools than the Board of Grandview does for its schools, although Grandview pays its Superintendent a good salary and has practically as good schools as Bexley has. Who can explain this 50% difference?

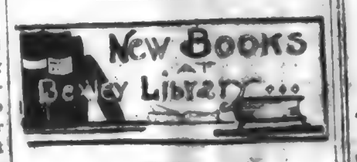
Now the Bexley Board is asking the citizens of Bexley to approve at the coming election a $490,000.00 bond issue, which the Board can increase per themselves to $500,000.00 without the vote of the people. If the Board had asked for a small bond issue to erect a grade school north of Broad to obviate the small children crossing Broad street with its heavy traffic, I believe hardly any objection would be raised.

But a large bond issue for a building program to take care of the needs of Bexley when Bexley will have a population of 15,000 to 20,000, seems to the writer can well be put off a few years at least. Let the Board restrict the Bexley Schools to only Bexley pupils and then Bexley will have plenty of room for a few years longer. You know Columbus has surrounded Bexley and should take care of its own pupils. Then too there were only about half as many homes built in Bexley during the past year than in 1928. And the way it looks there will not be so much building of homes in the next 4 or 5 years. So why figure on something we have not got and likely will not have. Of course it is nice to have your name inscribed on a bronze tablet, but what has the average taxpayer out of it?

The $490,000.00 bond issue will require a payment of over $40,000.00 every year for 20 years to retire the Bond.

The Bexley School levy will be raised from 9.10 mills to 10.70 mills. Let us weigh this carefully before approving or disapproving this bond issue of $490,000.00.

Then too let us give careful consideration of the fact, that most of us have not paid yet for our homes, have heavy public assessments to pay besides the regular taxes to meet, and all this at a time, when the Sheriff is over taxed in selling homes on foreclosures; at a time when there is a general slackness in employment and also at a time when there may be far reaching changes as to the future of Bexley. Let us wait a few years with this Bond Issue when many things which cannot be included in this article have been cleared up sufficient, so that we know just where we are. Our schools will not suffer during this time. It sometimes takes a new Board to point to things which an old Board long in service have not or are not able to see.



I will not sign my name as "A Taxpayer," but will sign my name, as I am not ashamed of what I am presenting to the people of Bexley for their careful consideration.

G. R. Wannemacher.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY AND THE BEXLEY ELECTION

To the editor of
The Eastern Times:

Since a number of well-defined and persistent rumors seem to be afloat concerning the attitude of Capital university toward the impending village elections and the competing candidates, I deem it well to make several statements which should clear up any existing false impressions.

First of all let it be understood distinctly and definitely that Capital university is not in politics. As an organization the college is deeply interested in a village government which is clean and efficient—a government under which it is well for the young people who are entrusted to the school to live.

Given such wholesome conditions political or religious affiliation of the incumbents or candidates for office is not an issue.

It is obvious therefore that Capital university is not "behind" any particular candidate for office nor is anyone authorized to represent the institution, its students or its faculty. The candidates have no official connection whatsoever with Capital university. Each individual resident entitled to the franchise to vote must exercise his own judgment in the choice of candidates to be supported.

On a village election the concern of every voter should be only which of the candidates for office is best fitted to represent the entire citizenry in the administration of village affairs to the best interests of the entire community.

As administrative head of Capital university it is only fair to state that the relations between the officials of the school and the officials of the village have always been entirely satisfactory, mutually helpful and fair to the best interests of Bexley as a community.

As for me personally it has been a satisfaction to know that our community has enjoyed government which makes for progress, development, beauty, law and order—a good place in which to live.

MAYOR OF BEXLEY

Something About Myself for the Information of the Voters in Bexley

Born September 29, 1868. 61 years young.

Residence at corner Main St. and College Ave. since 1881, with intermission from 1891 to 1913.

Graduated from Capital University College 1888.

Graduated from Capital University Seminary 1891.

Served three congregations while in the active ministry from 1891 to 1913.

Executive and Field Secretary of the Board of Home Missions and the Church Building Board from 1913 to 1928. Chief reason for resigning voluntarily after 15 years of service in this office was the radical change of policy and of administration with which I still am not in harmony.

Report of the Board to the General Body in August 1928: "After three years of service under the present Board Rev. E. F. Wm. Stellhorn tendered his resignation. Upon his urgent request the Board finally accepted his resignation."

Action of the General Body: "Synod gave Rev. E. F. Wm. Stellhorn a rising vote of thanks for his untiring and faithful work as Executive and Field Secretary of the Board of Home Missions during the last 15 years."

I entered the life and general insurance business in 1928.

According to the resolution of Joint Synod, passed in 1928: "The names of pastors out of office who have entered another calling should not be retained on our clerical list." I am no longer a Minister.

My career during the past 17 years has been chiefly one of business. Though still interested in Sunday school and church work, and with high regard for the clergy, I do not contemplate a Sunday school or ministerial blue law administration if elected Mayor of Bexley.

To wrap up Baby Bunting in.

RABBIT DISHES

AS CHICKEN and rabbit are so alike in flavor and food value, it may be cooked and served in the same manner. Rabbits feed on vegetables and nuts as well as grains and are really more particular about their diet than the fowl.

Two medium-sized rabbits will serve eight persons. Split down the front to the tail, after removing the head and feet. Divide into six or eight sections.

Stewed Rabbit.

Cover the rabbits with boiling water to which a tablespoonful of vinegar has been added, cook five minutes, add onion, one tablespoonful of salt, a clove of garlic and simmer two hours. Stock should always be saved when cooking young rabbits, for the broth may be used as chicken broth.

Rabbit Pie.

Take two stewed rabbits, five tablespoonfuls of flour, one finely chopped onion, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three tablespoonfuls of fat, two and one-half cupfuls of stock, one-half cupful of chopped parsley, and one and one-half cupfuls of mashed potato and pepper to season. Remove the meat from the bones and place in a well-greased baking dish. Melt the fat, add flour and seasonings and when thoroughly mixed add stock, onion and parsley. Stir until it boils; boil five minutes, then pour over rabbit. Spread with mashed potato and bake thirty-five minutes. Brown well at the last.

Tomato Sauce.

Take two cupfuls of tomatoes, one bay leaf, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, five tablespoonfuls of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, three tablespoonfuls of fat and one-half teaspoonful of stock. Cook tomatoes and seasoning ten minutes and strain through a sieve or colander, add the fat and flour cooked together, and cook five minutes.

SORE SPOTS IN THE MOUTH

(This is the first of a series of articles on "Sores Found in the Mouth," written by Dr. R. G. Prather for the Eastern Times).

By R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.

There are a great variety of sores appearing in the mouth, and they are quite common. Many of these are simple in character, being important only because they may be of significance in indicating some physical disturbance. Occasionally we find a sore spot which is of serious import.

One of the simplest spots appearing in the mouth is the so-called canker sore. This is usually extremely tender and may cause discomfort for a day or two, with enlargement of the glands underneath the jaws and in the neck. They heal up readily and are of no special importance. Frequently recurrences of these canker sores usually indicate a faulty diet, a disturbed digestion or some defective condition of the mouth itself.

Those of you who suffer from these recurrent sores should stop eating candy and sweet desserts, and eat instead fresh fruits unsweetened. Seek the advice of your dentist and your physician. Nature is trying hard to tell you that she is not being treated fairly.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HORSE CHESTNUTS

WHEN you carry a horse chestnut in your pocket to cure or ward off rheumatism, it only shows that you have not quite outgrown the tree-worship of your ancestors. That trees were the abode of supernatural beings, if not gods themselves, was a belief common to all our European progenitors and the lingering remnants of it are frequently found in modern superstitions. It existed in such strength even down to classical days that ancient Jupiter of the Roman capitol was nothing more nor less than an oak tree.

In those old days certain trees were supposed to exert a beneficent influence upon certain diseases. Thus the ash as a tree-god cured hernia and its leaves were a specific against the bite of serpents. In some parts of England today there is a custom of passing a child afflicted with congenital hernia through the growing ash in expectation of a cure; and there is a New England superstition that a snake will not crawl under an ash tree.

The chestnut tree god apparently specialized in rheumatism, for it was the true chestnut that was originally carried as a rheumatic antidote, and according to the American Folk-lore society, that custom is still "somewhat general in the United States." But in New England and the Middle West the horse chestnut is the thing: probably because it is called a chestnut, looks like a chestnut—especially like the chestnut of southern Europe—and being larger than the true chestnut (Castanea) ought to be a more powerful appeal to the chestnut tree god.

MEATS

Old Fashioned Boiled Dinner

Put about 4 lbs. corned beef (beef brisket may be used instead of corned beef and pork) in a large kettle of cold water; bring to a boil, and simmer slowly two or three hours, then add 1 lb. piece salt pork, 3 small beets or onions, 2 large carrots, and 3 turnips cut in three or four pieces. Cook another hour, then add 4 potatoes and cook thirty minutes; add salt if needed and a pinch of red pepper. Serve the vegetables in separate dishes. A good dessert with this is Indian pudding.

Indian Pudding

One pt. milk—heat and add butter, size of egg; ½ cup corn meal mixed with ½ cup cold milk. Beat 3 eggs with ½ cup sugar, and add ½ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon lemon or vanilla. Mix and bake quickly in buttered dish. Good with lemon sauce. Served hot or cold. Powdered sugar makes a finer grained pudding.

Corned Beef and Cabbage

Put 2½ lbs. corned beef in 3 pts. cold water (add ¼ lb. salt pork if liked.) Bring to boil and simmer 3 hours, then add ½ large head of cabbage, cut in 6 pieces, and cook about forty-five minutes. Add water if needed. Serve with catsup.

Veal Pot-Pie

3 cups cooked veal
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chopped onion
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Pile loosely in a 3-pint pan, almost cover the meat with gravy stock or water, cover, and set on top of stove to heat. The liquid may be thickened with 1 tablespoon flour.

Crust

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk
3 tablespoons butter

Sift flour, salt, and baking powder rub into it the butter, add the cold milk slowly, shape into a flat cake to fit the pan, cut a hole to let the steam escape, lay over the boiling meat and bake about forty minutes.

Italian Steak

A delicious dish from an inexpensive steak. Spread a shirt steak with sharp cheese, roll, and tie. Brown in Kutch oven as you would a pot roast. Then put in 1 can tomatoes, 2 chopped green peppers, and 1 chopped onion. Cook three hours. Serve plain boiled spaghetti with the meat, and the sauce will act as a dressing.

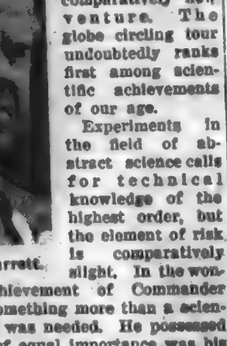
For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN



THE successful flight of the Graf Zeppelin from the Statue of Liberty to Friedrichshafen, to Tokyo, to Los Angeles and back to New York records a new departure in air craft. It is too early to inquire about practical results from experiments of this nature. Suffice that such accomplishments are possible. The knowledge essential to driving the huge ship is all the more wonderful when we consider that air craft is a comparatively new venture. The globe circling tour undoubtedly ranks first among scientific achievements of our age.

L. A. Barrett.

Experiments in the field of abstract science calls for technical knowledge of the highest order, but the element of risk is comparatively slight. In the wonderful achievement of Commander Eckener something more than a scientific spirit was needed. He possessed that, but of equal importance was his spirit of heroism which made him willing to risk even life itself in his efforts to realize a burning purpose. The successful flight of the Graf Zeppelin in her round the world cruise was due in no small part to that noble quality; the willingness to play a rendezvous with death in the effort to realize an ideal.

Lack of safety was for many years the chief hindrance to the development of air craft. Commander Eckener has demonstrated that hazards due to storms and air currents can be overcome. The only impediment which at present needs to be overcome is the very high expense of flying. The average plane costs about seven thousand dollars. Before one can operate a plane he must become a licensed pilot. This requires a course of instruction continuing uninterrupted for about eight months, at the conclusion of which a license is granted which costs from four to five thousand dollars. When the cost of flying is reduced so that a man of moderate means can own a plane, it will become more popular and more extensively used for both business and pleasure. As the automobile succeeded the horse and wagon, so airplanes are destined to succeed automobiles.

Next Two Years are Important

The prosperity and progress of the Village of Bexley is unquestionably due to the fact that the residents of our Village have taken seriously their duty and privilege to vote.

The next two years will be important ones in Bexley's history for the reason that in the nex Federal census, Bexley will become a city and this transformation will entail responsibilities and intelligent management of Village affairs.

The residents of the Village are urged to go out to the polls and vote on next Tuesday, and exhibit the same interest that has been characteristic in the past, under the theory that the welfare of any community is in very little danger when its intelligent populace go to the polls and vote.

The Eastern Times wishes to remind the voters of Bexley that the Municipal election will take place on Tuesday, November 5th, 1929 and that only a thirty day residence is required in Bexley to enable a person to vote, providing, of csurse, that the person voting, complies with the residence requirements of the state.

Registration is not required in Bexley.

Did You Register In Vain?

The voters who have registered and do not vote in the election have registered in vain. Are you to be one of them? Did you go to the trouble to register and then when election day comes around are you going to be too busy or forget to vote?

You know how much bother it was for you to register but you thought it worth while, so arrange your work or play so that at some time during the day you can visit the polls and express your opinion through your vote.

Wars have been fought because of [illegible] without representation, and you to be governed without representation because you failed to go to the polls on election day.

FRENCH ARMY COLONEL SPEAKS IN CHAPEL AT BEXLEY HIGH

Tuesday, Harry W. Farrington of New York, a colonel in the French army during the World War, spoke on "Uncle Sam's House of Four Walls and Roof" before the Bexley High school chapel.

In his talk Mr. Farrington said that the first and east wall was put up by Benjamin Franklin, who gave America the scientific viewpoint; George Washington was given the credit for the south wall by his work for the welfare of his country; the building of the west wall was credited to Abraham Lincoln; liberty of personality of which the fourth wall is comprised was made by Theodore Roosevelt by his high standard and righteousness, and the roof which is made of world friendship was erected by Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Farrington gave some original poems and recited some of his experiences in his address to the students.

George Simpson gave a talk on good sportsmanship to the students Monday. He stressed the fact that it was not winning the race that counted but knowing that you had given your best. He related instances in the marathon races and from his own experience.

The boys' glee club and the orchestra made their first appearance this season at chapel Monday. Barbara Shumaker sang a solo at the chapel exercises.

VILLAGE GRANTED FULL CLASSIFIED CARRIER STATION

Councilman Betz is Instrumutal in Getting New Service For Bexley Residents

LOCATED ON DREXEL

The new Bexley postoffice will be opened December 1 instead of November 1 as was originally planned. The postoffice will be located on the east side of Drexel avenue just north of Main street.

It will be a classified station in charge of a superintendent and two clerks for the present. Seven city carriers will work out of this postoffice, in addition to two rural carriers, one taking the section north and east of Bexley and the other having the section south and east of the village, will work from this office.

The postal facilities in Bexley in the past has been limited to that supplied by contract stations, which means that the government rents space in some business building and the person in charge or someone employed there has charge of the station. Carriers do not work out of a contract station and the service is limited to selling of stamps, taking of money orders, and weighing and receiving mail.

There has been considerable disappointment in the past year in getting a postoffice for Bexley. On account of the numerous requests from the residents of Bexley for better postal service, Councilman Samuel Betz was appointed a committee of one by Mayor S. E. Ludwig to take the matter up with Postmaster James R. Gerens.

After a short discussion in which Mr. Betz pointed out the fact that Bexley was entitled to a needed and classified station. Mr. Gerens became interested and gave his assurance that he would do everything he could to give better postal service in Bexley. With the results that a few months ago Bexley was assured that a classified station would be opened soon.

E. F. Wm. Stellhorn

Candidate for

MAYOR OF BEXLEY

Why I Consented to be Candidate

I did not seek the nomination.

More than 300 voters of Bexley asked me to be candidate for Mayor. Two years ago I refused to have my name placed in nomination after Mayor Ludwig consented to accept the nomination for his 5th term. This year I consented to have my name placed in nomination at the mass meeting of the voters of Bexley, expecting such a meeting to be called in accordance with the procedure in vogue since Bexley became a village.

After Mayor Ludwig announced that a mass meeting would not be called this year and concluding from all information I could gather, including several attempts to speak to Mayor Ludwig in person, that Mayor Ludwig would not be candidate for Mayor for another term, I consented to have petitions circulated for my candidacy for Mayor.

Mayor Ludwig's announcement of his candidacy for his 6th term was not made known until my first petition had been signed by 86 voters.

After a personal friendly talk with Mayor Ludwig I could see no reason why I should, under present conditions, withdraw in his favor this time.

With due respect and appreciation for Mayor Ludwig and his past administration I do see considerable improvement in the future administration of Bexley.

My Platform Is:

Strictest economy consistent with necessary and progressive improvements and advancement in every department.

100 cents value demanded for every dollar of the taxpayers money to be spent.

If at all possible, a combination of following qualifications in those to be appointed for official positions: ability, efficiency, high moral character and pleasing personality.

Courteous and prompt service in every department.

Positions to be filled with and employment for work to be done to be given to residents and taxpayers of Bexley, if at all possible.

The Mayor's personal interest in and co-operation with every department.

Regular office hours during every week-day in the Mayor's office. Enforcement of all laws, not to the humiliation and hardship of anyone but in conformity with the real purpose and spirit of the law: for the protection and best interest of the lives and property of our community and fellowmen, irrespective of color, race or creed.—Adv.

OBSERVE CENTURY MARK AT CAPITAL BY TAKING MOVIES

Elmer W. Kastner, Field Representative at the University, Wrote the Scenario

KOEHLER IS ADVISER

Students at Capital University are all agog with thrills and long cherished ambitions about to be realized. The Movies are at last seeking the Bexley campus for material for a seven-reel film.

In keeping with the fact that Capital will celebrate the century mark of its existence next Spring, a mammoth and comprehensive film is being taken, starting Thursday morning, November 7th, and continuing for three weeks. The film will be known as the "Capital Centennial." The scenario was written by Mr. Elmer W. Kastner, 928 Sheridan avenue. Mr. Kastner at present is field representative of Capital. He graduated from the college in 1925 and from the seminary in 1928. Mr. Walter Harts, Youngstown, will shoot the pictures, and Prof. Wm. Koehler, 524 Drexel avenue, has been engaged as technical adviser. Funds for the project were made available by Miss Mary Zollinger and Miss Margaret Koerner, both of Columbus. The picture will be shown throughout the Middle West as part of a feature program celebrating the centennial of Capital University.

LIGHTNING R. R. SIGNS INSTALLED IN COLUMBUS

First organized move to improve markings at railway crossings in Ohio got under way Thursday when Roscoe C. McCulloch, Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, headed a group of state officials and committees of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, the Columbus Automobile Club and other civic organizations to view demonstrations of a newly designed lightning flash neon signal installed recently at a local crossing by the Hocking Valley Railroad.

The new signal repeatedly flashes a brilliant red lightning stroke across a board five feet wide which is mounted in a weatherproof metal flash box. A clear cover glass transmits the wave lengths of the light emitted by the neon tubes which are illuminated from left to right 60 times per minute, giving the effect of a rapid flash of lightning.

Lightning Flash Signals were erected at the Chambers Road crossing of the Hocking Valley Railroad at the request of Mr. McCullough, for purposes of a practical demonstration. International Equipments, Inc., of New York, distributors of Lightning Flash Signals, made the installation at its own expense.

"The principal advantage of this signal," Chief Engineer Inspector H. M. Evans, who viewed the demonstration, declared, "is its high visibility due to the fog and rain penetrating qualities of neon and the further fact that the five-foot flash of lightning cannot be confused with motor tail lights, street lights or other types of warning signals."

It was brought out in the demonstration that the lightning flash, both in daylight and in darkness, was plainly discernible between 500 and 1000 feet.

AGENCY MAKES RECORD IN TEN DAY PERIOD

The Columbus agency of the Federal Union Life Insurance Co., of which Herman E. Emig, 2551 Sherwood road, is manager, has just established a new high record in the amount of new insurance written in a 10-day period. The local agency stood fourth among the agencies of the entire field, which extends from Philadelphia to Chicago and from Cleveland to New Orleans.

Judge Curtis C. Williams, 1074 Bryden road, vice president of the company, which is located in Cincinnati, Ohio, announces that during the ten-day period the company added more than $2,600,000, which brings its insurance in force to approximately $40,000,000.

L. Belford, 1477 Bryden road, is special agent for the company, as well as Karl Brandewie, 2561 Sherwood road, Bexley, who has charge of the Newark, Ohio, district.

A victory banquet will be given the Columbus agents by the home office at an early date.

Parents are invited to attend the school next week, when they will be able to see the regular school work. The regular work will be from 8:30 to 11:30 and from 1:00 to 2:00. Conferences between the parents and the teachers will be held before and after the regular school hours.

The adult chorus, which is composed of members of the P.-T. A., will make its first appearance Thursday evening. Mrs. H. D. Metcalf, 664 Oakwood avenue, is the leader of the chorus. Refreshments will be served at the close of the program.

DISCIPLES OF DUNCAN COME TO COLUMBUS MONDAY, NOV. 18

Isadora Duncan, credited with the dance revival which apparently is sweeping the country, met a tragic death in France, two years ago, but Irma Duncan, an adopted daughter, has continued as head of the Duncan school in Moscow, Russia, and is bringing a company of her most talented pupils to Memorial Hall, Columbus, Monday evening, Nov. 18.

Their American tour opened at Carnegie Hall, New York City, a month ago, at which capacity audiences were most enthusiastic. The New York Times critic remarked: "There is recaptured by these most unusual interpretative dancers, more of the spell of Isadora Duncan herself than in any previous appearance of her disciples."

In Chicago, the Herald-Examiner stated: "Singing as they danced, these alert youngsters embodied the eternal spirit of youth afire."

After the Columbus performance, the company will tour south to Havana and then west to the Pacific coast. They are to play a series of return engagements in New York City, next spring.

George G. Whitehead, under whose direction the Columbus performance is to be given, announces that out-of-town mail orders, accompanied by stamped and addressed envelope, mailed to Heaton's Music Store, 33 East Long street, Columbus, will be filled promptly in the order received, on a price scale of $2.00, $1.50, $1.00 and 75c.

WERRENRATH OPENS CAPITAL CONCERT SERIES NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Reinald Werrenrath, who opens the Capital University Conservatory of Music concert-lecture series Nov. 15, has created for himself an individual place in American music, not only through his encouragement of American composers but by the high artistic merit found in all the work he does.

Several years ago he made known his intention to send songs by American composers to the public. At first songs drifted in slowly, but in recent years Mr. Werrenrath has been the recipient of 4000 to 5000 compositions annually. Curiously enough he examines them all, and when a song of particular merit is uncovered, he immediately makes it a part of his own repertoire.

Over the radio, from the concert stage, as a Victor recording artist, Werrenrath brings it to the public. And it would almost seem that in popularizing American song, American song has popularized Werrenrath. Few artists have enjoyed the spontaneous popularity that greeted him from the first of his public appearances. From the beginning success seems to have sought Werrenrath quite as much as Werrenrath sought success.

While the great baritone's concert programs are invariably well balanced and include an array of the world's accepted classics, they are also liberally interspersed with delightful selections of American song which are the fruits of his comprehensive survey.

Tickets for the Werrenrath concert may be obtained at Heaton's Music Store, or at the Capital University box office.

TO PRESENT PLAYLET NEXT FRIDAY, NOV. 15

"The Twelve Old Maids," a playlet, will be presented by members of the tenth division of the Ladies' Aid society, Friday evening, Nov. 15, at Oakwood M. E. church. Refreshments will be served in the basement following the entertainment.

CHRISTMAS SEALS GO ON SALE NOV. 29

"Ring out disease, ring in good health,
For you and yours, the greatest wealth."

A bell . . . . symbol of joy and glad tidings . . . . rings forth its message from the 1929 Christmas health seals. On November 29, the day after Thanksgiving, seventy million of them will seek a hearing in every nook and corner of the state, according to Dr. Robert G. Bishop, Jr., president of the Ohio Public Health Association. This organization, with affiliated health groups in every county conducts the annual seal sale in Ohio.

The seal pictures a bell ringer, tugging at a bell. He is a gay little chap, wearing a red cloak, a yellow cap and yellow trousers. He and his bell stand out against a deep blue background. The double barred cross, international emblem of the fight against tuberculosis, appears in the lower right hand corner and across the top of the seal in white letters, are the words, "Health Greetings, 1929."

"Although the tuberculosis death rate has been reduced over one half in the last twenty years the fact still remains that one out of every four persons who die between the ages of 15 and 44 are victims of this disease," Dr. Bishop says.

"Buy Christmas seals, fight tuberculosis" is the slogan of the campaign which will be carried on in Ohio, from the day after Thanksgiving to the day before Christmas. For the twenty-second consecutive year, these little health stickers will be sold throughout the United States for the purpose of financing a continuous fight against the great white plague.

USE OF NEW BEXLEY LIBRARY INCREASING

The report of the Librarian of the Bexley Public Library for the month of October shows that 7,248 books were circulated. This figure indicates a gain of 18 per cent over any previous month and a gain of 32 per cent over the corresponding month of 1928. October shows 190 new borrowers, making the total number 3,125.

Hirshberg Dean of the Western Reserve Library School, in a letter to the President of the Library Board says "In my opinion you have one of the most attractive and artistic small library buildings in the country and one which can be effectively operated for the best community results. GIVES ANNUAL PARTY FOR CHILDREN NOV. 11

For its annual children's party, F. & R. Lazarus Co. is presenting Jean Gros French Marionettes in "The Magical Land of Oz" in two matinees, 2 and 3:30, Monday, November 11. Refreshments, including cherry-eyed gingerbread men, will be served to the audience after the show.

All members of the cast of 60 are made half human size. After an audience has watched the marionettes for 10 minutes, all sense of proportion is lost, and the figures appear almost life-sized. Hence, when the performance is completed, and an actor steps out among the figures, he seems to be about 30 feet tall. No glasses are used to create this illusion, the eye is simply deceived by the fact that all scenery and small properties such as chairs, stools, tables, etc., are made in proportion to the figures. Thus, human eyes having nothing with which to compare marionettes, all sense of proportion is lost.

YOUR HELP NEEDED ON NEWSPAPER

News gathering in a small community is a hard task, especially if there is no central place where one may get news. This is the case on the East Side. The news sources are so scattered and so that news gathering is difficult.

The readers of any paper can do much to increase the "newiness" of their paper by calling or sending in any news which they may know about.

The staff of any community newspaper is limited to a very few members which makes it difficult to get the latest and best news. Friends of a newspaper can do much to "make" the paper.

This is your paper and the staff wants you to feel free to call in any news at any time for publication. We do not expect you to be a trained newspaper writer. Send in the facts and we will write the story from the data which you send us, and anything additional which we may be able to get elsewhere.

SORE SPOTS IN THE MOUTH

[This is the second of a series of articles on Sore Spots in the Mouth by Dr. R. G. Prather, 2266½ East Main Street.]

THE GUM BOIL

The gum boil is another condition that is commonly seen and usually causes no great trouble in the mouth itself. People are liable therefore to disregard this condition, but a gum boil means a chronic abcess in the bone which is discharging its pus into the mouth.

The irritation produced by the opening is what we know as the gum boil. We all know that pus is a serious sympton. In view of the possibilities of harm to some other part of the body from this poison, gum boils should be attended to promptly. X-Ray examination to determine the location and extent of the infection should be made so that treatment can be intelligently given.

CAPITAL TEAM TO GO TO MARIETTA SATURDAY

Capital University's ill-fated football team goes to Marietta Saturday to battle with the Pioneer eleven in one last chance to chalk up an Ohio Conference win. Bernlohr will have a somewhat crippled line-up, with Marsh, Bexley, out with an infected foot, and Brideweser, Botkins, in a bad fix with a weak knee. The Lutherans lost to Otterbein last week at the latter's homecoming celebration by a score of 20-6. The game was wild and woolly, resembling more of an undergraduate grudge fight than a college football game. The team with the most substitutes eventually won.

INJURIES FATAL TO EAST SIDE MAN; OTHERS SEVERELY INJURED

From internal injuries received Sunday when struck by an auto driven by Carl Lieb, on Livingston avenue near Elsmere street, Frank C. Harrison, 899 Linwood avenue, died Monday morning at St. Francis Hospital.

August Japson, McAllister and Champion avenues, suffered lacerations of the head and body when he was thrown from his motorcycle as it struck an auto at Cleveland and Lockwin avenues.

Seven persons were cut and bruised Monday when two automobiles collided at Oak street and Champion avenue. The injured were Joseph F. O'Neil, 769 South Ohio avenue, driver of one auto and his wife, Betty B. O'Neil, Vinton Soward, driver of the other car, Vivian Soward, Nedria Soward, Mrs. Bessie Reynolds and Alpha M. Sowards all of Mt. Vernon.

To Hunt For Pirate's Gold Sunday Afternoon

The young people of Wilson Avenue Reformed church will have a social meeting Sunday at 5:00 p. m., when a hunt for the "Pirate's Gold" will be held.

Rev. Franklin Lahr will deliver an Armistice Day message at the fellowship supper, which will be served at 6:00 p. m. Young people from Reformed churches outside of Columbus who are attending colleges or universities in this city are invited to attend this meeting.

Prepare for Thanksgiving early with new fruit cake.

Southern Fruit Cake

½ lb. butter
1½ cups sugar
5 eggs (beaten separately—fold whites in last)
½ lb. candied pineapple
½ lb. maraschino cherries
1 lb. raisins or part currants
1½ lb. dates
1 candied orange and 1 lemon peel (or citron)
½ lb. figs
½ cup strawberry preserves or blackberry jellly
½ cup grape juice (or wine)
2 cups flour mixed with 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, and
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 lb. pecans
½ lb. almonds

Save some of the whole almonds, pecans, cherries, and strips of pineapple to arrange in circles on top before baking. Makes two medium-sized cakes. Moist and solid, but pretty and delicious if a solid cake is liked.

Mix in order given except folding whites in last. Chop the fruit and peels in thin slices, and roll in extra flour not measured. Leave nuts whole or just broken. Line two bread or angel food pans, well greased, with greased brown paper, then several thicknesses of heavy waxed paper, and then butter the last layer of waxed paper well, before adding butter. Set a bowl of water in the bottom of oven, or use asbestos mat. Bake cakes with flame as low as possible for hour hours. (It may be slightly higher the first hour). Or, they may be steamed five hours, then baked one hour at lowest heat. Wrap cakes in cloth dampened with wine or grape juice, and keep in tight can at least three weeks before using. If grape juice is used keep in cold place to prevent mould.

Scalloped Ham with Potatoes

½ lb. smoked ham, cut in inch pieces
1 qt. sliced raw (or diced boiled) potatoes
2 cups milk or thin white sauce
Pepper (a dash or more)
Buttered crumbs and grated cheese

Arrange the potatoes and the ham in layers in a buttered baking dish, sprinkling each layer with pepper. Add the milk, sprinkle dry buttered crumbs and cheese on top, and bake in a moderate oven until the potatoes are tender. If necessary add more milk. Raw ham or leftover cooked ham may be used.

Steak with Mushrooms

If the steak is fried, add a tablespoon of butter and a tablespoon of flour, and stir to remove lumps. When browned together, add the juice from a can of mushrooms and, when thick enough, strain and add the mushrooms and salt. Serve as gravy or garnish for the steak. Large can of mushrooms for a 2 lb. steak is sufficient with the above amounts.

Chili Con Carne

Fry 1 large onion and 1 lb hamburg, or 1 lb. round steak with ½ lb. pork, till brown. Add 1 can tomatoes, 1 can kidney beans, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups hot water, 1 tablespoon chili powder, or a speck of cayenne and a pinch of paprika and pepper. Cook slowly two hours. A pimento and ½ cup cooked rice may be added. It may also be thickened with 2 tablespoons flour mixed with a little water.

Through a Woman's Eyes

by Joan Newton

JUST A PUFFBALL

MOST of us have learned that the plant we call a puffball derives its name from the fact that while it looks substantial enough, it collapses, at the slightest touch.

The plant is easily recognized. Not so, however, the human of the puffball species. Indeed their appearance is frequently deceptively substantial and they sometimes do great hurt before their true nature of an air inflated shell is discovered.

One of the puffball family is the friend who professes great affection, who is the jolliest company when you're having fun together, but who grows absent-minded when you speak of your aims, your aspirations, your troubles or your children.

Another of the puffball family is the woman who tells her friends' affairs, the most intimate details of their family and business matters, or not in the spirit of gossip, understand, but just because it makes an interesting story. These things are secrets, of course, and she wouldn't tell them to another soul, but they are a case in point of something you were discussing. Of course you'll never repeat. . . . That particular woman is not vicious, nor false, as far as intentions go. She is just—a puffball.

Prominent in the puffball family is the man or woman, since we're speaking particularly of women, who expects to get by on her charm, who even wants you not to expect too much of her. With her an appointment is something to be kept if convenient, a promise something to be fulfilled if possible without too much trouble, a loyalty to be clung to as long as the world doesn't make this too difficult for you. This type of woman would never get into a fight for a friend, will never get gray hair over other people's trouble or pain even her nearest and dearest, will never make bad friends by telling too much truth. She'll never get very angry at you—nothing could make her care enough. She's just a puffball.

We all have special favorites in the puffball family that we should like to see extinct. What's yours?

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE DON'T APPRECIATE WHAT WE HAVE.

THE story is told of a little boy who used to admire the house with golden windows over a hillside several miles away. Each evening at sunset time he would get all excited about the house with the golden windows.

One day he was permitted to make the pilgrimage to the other hill in quest of the secret. It took a long time for his little legs to cover the few miles to the neighboring hill. Finally as he neared the place he could see nothing but an ordinary farmhouse and the windows were only glass, not overly clean.

He was the most disappointed boy in the world. His trip had been in vain. Tired and discouraged he sat down in front of the house to rest. The sinking sun was casting its rays in the direction of his own home. Lifting his eyes longingly toward home his heart leaped to his throat as he saw that his own home was the house with the golden windows.

We do not appreciate what we have because we lack the proper perspective to see its true worth. Like the boy in the story we need to get away from it to see the sun shining on it and turning it into gold. The things and persons that belong to us are too close. We need to get away from them for a while to appreciate their worth.

This is the genius of a vacation. Every man gets to the place where his work, his wife and children, his home with all its luxury begin to pall, to get on his nerve as we all say. A little distance, a little change and vacation performs wonders for him.

We do not appreciate what we have because it lacks romance. It is already ours and we do not exert ourselves in its behalf. We lose interest.

ANNUAL SEAL SALE STARTS HERE NOV. 29

With the announcement of the twenty-second annual Christmas health seal sale, which opens here November 29 and continues until December 24, public interest is again focused upon the tuberculosis problem.

"Although this disease is no longer the leading cause of death in Ohio, it still remains the most important in that it takes its greatest toll in that period of life when a person is of greatest economic value to his or her community." Miss Alice M. Hill, statistician for the National Tuberculosis Association, brings out in a recent survey of Ohio tuberculosis death rate.

Deaths from this disease were cut in half between 1918 and 1927, Ohio records show, but there were 53 more deaths in the state in 1928 than there were in 1927, according to Miss Hill. Although tuberculosis death rates for men, in general, exceed those for women, the rate in Ohio in 1928 was higher among the latter.

Funds raised each year, through the sale of Christmas health seals carry on an organized fight against the disease throughout the United States. They provide tuberculosis nurses, facilities for examination, promote open air schools, preventoria and sanatoria and conduct a program of health education through schools and organizations everywhere.

New Precincts Needed

Mayor Ludwig appointed a committee composed of Councilman Allen I. Pretzman, Frank Barnett and Harold Kennedy, village engineer, to outline the new precincts which are needed in the village. At the last election more than 500 people voted at the booth located in St. Alban's church. In a previous election 500 people voted in two precincts. This number is considered too large.

Clerk Roderick read a letter from Robert S. Dingledine in which a petition was enclosed asking for the widening of Bryden road and Bexley Park road, between Roosevelt avenue and Gould road, from the present 60 feet to 80 feet, the owners of the property agreeing to give 10 feet on both sides of the streets. GOOD THINGS TO EAT

SOMETIME when ideas are not very plentiful try the following dish for luncheon:

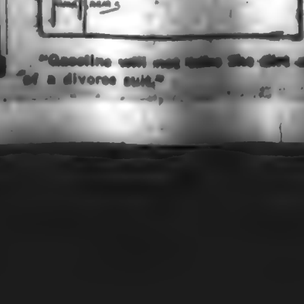
Corn and Tomato Chowder.

Place two cupfuls of canned corn, one cupful of canned tomatoes, one cupful of diced celery, and one teaspoonful of salt, in a saucepan. Cover with a quart of cold water and simmer gently for one-half hour. In another saucepan, melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and cook to a smooth paste. Add one and one-half cupfuls of milk, while stirring constantly. When smooth add the vegetable mixture a little at a time and season to taste. Add one-half cupful of grated cheese and one green pepper finely chopped. Stir until the cheese is melted and serve piping hot.

Pumpkin Pie.

Take three-fourths of a cupful of pumpkin sifted, the same of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of milk and one-half cupful of cream, two eggs, one teaspoonful of ginger, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt. Beat the yolks of the eggs, add the sugar, salt, milk and spices. Add the pumpkin and cream, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and turn into a pastry lined plate. Bake slowly after the first ten minutes to bake the crust.

Alsatian Pancakes.



Make a batter of one-half cupfuls of milk, three beaten egg yolks, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and after beating well add another half cupful of milk, the stiffly beaten whites, more flour or milk to make the batter just right. Grease a frying pan well on the bottom and sides, pour in the batter, so that it reaches all sides. When cooked on the bottom place in a hot oven to brown the top. Dredge with powdered sugar and squeeze over it some lemon juice. Break the puffed center, add more sugar and lemon juice and fold over like an omelet. Cut into three or four strips and serve with coffee as a dessert.

Dark clothes are warmer, for things dark
Hold fast to all the light—

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

INTERNATIONAL GOOD WILL

A FAMOUS lawyer is quoted as having made the remark that there never had been a will drawn up that he could not break. This might be considered an extravagant statement of an over confident lawyer, but it does suggest the possibility of a legal status arising in which technicalities could thwart justice. A law to be effective must not only be "storm-proof" legally, but should have the support of public opinion. Some of the laws on our statute books are difficult to enforce while others are flagrantly violated for the reason that public opinion considers them unjust. Public sentiment in favor of a law is as important as its legal phraseology. When both exist no difficulty is found in law enforcement.

L. A. Barrett.

This same fact holds true regarding international agreements such as peace compacts, covenants and treatises. Peace can never be bought nor is it possible to realize it by the mere signing of a protocol. When public opinion frankly and in no mistaken language demands the elimination of war, the reign of peace shall have already begun. One step in that direction is the removal of misunderstandings between nations. When people thoroughly understand each other much of the difficulty which causes separation and enmity is removed. An important contribution to that end has recently been made by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain. In his remarkable address before the senate he said: "There can be no war; nay, more: it is absolutely impossible, if you and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective, that any section of our arms, whether land or sea or air, can ever again come into hostile conflict. Deep down in our hearts is the conviction that can never be removed that there will be a full understanding between our people. With understanding, misunderstanding will be completely charmed away."

Let other nations send ambassadors of peace and friendship to us. Let them speak the mind of their governments as did the prime minister of Great Britain. Let our government send to other nations representatives of the "Will of America" for international peace and its certainty will not be far distant.

When Ocean Freezes

The water in the ocean freezes very slowly and imperfectly. This is demonstrated by the uncertainty of the ice in the Arctic seas, for formed of sea water is less salty than the sea water itself because part of the saline particles are rejected in the freezing process.

"THE WHY of" SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HUNCHBACKS

The hunchback superstition is exceedingly prevalent in Europe and America, especially among those with a liking for "taking chances." Touch a hunchback and you can "play the ponies" or "buck the tiger," assured of success. Anyone who has visited Monte Carlo, or a race track when horseracing was in flower in New York state, can give you information on this point. When Paris went crazy over Law's Mississippi Scheme a hunchback amassed a comfortable fortune by allowing speculators to use his back as a writing desk on which to make out their applications for stock.

But the gamblers of yesterday and today did not invent the hunchback superstition. They inherited it from the days when the mysteries of the Egyptian god Bes were celebrated by the Nile. Large numbers of the statuettes of the hunchback god are in existence and the modern "Gobbo," so popular as a charm in southern Europe, is but a copy of these ancient statuettes of Bes. Bes was a malignant god and was generally represented with Horus when Horus typified death.

Wearing an image of Bes as a charm or touching a human being made in his likeness is but an idea based on the principle of the old saying, "Always take your hat off to the devil." By the charm, or the touch, you proclaim yourself one of Bes' votaries; his malignity is disarmed and he gives you his aid in return for your devotion. The hunchback superstition then is a survival of the cult of Bes: a modified form of devil worship: an attempt to propitiate, and to control to one's own use, the powers of evil by a display of allegiance.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CALLING IT "CLARET"

It is true that claret is the name of a red Bordeaux wine, that it is frequently applied to other red wines and that no wine that is not red could be called claret. Yet the popular assumption that there is some connection between the name "Claret" and the color of the wine is incorrect.

We have "Claret" from the French "clair" which goes back to the Latin "Clarus" meaning simply "clear." The significance of the term is comprehensible to those who have attempted the feat of homemade wine which is very difficult to make clear and which after straining and [illegible], still leaves some cloudiness.

Research has not made entirely clear why the word should so definitely name a red wine. First wines, however, were red and the presumption is that it was early in the development of the wine industry, that the word which was to distinguish wine which had been refined of cloudiness and impurities from the coarser kind happened to be applied to a red wine. And this it has named ever since.

BOOK REVIEW

LORENZO, THE MAGNIFICENT

[illegible] Brentano's $5.00 by David Loth

The de Medici have long been regarded one of the interesting families in a period when families meant much more than they do now. Their enormous wealth upon which their social position rested was secured through the matchless system of banks founded by the illustrious Cosimo de Medici.

Cosimo was at one time exiled from Florence, home of the de Medici, for his opposition to the social leaders of the time, the Pazzi. Upon his return he was welcomed by the populace as the deliverer of a people from bondage. He immediately set about restoring his broken fortune. This led to the founding of the chain of banks which stretched across Europe near the close of the Dark Ages. His son, Piero, lacked the health and tact necessary to establish the diplomatic relations which the father now must be done. To this end the young grandson of the elder de Medici was trained with the same care and diligence that is used in preparing a horse for a race.

Thus we have Lorenzo at the age of eighteen, brilliant, sophisticated, and proud of his own ability to do anything he might wish, for was he not the heir of the de Medici, the rulers of Florence. He founded and endowed a university at Pisa when he found that the life in Florence held too many diversions for the student, but his home was ever the meeting place for the philosophers and the learned of the time. With the passing of Cosimo the power in Florence remained but the training of the boy Lorenzo, now stood the man in good stead. By a clever statesmanlike move he secured for himself the place as ruler of the Florentine government. This period in his life marks the expenditure of unlimited sums of money and the planning of elaborate festivals to content the people with their new ruler.

Milan was at this time page. Because of a believed wrong, when Lorenzo refused to finance a destitute "papal nephew", the pope declared war on Florence and excommunicated the head of the House of Medici. This was followed by several attempts to murder the "Magnificent," as he was now called. Lorenzo, though an able warrior, disliked the pain and innocent suffering which followed warfare, so with this in mind he sought peace—peace at any cost. Then after years of labor and sacrifice to this end he finally established himself as the umpire of the Italian peninsula.

It is regrettable that he did not live to see his own blood ascend the pope's throne in Leo X, and we cannot conceive the pain he would have felt upon the surrender of the Tuscan fortresses by his own son who ruled but a short time before he was forced to abdicate. It is altogether improbable that he would have felt any [illegible] in the rather not to be desired fame that the last of his line, Catherine, brought upon the throne of France.

Mr. Loth's work is at once absorbing and historically accurate. His careful portrait of the life in the Florence of the early Rennaisance; his clever introduction of such characters as Luther, Savonarola, da Vinci, and the great Angelo, gives a complete picture of the revival of learning on the Italian peninsula. It is written in the popular modern style of biography and makes a fine evenings reading. It's widespread popularity in the short time it has been on the market give it the public approval which is in every way merited. Mr. Loth has also written the life of the Browning's in this style.

Leon Marshall Dasher.

WHY WE REPEAT

EVERY one knows what it is to be sorry, to regret doing something, wishing that we had done something else.

Some people would explain this fact by saying that it is conscience that is troubling the person who is sorry and regretful. And by conscience they would mean some sort of inner voice which condemns you for violating a moral law and keeps telling you over and over again that you have acted wrongly, that you should not have done so, that you will be punished for your act. This makes one feel blue and downhearted.

Whatever views we take of conscience the fact remains that all normal people feel a sense of guilt and shame in doing what they know to be wrong.

But it is not in connection with moral questions alone that we experience regret and are sorry. This happens every time we realize that we have made a mistake of some sort—injuring another person, making a foolish choice, getting cheated, or feeling cheap in some way, or in suffering a loss when we might have done better.

Some of us are inclined to overdo this just as some are inclined to not feel regret strongly enough. Those who suffer from too sensitive a nature in this respect are manifestly unfair to themselves.

As a man grows older he usually gets more mellow and has a broader view of things which may bring regret concerning his earlier conduct. One common regret is the lack of appreciation we have for our parents while they are alive. We do not realize at the time that we are not doing all we can to show our love and appreciation. But after they are taken from us and we cannot possibly make amends we can think up any number of nice things we might have done for them.

VEGETABLE AND LUNCHEON DISHES

Green Peppers With Steak

Chop seeded and veined peppers. Cook them a few minutes in the steak gravy and pour over the steak

Potatoes or Apples With Sausage

Pare medium-sized potatoes (or use apples), make a hole in the center of each with an apple corer, and place in it a cased sausage, or fill the cavity with sausage meat. Place in a greased baking pan and bake until soft, about fifty minutes, in a hot oven (450 F.) basting occasionally with the fat from the sausage.

Hodge Podge

Cut into slices 4 onions, 3 carrots, 3 small turnips, 6 potatoes, 1 stick celery. Add 1 tablespoon rice, season with salt and pepper. Cut 1½ lbs. lean meat in slices; mix all together and put in pan; add 1 pt. water. Cover and bake slowly six hours. Turn out into a deep dish to serve.

Spanish Rice

1 cup rice
1 pt. milk
½ onion
1 pt. tomatoes
Butter
Salt and pepper

Boil rice in water till nearly done. Drain, add milk and butter, and chopped onion. When milk is nearly absorbed; add tomatoes, salt pepper, and a pinch of paprika.

Stewed Tomatoes

To cooked tomatoes add bits of buttered bread or crackers. Or, add butter, sugar, salt, and pepper to taste. To cream 1 pt. tomatoes add a thin flour and water paste (1 tablespoon flour to ½ cup water, cold juice or milk), a speck of soda and about 1 cup rich milk. Add slowly, stirring briskly. (If rapidly stirred, soda is not necessary to prevent curdling). Use plenty of butter and seasoning before serving.

Baked Tomatoes

Halve ripe tomatoes, unpeeled and arrange close together in a buttered glass baking dish. Sprinkle well with sugar, salt pepper, and scraped onion; add butter, set in a hot oven (450° F.) until softened but in shape, then lay on each a slice of bacon and continue baking until bacon is crisp, turning once. Remove from oven, slip buttered rounds or squares of hot toast underneath, and serve. These are delicious.

Delicate Turnip

Mash cooked turnips, add 1 or 2 mealy potatoes, mash, beat, and season with salt and plenty of butter. Heap in a serving dish in rosettes, add pepper, and serve. Many people who find turnip too strong will like it prepared in this way. It must be mashed and beaten until very smooth, and be served hot.

Scalloped Onions

Peel and boil a pound of onions, 1 cup of dry crumbs, 1 tablespoon of chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon of salt, 1 cup of white sauce, 1 cup of finely chopped meats, 1-3 cup of butter, speck of pepper, 1 egg or 2 beaten egg yolks. Peel the onions and boil them whole. When cool cut the center from center, mix all ingredients together and stuff the onion shell. Bake in a moderate oven until brown. Nuts may be substituted in place of the chopped meat, and cheese may be sprinkled on top.

Vegetable Casserole

An excellent meat substitute. Slice and toast ½ loaf bread. Put it through the grinder and add ½ lb. chopped nuts, 1 cup chopped celery, 2 cups chopped celery, 2 cups chopped tomatoes, ¼ cup chopped onions, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 well-beaten eggs, salt and pepper to season. Bake slowly for one hour and serve with tomato sauce.

Bermuda Pineapple Salad

A slice of pineapple, placed on a bed of lettuce, with a very thin slice of Bermuda onion. Serve with a Bermuda onion. Serve with a French dressing. Orange or apple slices may be used instead of pineapple.

HOW MUCH ARE YOU WORTH?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HOW much are you worth? It is not how much
You own that will tell your worth,
But what you will do to the lives you touch,
The mark you will leave on earth.
You may be worth many miles of land,
Yet what is the honest truth?
If you never have given a boy a hand,
Then what are you worth to youth?

How much are you worth?—not in golden sums,
The sums that your books reveal.
A new dawn breaks, and a new day comes,
And men have a new ideal.
You may drink your drink from a silver cup,
But what is your fortune then?
If you never have lifted a brother up,
Then what are you worth to men?

How much are you worth?—not in things you own,
But worth in a larger way?
Do you stand apart, do you dwell alone,
Serve only yourself each day?
The time will come when your time is through,
A time you must lay you down,
If you left each task for the rest to do,
Then what were you worth to the town?

Through a Woman's Eyes

by Jean Newton

ON A FOOLISH FRIEND

"NOTHING is more dangerous than a foolish friend."

I thought of that old French proverb recently when I heard a woman defending a friend against malicious and unfounded gossip. She defended and explained and discussed the matter which had put her friend in a mistaken but bad light, and with every word of defense she intensified her friend's unfortunate position.

This loyal but foolish woman made excuses for her friend which only complicated matters. In attempting to vindicate her she revealed circumstances which were again open to misunderstanding and which were far better left untold.

She was loyal, but not discreet, which made her a dangerous friend. And a confidence to such a friend is as good as ammunition for one's enemies.

With many women there is ample room for greater discretion, not only for themselves, but with reference to the affairs of their friends.

Some women are not alive to the fact that while their own affairs are matters to be dealt with as they see fit, those of their friends present a very different problem. A woman with a penchant for frankness, for instance, and a belief in its efficacy under all circumstances, may indulge this belief to her heart's content in her own personal affairs. Whether or not it is successful, she herself will reap what she has sowed.

But when the secrets or personalities or intimate details are those of her friend she has only one course open to her. No matter what her own impulse or disposition, no matter how well meaning and loyal to her friend, not matter how proprietary the interest she may feel, that course is discretion—and silence. Excuses, explanations, revelations must be made, if at all, by the one who is personally concerned. A general denial of wrong and the suggestion that her friend will be able to set everything right, is as far as a loyal and discreet friend can go.

Lack of discretion on our own account is a pity. With reference to the affairs of a friend, it is a crime.

VINCENTS INFECTION OR TRENCH MOUTH

(This is the third of the series of articles on Sore Spots in the Mouth, written for the Eastern Times by R. G. Prather, D.D.S., 2266½ E. Main street.)

Trench mouth as it is properly called, is another condition of importance, associated with multiple sores of the mouth. It is important first, because it is increasing in frequency at an alarming rate in this country.

If this condition is not thoroughly eliminated, permanent damage is done to the mouth and teeth. This disease occurs in both the acute and chronic forms. It is spread through kissing, cups, table ware, pipes, towels, etc. During the period of treatment, it is necessary to eliminate everything that is likely to produce irritation in the mouth.

Smoking should be stopped and extremely hot foods and drink should not be taken. Expert dental attention is necessary. I shall have more to say on this subject at a later writing.

Miss Marian Leach, 663 Wilson avenue, was hostess at a tea from 4 until 6 p. m. Sunday at her home, honoring Miss Elizabeth Gray McDonough of Parkersburg, W. Va., a student at St. Mary's of the Springs college.

DEATH RATE CUT IN HALF DURING LAST TEN YEARS

Statistics, available at the State Department of Health show that while the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half in the ten-year period from 1918 to 1927, there were 53 more deaths in Ohio in 1928 than there were in 1927.

"Tuberculosis is still a real problem in Ohio," says Miss Alice M. Hill, statistician with the National Tuberculosis Association, who has revealed some startling facts in a recent survey which she has compiled for the Ohio Public Health Association.

"In order to tackle this problem properly, Miss Hill points out that there are two varieties of information necessary; first, definite data as to the character of the problem where it is greatest, and second, specific facts regarding the extent to which machinery has been set up for meeting the situation.

"When the problem is known, and when the machinery measures up, in extent and operation, to accepted standards, we should be able to push tuberculosis out of its present position as the most important cause of death in Ohio," Miss Hill says.

The promotion of campaigns for sanatoria and preventoria; the establishment of fresh air schools; provision for tuberculosis nurses and facilities for examination and the carrying out of a definite program of health education are a part of the machinery which is in operation in various local communities throughout the state at the present time. This machinery is kept in action through the annual sale of Christmas health seals conducted by the Ohio Public Health Association and its local affiliated agencies in every county. The sale will open here for the twenty-second consecutive year on November 29, and will continue until December 24.

Rev. Donaldson Attends Convention Committee Meetings Here Tuesday

To assist in formulating questions that will serve as the basis of a discussion of Christian unity at the eleventh annual Ohio Pastors' Convention here January 21-24, Rev. Thomas Donaldson, rector of St. Albans Episcopal church, Bexley, attended a meeting of the special committees of the convention in this city Tuesday.

Committee members from all parts of Ohio, representing a variety of denominations, assembled to draft discussion outlines to guide the sixteen sectional meetings into which the convention will divide during some of its sessions.

Consolidation of churches in local committees will receive special attention on one day of the convention, pastors from metropolitan cities, smaller cities and town and country fields meeting separately to discuss this subject in its practical relation to their own communities. At the same time other groups from the same three types of parish will be considering inter-church cooperation in their communities.

During another half-day, sectional meetings will discuss Christian unity from the standpoint of the effect it would have on various forms of church activity, including: Religious education, evangelism, "the attitude of youth toward the church," "the moral results to be attained by the church," "the number and quality of colleges and seminaries," "the administrative work of the church," "the missionary program," "the program of the local church" and "interdenominational agencies."

Reverend Donaldson is a member of the committee on "Christian Unity and the Realization of the Social Ideals of the Church."

He reported that more than 1,200 persons are already registered for the Centennial Pentecostal Celebration of the Ohio Council of Churches January 19-26, of which the Pastors' convention will be a part. Also included are similar conventions of laymen, church women and young people, together with a pageant and a special musical program.

Choosing and Preparing The Thanksgiving Turkey

(Editor's Note: This article on choosing and preparing the Thanksgiving turkey is one of the series of articles written exclusively for the Eastern Times by Ella MacIvee, author of the Home Dietitian.)

How to Judge the Age of Poultry

One of the commonest ways of testing the age of dressed poultry is to take the end of the breastbone farthest from the head between thumb and finger and attempt to bend it to one side. In a very young bird, say a "broiler" chicken or a green goose, it will be easily bent, like the cartilage in the human ear. In a bird a year or so old it will be brittle, and in an old bird tough and hard to bend or break. Unfortunately, tricky dealers sometimes break the end of the breastbone before exhibiting the bird, and thus render the test worthless. If the feet are left on the carcass they furnish a test of the age. In a young bird they are soft and smooth, becoming hard and rough as the bird grows older. The claws are short and sharp in a young bird, becoming longer and blunter with age and use. The spur above the foot is also to be observed; when the bird is very young, like a broiler, it is hardly apparent; a few months later it is long, but straight; in a mature bird it is larger still and crooked at the end. It is more developed in males than in females and capons.

Turkeys up to a year old are said to have black feet, which gradually become pink up to three years old and then turn gray and dull.

Roast Turkey

Rub inside of bird with salt, stuff with dressing and sew up. Rub outside of turkey with Crisco or butter. Salt and flour all fowls, put in roaster containing ½ cup Crisco or a mixture of lard and butter. Have oven hot enough to brown the flour quickly, baste with fat or part water often, till fowl starts to brown well then add water to cover bottom—reduce heat and cover pan till fowl is tender. Keep breast of turkey down till tender then turn to brown. Baste fowl often with a fat and water mixture and brown, without cover, when tender. Turkey breast may be covered with strips of bacon till tender. Turkey needs at least three hours unless very small. Salt may be sprinkled on fowl several times during roasting.

Bread Dressing

Sprinkle 1 cup boiling water over

SCHOOLS TO GIVE OPERETTA "MISS CHERRYBLOSSOM"

Nell Scheiky and Edward Garhold Have Leading Parts in Japanese Play

GIVEN DEC. 12, 13

The operetta, "Miss Cherryblossom" will be given by the students of the Bexley schools on Thursday and Friday nights, December 12 and 13 in the auditorium of the Cassingham road school building.

One hundred and fifty students will comprise the chorus for this operetta. The music for the score will be played by the high school orchestra.

Miss Nell Scheiky has the role of Miss Cherryblossom, an American girl who has been brought up by a Japanese and made to believe that she is a Japanese girl.

The role of Kokemo, the foster father of Cherryblossom, will be taken by Edward Garhold. Other characters are: John Henry Smith, Robert Brunner; Henry Foster Jones, Everett Waters; Horace Worthington, Sydney Sweet; James Young, William Park; Jessica Vanderpool, Elizabeth Newberger; and Togo, the Japanese, Walter McCloy.

The operetta was written by May Hughes Dodge and John Wilson Dodge. It is under the direction of Kent Morris, director of music in the high school, Miss Beremic Mullins, dramatic instructor, and Miss Anna Johnson, supervisor of music in the grade school.

ZELLNER TO APPEAR ON CAPITAL CONCERT SERIES NOVEMBER 26

The appearance of Zellner, dramatic characterist, on the evening of November 26 at Capital University will bring to local people one of the most unique and artistic programs ever offered.

Zellner is styled a "Protean Characterist," and his program is a fast-moving costumed panorama of big moments from history, literature and fiction. His characterizations include "Faust," "Mephisto," "Moses," "Judas Iscariot," "Lincoln," "Socrates," "Grant," "Lee," and many others. Zellner stands in the front rank of dramatic characterists.

The color-lighting equipment consists of a miniature switchboard of twenty controls and a variety of spotlights and floodlights in both brilliant and diffused shades of red, orange, amber, yellow, blue and innumerable combinations.

Sixteen characters of distinction, in full costume, appear in rapid succession within an hour and a half and run the gamut from rollicking comedy to, as one press comment puts it, "The loftiest heights of drama." Such comedy classics as Huck Finn, The Skipper of the Toonerville Trolley, Abe Martin, the inimitable Mrs. Finkelstein, and others, give way to popular heroes like Grant, Lee and Lincoln, who in turn are succeeded by such magnificent figures of romance and drama as Socrates, Faust, Mephisto, Moses, Judas and Peter.

He makes complete changes of costume and makeup in thirty seconds—that is the average time. The longest requires forty seconds; some require but six or eight seconds. The Faust-Mephisto transformation is made in the twinkling of an eye. There are no waits. There is scarcely time to catch the breath between sensations.

SOCIETY GIVES PLAYLET

"Thanksgiving Ann," a missionary playlet, will be given in the Sunday school room of the Oakwood M. E. church, Tuesday evening, Nov. 27 at 7:30.

No admission will be charged but an offering will be taken for the benefit of the "Little Light Bearers," a junior missionary society. After the entertainment, a jitney lunch will be served in the basement in charge of Mrs. J. M. Vail.

KILLS RABBIT LIMIT

"Roe" Harris went hunting at the opening of the season and killed 3 rabbits and one pheasant. In struggling through the "wilds," Roe pulled a tendon in his ankle. In spite of this he has been attending to business as usual.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A TRUE STORY

A YOUNG man walked into the office of the president of one of our schools of technology carrying a bundle under his arm. Upon placing it on the table, he inquired if all the windows were shut and the doors locked. Being assured that this was the case, he proceeded, with great care, to open his precious bundle which represented many years of hard work and the expenditure of all the money he possessed. The president of the school at once recognized that the article presented to him was a very important invention in the field of electrical engineering. He suggested inviting into the conference the head of the department in the school, but was immediately reproached by the young man with words, "No this is mine, no one can ever have it but myself!"

L. A. Barrett.

After meditating on the advice given him by the president of the school the young man returned. This time the windows were permitted to be opened and the doors unlocked. The head of the department of electrical engineering was permitted to examine the invention. He recognized that it was of rare merit and if it could be manufactured and put to popular use would be of practical value. The young inventor was persuaded to trust to others his invention with the result that before many months he had the satisfaction of seeing the product of his skill made in large quantities, and from which he received a royalty which proved to be a substantial income.

This true story suggests an interesting paradox. The only way we can have anything is to first give it away. If the young man had decided to keep his invention all to himself he might still have it wrapped up in a bundle and still be carrying it under his arm; but when he was willing to let the public have it he received his reward. When we keep to ourselves whatever we possess, we lose it, and when we give it away, it is returned to us many fold more.

This rule holds true in the field of human virtues as well as in economic values. We possess whatever we give away; we lose whatever we try to keep.

GABBY GERTIE

"When a girl has a heavy date she may be said to lean toward obesity."

His Better Half

The bishop of Coventry, England, addressing a diocesan conference, is reported to have thus defined the "ideal clergyman." He should be young and married to a wife with an attractive personality and, preferably, a private income, and she should be "a real leader in all parochial work," where her husband is rector, she should be director, as it were.

Summing It Up

Our troubles come from trying to put the left-hand boot on the right-hand foot.

TWO WOMEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILES

Miss Gertrude Ableman, 745 Oakwood avenue, is in Grant hospital suffering from a broken leg which she received when struck by the auto of Alve Davey, 458 Stauring street as she stepped from a street car at Forest and Stauring avenues, Sunday night.

Mary Emmilhainz, 656 Fairwood avenue, is in Grant hospital with several fractured ribs and a minor knee injury received Monday, when she was struck by an auto driven by Albert Leaman, 179 North Princeton avenue at Broad street and Grant avenue.

McVEY ASKS FOR RECOUNT

Frank McVey, defeated candidate for the office of justice of peace of Marion township, has filed a request with the probate judge for a recount of the votes. He was defeated by Clint Doughty by a vote of 770 to 738.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE FIND FAULT

WE FIND fault because we don't want to pay.

The pay may consist of actual cash, recognition of superiority on the part of another, or an apology. All of these come hard and we prefer to find fault as a means of getting out of paying.

If you are too enthusiastic in your praise of the good job the plumber does for you he is likely to raise his price a little or slight his job. Contractors find that if they appear to show too much appreciation all sorts of demands are likely to be made for extras on the assumption that they are making a lot of money. It seems to be the wise policy to grumble a little. Criticize the job and the plumber will be glad to get a fair price. Give the impression that you are losing money on your contract and the other fellow is more likely to be reasonable in the thought that he has driven a sharp bargain and is getting something for nothing.

Football coaches practice the strategy of underestimating the ability of their team to guard against overconfidence and unfaithfulness in training.

We find fault partly because we think we get more for our money. We find fault also because we hate to give the other fellow credit. Finding fault is one way of discrediting another person and raising ourselves by comparison. The fault-finder is a critic and the critic assumes the superior role. At least he feels more important to himself by this practice.

We find fault frequently to cover up a mistake of our own. It is a means of shifting the blame to somebody else. An apology is humiliating. Fault-finding and shifting the blame is a means of bulldozing.

Not infrequently genuine dissatisfaction and disagreement with the views or methods of others leads us to find fault.

Finding fault is a common practice. With some it is a matter of getting out of paying something, with others it is a chronic attitude—a matter of habit and temperament.

LEUKOPLAKIA

By R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.

(Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles on Oral Hygiene written by Dr. R. G. Prather, D.D.S., 2266½ East Main street. Dr. Prather is a graduate of the College of Dentistry of Ohio State University. For the past six years he has been practicing his profession on the East Side and in Bexley. He is a member of the Columbus Dental Association, the Ohio State Dental Association and American Dental Association).

Leukoplakia (which means white spots) or smokers spots, are seen quite commonly in heavy smokers. They are not in themselves serious, but they indicate that an irritation is occurring and that nature is attempting to protect herself against that irritation. Occasionally these spots break down and become malignant. Because of this tendency, leupoplakia has been called a precancerous lesion.

If these spots appear, it is wise to reduce smoking or stop it altogether, and to avoid taking hot and highly seasoned foods. Sometimes it is wise to have these spots removed. They are not, as a rule, painful. The lesions of syphilis are sometimes confused with leukoplakia. These two diseases are totally different in importance and significance, and the treatment is therefore quite different, and consequently an accurate diagnosis is a prime requisite.

The next article will be the beginning of a series on the most important sore spot in the mouth, which is cancer.

WOMEN'S GUILD TO HOLD BAKE SALE

Helpful Suggestions in Carving

The chief ... s for neat and satisfactory ca... ate.

1. A sharp, ... knife with a blade that is pe... but neither too heavy nor too flexi... Also, a strong, sharp fork.

2. A general id... the location of the joints and ho... to be encountered.

3. Know what ... meant by "cutting across the grain" and follow the rules as much as possible.

4. Use an extra platter for the pieces as they are cut, unless there is plenty of room beside the roast.

5. Do not touch the "drumstick" or any part with the fingers unless it is protected by a paper frill.

6. If necessary to carve before guests, the carver may sit or stand, as he wishes, but, above all, be "calm and good-natured." The hostess may divert the conversation to avoid the concentrated attention of guests upon the task in hand.

7. If possible strings and skewers should be removed before bringing the roast to the table.

8. After all the neat pieces are removed, any further carving should be done, "however possible", in the kitchen.

For Chicken, Turkey, Duck or Goose

The fowl is placed with the breast up and the neck to the left. The fork is inserted at the point of the breastbone and the fowl held firmly thus while carved.

Grasping the fork in the left hand cut through the skin with the tip of the knife where the wing joins the body. Push the wing back with the broad side of the knife blade and cut through the exposed joint, severing the wing from the body. Without withdrawing the fork, sever the leg and thigh parts in a single piece, in a similar way. Cut through the skin where the thigh joins the body and, using the flat side of the knife blade as before, bend back the leg and thigh piece so as to expose the thigh joint, then with the fork inserted in the thigh, cut through this joint, using the tip of the knife. Lay aside while carving the breast. (Finish one side of the bird before turning to the other.) To carve the breast remove each side in one piece. To do this cut along the ridge of the breast bone the entire length and then, slipping the knife carefully under, cut close to the body of the bird so that not a bit of meat is left on the bones. When the breast piece is large, cut it into five or six portions, making the cuts crosswise of the meat fibers. Next divide the leg-and-thigh section into two serving pieces by cutting through the joint between them. The wing may also be divided. The carver may now start the serving, selecting a piece of the breast together with one of the bony portions for each serving. Then he may proceed to carve the other side in like manner. If the leg pieces are unusually large, a slice or two may be taken from one side.

If more meat is needed, the wishbone or ... slices from the sides ...

"'LO, FOOLISH!"

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

'ON A WILD-GOOSE CHASE'

A SEARCH for something that cannot be found, a useless effort, an impossible cause, a hunt for something that will probably not be attained, is spoken of as "a wild goose chase." The reference of the elusiveness of success in a chase of the wild goose, is of course, obvious. But there is more than that in the story of the phrase.

The modern phrase "on a wild goose chase" owes its origin to a story told of that skillful sportsman, Charles I of England. Charles liked his hunting, and according to the story, a similar fondness on the part of the nobles sometimes interfered with his enjoyment. It irritated the king, on the trail of his quarry, to find other hunting parties beating through the wood and sometimes crossing his path.

On one occasion when he was particularly desirous of getting rid of them, an idea came to him. He published among the nobles an offer of a prize to the one who could capture the greatest number of wild geese. Off they went to the seashore, and the king had the woods to himself!

And so though the object is not literally wild geese, a not unfamiliar method of getting rid of a nuisance today is to send her "on a wild goose chase."

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

THE GIRL WHO CAN'T GET ALONG WITH HER FAMILY

A YOUNG girl writes to me that she cannot get along with her large family of brothers and sisters because they are all so thick-skinned. They say the most insulting things to each other, she writes, and the next moment are good friends. "For my part, I don't like to be called a fool or told that I'm crazy. And when one of my brothers or sisters does that, I simply don't have anything to do with them. I don't talk to them in that way, and I don't see why I should be compelled to subject myself to that sort of language.

"My mother, of course, says I am over-sensitive. She points out that I also have trouble in getting along with my friends. That is true. But if I have got to keep my friends at the cost of my self-respect, I prefer not to have any. I merely expect people to show me the same consideration that I show them. And I think my mother's doctrine that 'you have to close your eyes to things now and then, if you want to have friends' is a rather cheap one."

I wrote that child—for in every line of her letter is the idealism, the self-deluding of youth that cries out—that we have got to close our eyes to a great many things in life if we expect to know any peace or happiness.

It is not only the practical matter of keeping friends which decrees that we make shortcomings in those we care for and try to adapt ourselves to things and people as they are rather than insist upon our own notion of what they should be; it is the more important necessity of keeping something fine and sweet in our own hearts and gladness in our spirit. If we are going to brood about the qualities we don't like in those with whom we come in contact and answer every offense by "having nothing to do with them" we cannot avoid turning into sour misanthropes. For perfection is hard to find. And the reason that that is not a "cheap" doctrine is the very obvious fact that we ourselves would find great difficulty in maintaining standard of perfection which some one else might set for us. Many of us would be more tolerant if we could know how involuntarily we often grate upon those who love us.

The girl who says about her sister and brothers "I do not act in that way to them and I insist that they follow my example in their relations with me" is trying to force an entire family into her own mold, and failing to do this, exaggerates a superficial difference into a crime serious enough to cut her off from her own family. The Spanish people say, "He who will revenge every affront means not to live long." And they are right.

SUBMIT BLUE PRINTS TO BEXLEY COUNCIL FOR CONDUIT LINES

Traffic Ordinance to be Changed Because of Inconsistency With Signs

NEXT MEETING, DEC. 23

The Ohio Bell Telephone company submitted to Bexley council, Tuesday night, the blue prints for the installation of conduit in East Broad street. The matter was referred to Engineer Harold Kennedy and the street commissioner.

Clerk Samuel Roderick was instructed by council to see about the installation of a trunk line in the municipal office. Complaints have been brought to the attention of council by the telephone company and others that the present line is usually busy.

Police Chief R. A. Antle, brought to the attention of council the inconsistency of the traffic ordinance regarding the main thoroughfare ordinance and the signs erected at the main thoroughfare intersections. The signs read "stop" and the ordinance says that a vehicle approaching the intersection must slow down to 15 miles per hour before entering the main thoroughfare. Antle brought to the attention of council the matter of whether a witness of an accident would be able to judge the speed of the cars. Two accidents have occurred at main thoroughfares in the past two weeks. Council voted to amend the present ordinance to conform with the stop signs.

Roderick was given the authority to pay the village employees on Dec. 20 instead of the regular pay day.

Alexander Forrest appeared before council and brought to its attention alleged inequalities in taxation on sewer trunk assessments on Stanberry avenue, in Forrest Addition. The matter was referred to the sewer committee of which Frank Bonnett is chairman.

An ordinance was passed accepting the donation of certain lands for the opening up of Francis avenue and the extension of Pleasant Ridge avenue.

Judge Sater appeared before Council and offered the proposition of his client Zede Petty to set his building on East Main street back six feet if council would open an alley back of his garage. The matter was referred to the street committee composed of Betz, Kerr and Manly.

The next meeting of council will be held Monday, Dec. 23.

why not a living Christmas TREE?

THE delightful custom of using a living tree within the home for Christmas decorating is rapidly growing in favor. And fittingly so, for a living tree is more in keeping with the joyous spirit of the Christmas Season.

This year buy a live evergreen tree. And after it has served its purpose during the holiday season, it may be left in the tub and set outside until suitable time for planting.

Thus your Christmas tree will also serve to beautify your grounds and stands, a living memorial which will bring back happy memories of all the joys that the day held for you.

Next Year It May Be Used as An Outdoor Christmas Tree

The practice of extending the Christmas decorative plan to include the exterior of the home, as well as the interior, is becoming more general each year. Brightly colored electric lights and other Christmas ornaments suspended from living evergreen trees in the yard call a cheery Christmas greeting to all who pass.

We Can Supply You

We can supply you with beautiful well-rooted specimen trees, either in brightly painted tubs or dug with a ball of earth and burlapped. Drive out or phone us now while the selection is complete.

Why We Do What We Do.

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ARE CRAZY

"HE'S crazy." Did you ever hear that said of anyone who seemed to be fairly safe from spending the remainder of his natural life within the confines of a lunatic asylum? And do you know anybody who has not been called crazy at some time? It all depends on the point of view and who is passing judgment.

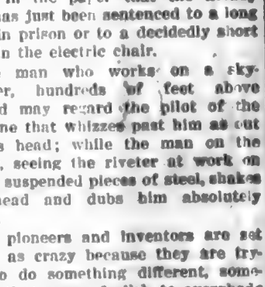
We are all crazy.

Two lunatics enjoying the cool balmy breezes under the shade trees of the asylum grounds were observing some men at work on a construction job out in the blazing hot sun. "And they say that we are crazy," said one to the other, as they both chuckled ironically.

The word crazy is used loosely and broadly to apply to anyone who differs radically from us.

The holdup man thinks the honest laborer who breaks his back for a few dollars a day is out of his head, while the honest man with the much-bended back returns the compliment when he reads in the paper that the holdup man has just been sentenced to a long term in prison or to a decidedly short term in the electric chair.

The man who works on a skyscraper, hundreds of feet above ground may regard the pilot of the airplane that whizzes past him as out of his head; while the man on the street, seeing the riveter at work on a few suspended pieces of steel, shakes his head and dubs him absolutely nutty.



All pioneers and inventors are set down as crazy because they are trying to do something different, something that seems foolish to everybody else.

We call every man crazy who is radically different. We even speak of the customs and dress of foreigners as crazy. These appear crazy to us because we are not used to them and ours appear crazy to foreigners for the same reason.

We who manage to remain outside the insane asylum are fortunate in that only now and then we run across a person who is absolutely sure that we are hopelessly crazy. When enough of your fellows decide that you are crazy, the Lord help you.

BREAKING A MIRROR

THE primitive man looking at his own reflection in a still pool beheld a phenomenon he could not explain. He saw something which was not himself but which must be so closely related to himself that there was no joke in it. That's the way a savage feels today when he looks into a mirror for the first time. We are all descended from primitive man and savages and their ideas, Professor Freaud would say, "persist in our unconscious ego." Even in the Middle Ages a mirror was regarded as no: altogether "canny" by the lower classes. What is known as sympathetic magic has always regarded a close connection as existing between a person and his "counterfeit presentment." We know better now but our "subconscious"—or our "unconscious" as some of the psychologists say—self has not fully shaken off the effect of long ages of superstition; and who is there who can see a mirror accidentally broken without a secret uneasiness? He may boast that he can do so—but can he? The smashing of the mirror destroys the reflected image—his counterfeit self or a surface which has born it, as it has also borne the image of the other members of his family. Therefore he—himself—or some member of his family, whispers the lingering voice of despised, forgotten but inherited belief in sympathetic magic, is in danger. All of which accounts for the very prevalent superstition that if you break a looking glass there will be a death in the family within the year. If no death occurs the breaking of the glass is forgotten. But suppose one does occur? Ah, then it is remembered and mirrors are handled very carefully in that household thereafter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bennett, 752 South Champion avenue, announce the birth of a daughter, Nancy Lou, Monday.

CANCER OF THE MOUTH

(This is the second of a series of articles on Cancer, written for the Eastern Times, by Dr. R. G. Prather, dentist, 2266½ E. Main street.)

By R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.

In cancer of the mouth, we have an advantage over cancer located in the deeper parts of the body, because, from its earliest inception, the individual is conscious of the presence of a sore in the mouth. It may not be painful. Usually it is not in the early stages. It may be regarded as only a canker spot, or a cold sore, or some simple condition. Perhaps the individual may feel that he has bitten his cheek or that he is smoking too much, but no matter what he thinks about it, he knows that something is wrong and he knows this at a time when, if it is cancer it is in a stage that may be successfully treated.

Another advantage of a suspected cancer of the mouth which is closely related to the one already mentioned is that an actual diagnosis can frequently be made in this very early stage before the disease has had a chance to develop to a hopeless stage.

Early diagnosis and early thorough removal of the growth constitute bright spots in this matter of cancer In the case of a sore that cannot be positively diagnosed before operation, rather than lose valuable time by inaction it is better to consider the lesion guilty until proved innocent.

CHILDREN INVITED TO TUNE IN SANTA

All the children of the country are invited to tune in on the Santa Claus Day program to be held in connection with the central Ohio community Christmas festival on the State House steps Dec. 11.

Stations W L W, Cincinnati, and W A I U and W C A H, Columbus, will put the program on the air.

Santa Claus will arrive from his North Pole home and will be "at home" in an igloo on the State House grounds until Christmas, and will be featured on the radio program.

Governor Cooper and Mayor James J. Thomas, Columbus, will officially welcome Santa to Ohio. Santa will then tell all the good little boys and girls of the country about his plans for Christmas. Santa will be attended by a court of eskimoes and a clown band.

Christmas carols will be sung by the combined choirs of the Maennerchor and the Germania Singing Society, two of the oldest German singing societies in the country.

Two 40 foot Christmas trees are being installed in the State House yard.

THINGS THAT REMAIN

THE recent crash on the stock market brought about serious tragedies. Persons unable to protect their marginal accounts were unmercifully sold out by brokers and in many cases an entire investment was lost. When this investment represented savings accumulated through a number of years, it was all the more pathetic. This unprecedented [illegible] on the New [illegible] stock ex[illegible]ecially in [illegible]. Low certain[illegible] are some things which are regarded as perfect[illegible]le and secure. Inquiry as to the cause of the crash brings out many suggested reasons, which are of little help save as guide posts in future transactions, with special emphasis upon the folly of buying more than one has cash to pay for in case of an emergency.

L. A. Barrett.

Now that the storm is over, we seem to sense certain values which were not in the least affected by the crash. These values by many persons are regarded as of even more importance than the values which collapsed in the recent financial debacle. These values might be thought of as "The Things That Remain." When financially ruined men went home to night of the collapse perhaps for the first time they appreciated stock values as never before. Others who might have discovered them knew appreciated the fact that the permanent things in life were unshaken.

What are those values which defied the mob psychology which swept the stock market? Many could be mentioned. May we mention but a few. The innocent laugh of little children. The confidence which others have in our integrity. The [illegible] privileges which fine friendship affords. The respect one receives from his fellow citizens. The cheer of the family hearth fire. The charm of the woods and the beauty of the flowers. The wonder of the stars and the voices of nature to which the sensitive ear is always alert. The love for books and the power to appreciate the messages of their silent authors. Yes, all of this, and best of all, the smile of the one we know as wife and mother. These are some of life realities that still remain.

Puts Swindlers at Million

More than a million persons in the United States are living entirely on the proceeds of confidence games and other dishonest schemes of obtaining money, the vice president of a New York surety company is quoted. These leeches actually take more than three and one-half billion dollars from unsuspecting wage earners, he says.

Griddle Cakes, Waffles, Fritters

Note: When a drop of water, tossed on the hot griddle, rolls around like a bead the iron is hot enough for griddle cakes or waffles. Or when a tiny bit of butter quickly turns light brown the griddle is ready. When making waffles, keep the iron closed till no more steam escapes between the griddles—1½ to 2 minutes for thin batter. Heat the waffle iron 8 to 10 minutes at first.

The sun's too hot to let them join
But keeps them there just so.

SELF KEPT SLAVES

A PARIS paper recently carried a story of a slave case in the Courts of Fes, Morocco, which is very interesting.

A woman there sold to a woman friend for a hundred and four dollars a young female slave. The French authorities heard of the transaction, and, as slavery is illegal within the French zone in Africa, the buyer and seller were both in court.

The slave was ordered liberated. But this order was received with such cries of indignation on the part of the slave as to embarrass the court. She accused the court of cruelty, insisting that she did not want to be liberated. "You know perfectly well," she said, "that liberation would ruin me. I am comfortably lodged and fed; I am content with my mistress. Why should I wish to be freed?"

So insistent and so clamorous was her demand to remain a slave that the court was compelled to compromise, permitting her to continue to work for nothing for her mistress.

That reminds me of a story of some slum dwellers in the East End of London whose homes, not only unsafe, but for years unfit for human habitation, were condemned to be torn down and replaced with sanitary, modern dwellings. A philanthropic enterprise was involved, and the tenants were to be suitably housed during the time that their unspeakable living quarters were being transformed into decent homes.

And yet a great hue and cry went up from these people whom it was planned to raise to a better standard of living. They protested against the inconvenience of the change. They complained of "interference," even accused their would-be benefactors of abuse in ousting them from the places they were occupying. In one voice they insisted, "Let us alone. We do not want to move!"

To people of our standards, of course, it is almost inconceivable that a slave should not want to be freed, that slum dwellers should protest against an attempt to better their condition. And yet it is not only the benighted we find sticking to a rut because they have become comfortable in it and are too lazy to move out of it. To the thoughtful observer every day brings example among those of us who are supposed to be enlightened, of people who chain themselves to some kind of slavery because it is the easiest way, because freedom would involve a change that would be too much trouble.

It isn't only in Africa and the London slums that we find self-kept slaves.

TIGHTEN RESTRICTIONS; TO REMOVE IRON FENCE

The Board of Trustees of Capital University in semi-annual convention this week resolved to tighten the restrictions and requirements for the granting of honorary degrees from the school in the future.

Requests for such distinctions will be considered from only such candidates who show extraordinary scholastic attainments or unusual service along recognized lines. Final action will be instituted by a committee appointed to formulate a definite policy along that line.

The Kappa Sigma Upsilon, men's organization at the university, petitioned the board to remove the historic iron fence from the Main street side of the campus and to be substituted with a hedge fence. The board authorized the administration to make the change.

CHRISTMAS WEEK IN LOS ANGELES

The Eastern Times has received a letter from Miss Ruth Geist in which she describes a Christmas week night in Los Angeles. Miss Geist's letter is as follows:

"Not a cold crisp zero night 'sparkling with stars,' but a warm foggy night.

"I never saw such elaborate decorating for Christmas. Red and green lights are arched over the streets, and houses of card board are erected around the cluster lights. Last night a heavy fog rolled in from the ocean, almost obliterating the city, tops of buildings were wholly invisable, the bright colors of the arched street lights glimmered through the mist, with a strange weird light, which caused a sense of restlessness around the edges of one's soul.

"Street after street made passage ways for the dense mist that rolled by like billows of white smoke. As one walked along, at brief intervals, there came upon the air the sweet strains of 'Silent Night' or 'Oh Little Town of Bethlehem,' coming from radios concealed in the afore-mentioned card board houses; the dense fog obscured all visibility of the mechanism that made the music possible, and left only the marvelous impression of carols dropping from the sky. I think I have never experienced anything more profoundly impressive and I thought of the scriptural passage, 'The place where thou standest is holy ground,' might almost be applied here. The unearthly grandeur of it all, had to be seen to be fully appreciated."

POSTMASTER GEREN DELIVERS ADDRESS; POSTOFFICE OPENED

Byron Spence Installed as Superintendent of Bexley's New Station

NO NEW ROUTES

The new Bexley postoffice on Drexel avenue near Main street, was dedicated Monday morning with appropriate services. Postmaster James R. Geren gave a short address, followed by a short talk by Mayor S. E. Ludwig, who expressed his appreciation to both Postmaster Geren and Councilman Sam Betz, who have been instrumental in obtaining the postoffice for Bexley.

The first letter was mailed Monday morning by Mrs. Samuel Betz, wife of Councilman Betz. The first two registered letters were mailed by Wilber Gettig, 521 Miller avenue.

Superintendent Byron Spence, 681 Carpentar street, who assumed his duties at the postoffice, Monday morning, says that the regular carrier routes will be continued, the new postoffice making the delivery of mail easier and quicker. Every effort will be made to give the best service possible in the village.

Superintendent Spence hopes that the delivery of mail by carriers will be extended to the various parts of Bexley as soon as the improvements warrant the new routes, but at the present time the routes will not be extended, only the old routes being covered by the city carriers.

The mail order blanks for the Bexley station have been delayed and so it has been impossible to issue mail orders. The blanks are expected soon and may arrive by the time this paper goes to press. All other postoffice facilities are available at the new station that can be secured at the main office.

Mr. Spence wishes to express his appreciation for the cooperation and consideration which he has received from the residents of the village.

Two hundred small boxes and 25 larger ones are available for the business firms and residents who appreciate the better service available through the use of these boxes. Six deliveries of mail give the box holder the benefit of these deliveries. Two daily deliveries will be made in the village as has been the custom heretofore.

Mr. Spence will be assisted in the office by two clerks, Fred L. Rector, first clerk, and Leslie Hildebrand.

Eight city carriers and two rural carriers will handle the deliveries. These men are the same men who have previously handled the routes, they are: Charles R. Miller, 1003 Oak street; Harry McDole, 959 South Champion ave.; Clarence M. Wayne, 1360 Moobery street; Floyd S. Trott, 951 Linwood avenue; Dolph F. Stevenson, 863 Lockbourne road; Henry J. Werrs, 516 Kimball place; Paul R. Ebert, 1008 Oak street; C. A. Shaffer, 660 Maplewood avenue, and Jesse T. Gilfillen, 492 Linwood avenue.

NEW DISPLAY WINDOW

The East Side Lumber Co., 1927 East Main street, has added a paint display window and room adjoining the office. The exterior of the new room features all kinds of patterns of house siding and John Manaville Dutch Lap method of asbestos roofing.

In the room the Glidden line of house paints, varnishes and enamels is arranged on shelves the entire length of the room. The East Side Lumber Co. just recently accepted the agency for this line of paints.

MEMBER OF BLISS COLLEGE GLEE CLUB

Miss Louise Archibald, 877 Wilson avenue, is a member of the newly organized mixed glee club at Bliss college. Miss Archibald is a bookkeeper at Bliss as well as being a student there.

CANCER OF MOUTH

(This is the third of a series of articles on Cancer of the mouth, written for the Eastern Times by Dr. R. G. Prather, 2266½ E. Main street.)

By R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.

The two most important characteristics of cancer of the mouth are, first, its failure to show any tendency to heal even with help, and second, the persistent spreading of the growth. A well known surgeon in his country, whose experience has been wide, has said that a cancer of the mouth growing for more than six weeks becomes hopeless. Time, then, is an important element in the favorable treatment of a case of cancer.

When one has developed a sore in the mouth and has consulted a dentist or a physician about it and treatment has resulted in a reasonably prompt healing, there is no occasion to worry about cancer. Pain even of a persistent character, does not necessarily suggest the presence of cancer, especially when no sore exists. This may help to relieve the minds of some readers. But when a sore has been treated for a week or two and various treatments have been given without success and no satisfactory explanation for their failure can be made, it is important to remember, first, the characteristic persistency in the growth of cancer, secondly, the fact that local applications are of no avail, and, thirdly, the additional fact that the time margin of safety is very low.

Therefore, the man or woman who has had a sore in the mouth, whether it has been treated or not, which does not heal within two weeks should not fail to have it examined at once by someone familiar with this disease, for the purpose of establishing a diagnosis. If this is done and the sore proves to be an cancer, thorough treatment promptly given offers a good chance to completely eliminate the disease.

The next article on cancer will deal with the treatment.

"POET LAUREATE"

FROM our school days most of us have sensed romance in the title of "Poet Laureate," which is conferred upon only one poet in England to be held by him until his death, when the next Poet Laureate is chosen.

The term "Laureate" comes from "laurel" and the reference is to the old custom at the English universities of presenting those receiving degrees in poetry and rhetoric with a wreath of laurel. This was originally an ancient custom, the Greeks being known to have so crowned their popular poets.

The title was first conferred in 1670. The early Poet Laureate was an officer in the greatly beloved king's household, whose business it was to compose an ode for the king's birthday and other important occasions. The modern title however is purely honorary.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"BOSTON COMMON"

A PARK which is famous the country and the world over is Boston Common. No visitor to New England, no traveler passing through the city which once held a "tea party" whose echo has reverberated through the pages of history, would fail to visit the "Common." And it is because of these historic associations that "Boston Common" has a significance and an importance beyond that of a mere park or playground.

The "Common" dates back to colonial times, antedating by over a hundred years the famous tea party, which is another boast of the city of the Puritan tradition and the broad "A." It had its origin in 1634 when the ground which comprises it was set aside for a training field and "common ground" for public use. It is from the words "common ground" in the original decree that Boston Common takes its name.

"JOY TO THE WORLD!"

Joy to the World! the Lord has come!
Let earth receive her King:
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing.

Joy to the earth! the Saviour reigns!
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills and plains,
Repeat the sounding joy.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.—Luke 2: 8-14.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

DIVINING BY TEA GROUNDS

TELLING fortunes by means of the fragments of tea leaves remaining in the cup after the tea has been drunk is a polite form of sorcery with which we are all familiar. Doubtless you can think of at least one woman of your acquaintance who is particularly expert at it.

Having imbibed your tea, turn the cup upside down in the saucer and whirl it around three times. Turn the cup rightside up again and examine the leaf fragments clinging to bottom and sides. There lies your future.

In this magic we have a double-header—a combination of two ancient systems of divination, hydromancy and ceromancy.

Hydromancy was much practiced in ancient Egypt. A bowl or cup was filled with water and a selected person, generally a young boy, gazed into it until he became hypnotized and "saw things" which the hypnotist magician interpreted what the boy thought he saw. It was the same trick which the strolling magicians of North Africa perform today by means of a drop of ink in a boy's hand and which many travelers have witnessed. When Joseph sent his messengers to find his silver cup in Benjamin's sack he instructed them to say: "Is not this my lord's cup in which my lord drinketh and wherein he divineth?" Hence the mystic qualities of the cup.

The signification of the tea leaves is an echo of ceromancy which consisted of dropping melted wax into water and divining by the forms the wax assumed in cooling.

Ceromancy is a very old art but tea was only introduced into Europe in the Seventeenth century, yet the primitive mind, still subsisting in man, at once seized upon the tea grounds as a means of foretelling the future as that same mind had seized upon the melted wax some thousands of years before

ELLA'S Cook Book

An exclusive feature for Eastern Times readers consisting of articles and recipes from The Home Dietitian, new recipe book published by Ella Mae Ives.

Readers are welcome to call Mrs. Ives, LAwndale 4019, at any time, concerning household matters.

Mrs. Ives also broadcasts every Tuesday over WAIU.

CONFECTIONS

Temperature stages: Thread—230° F.; soft ball—236° F.; firm ball—240° to 248° F.; hard ball—258° to 268° F.; crack—293° to 310° F.; caramel—350° F.

Candy should not be cooked over too hot a fire, as it requires too much stirring to keep it from sticking. The sugar should be dissolved before boiling begins.

Crystals that form on the side of a pan should be washed away so they do not mix with the sirup as it be being poured out to cool. Use a small piece of wet cloth wrapped around a spoon, wait until the candy is almost ready to pour; they should be washed away as they form.

When a syrup forms a fine thread upon dropping from a spoon it is called "hairing" or "threading." After this stage the syrup should not be stirred, as it may granulate.

If the top of the pan (in which candy is boiled) is buttered for an inch or two down, the liquid will not boil over easily.

Cream of tartar should not be added until syrup begins to boil.

Butter should be put in when candy is almost done.

Flavors are more delicate when not boiled in candy, but added afterward.

When doubling a recipe to make larger quantity, use very scant measures of the liquid, or it takes too long to thicken.

UNCOOKED FONDANT CREAMS

Mix 1 unbeaten egg white; 3 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon lemon, vanilla, or orange extract. Stir until well blended, then sift in gradually about 3 cups confectioner's sugar, or enough to make stiff enough to handle. Turn out on a board sprinkled with some of the sifted sugar and knead until very smooth. Use as a stuffing for dates, figs, prunes, or raisins; or make into small balls and press a nut meat on each side to make nut creams. Knead ½ teaspoon peppermint extract into the fondant to make peppermint creams. Roll or flatten to ½ inch thickness or shape with a cutter, and roll in sugar or cocoanut.

Some fondant may be allowed to stand for days if covered with a damp cloth to keep a hard crust from forming over the top, but other confections soften if allowed to stand too long.

SEA FOAM

Place in saucepan 3 cups light brown sugar, 1 cup cold water, and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Bring to boil gradually and do not stir after dissolved. Boil steadily till it reaches 240° F., or when tested in cold water, it forms a firm ball. Take from fire. Beat stiff the whites of 2 eggs, and when the syrup has stopped bubbling pour it onto the egg whites and beat well. When it begins to stiffen, flavor with vanilla and add 1 cup chopped nuts. Drop on paper.

DIVINITY FUDGE

3 cups sugar
1 cup corn syrup
1 cup water
2 egg whites
1 cup nuts
½ cup (or more) cherries or any candied fruit

Boil sugar, syrup, and water to firm ball stage. Take out 1 cup and stir into well beaten whites. Let remainder boil until it cracks in cold water. Now add this to egg mixture. Add nuts and fruit, and beat all stiff and drop with teaspoon on oiled paper, or spread and cut.

For Divinity Roll make as above, saving out nuts and fruit for a filling. Moisten them with orange juice to make a thick paste. While the first mixture is still warm, spread the second all over the top. Then roll up like a jelly roll and wrap the roll in waxed paper until cold. Slice off as used.

CREAM TAFFY

2 cups sugar
½ cup cream
1 cup water
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Small pinch soda

Boil to crack stage without stirring. Cool and pull.

HEAVENLY HASH CANDY

¾ cup corn syrup
¾ cup milk
3 cups sugar
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup candied cherries
½ cup seeded raisins
½ cup dates, or 1½ cup nuts
1 teaspoon almond extract

Mix syrup, milk, sugar, and butter and boil to the soft stage (238° F.) Cool slightly and beat until creamy. Add fruit and flavoring, and spread in buttered pans. The cherries and dates should be cut.

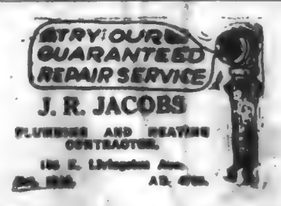
By LEONARD A. BARRETT

EXPERIENCE

EXPERIENCE is a very valuable asset in life for the following reasons: First: It is a test. William James, the late psychologist of Harvard university, coined the phrase, "The Pragmatic Test." It may be high sounding, but its meaning is very simple. The test of truth is experience. We know the value of a certain fertilizer because of the application we have made of it to the particular soil we are responsible for cultivating. Information of a new discovery may reach us from some person in whom we have confidence, and for that reason we accept the statement as true; but our faith passes into knowledge when we personally have made the experiment. If we are not able to make the experiment we must accept the statement of others; this is faith. When our experience tells us it is true, we possess a knowledge which no one can take from us. In very many ways, common place and ordinary, experience is the test of truth. A statement should not be denied, until we know from experience, it is not true.



L. A. Barrett.

Experience is a teacher. Many persons fail in life because they refuse to learn from experience. Every person makes mistakes. No one is infallible. The first mistake is usually pardonable, but there is no reason why the same mistake should be repeated the second time. Continuing to do the thing, which experience has clearly taught was a mistake, is most futile. If experience has taught me that a bee stings, I deserve to be stung if I deliberately subject myself to that danger again. The lessons which experience teaches are most valuable, because from them we learn our sources of strength as well as of weakness.

Experience is a valuable legacy. Would it not have been a wonderful thing if Lincoln could have had a successor? It seems strange, but true that no person can continue another person's work in the sense of doing it just as the other person would have done it. We can, however, build upon another's foundation, because in his work he has left us his personal experience. The most valuable heritage we can ever leave to our children is not money, but an experience expressed in character and ideals.

BUILDING PERMITS DECLINE DURING 1929

RESIDENTS ARE NOT ALARMED AT DECREASES

Totals for Buildings, Valuations and Fees Less Than For Year of 1928.

The nationwide slump in building during 1929 was reflected by a corresponding slump in building operations in Bexley, according to the report of building inspector O. P. Dunlop.

Bexley officials are not alarmed by the sharp decline, pointing out that 1927 and 28 were boom years in Bexley.

January, 1929 showed a slight increase in number of permits over the previous year, 16 permits having been issued with a valuation of $154,140 as compared with 14 permits of the previous year having a valuation of $91,900.

Decline Starts

The number of permits issued in February declined and building operations stayed at a low level for the rest of the year surpassing the records of 1928 in July and September only. Totals for 1929 were slightly more than half of corresponding totals in 1928.

The permit for the $55,000 Bexley public library, the largest project of the year, was issued in January. A $50,000 permit was issued to the Forest Realty Company to build the most costly dwelling at 107 Achburne road. Ralph W. Hoyer built a home at 320 South Parkview avenue, valued at $40,000.

Monthly Activities

For 1929 the monthly activities were as follows: January, 16 permits, $154,140, valuation; February, 5 permits, $31,000, valuation; March, 33 permits, $200,975 valuation; April, 36 permits, $175,271 valuation; May, 26 permits, $176,350 valuation; June, 24 permits, $99,350 valuation; July, 15 permits, $87,460 valuation; August 21 permits, $63,925 valuation; September, 28 permits, $173,375 valuation; October, 19 permits, $102,850 valuation; November, 12 permits, $120,850 valuation; December 2 permits, $8,800 valuation. Totals for 1929—237 permits, $1,394,196, fees, $1,580. Totals for 1928—permits 446; valuation $2,480,905, fees, $2,832.50.

Fees Decrease

Fees also showed a decrease for the year. The comparative totals are: 1928, $2,832.50 and 1929, $1,580.24, or a decrease for 1929 of $1,252.26.

In 1929, 105 houses were built in the village, while in 1928, 196 were built. Ninety-six garages were built in 1929 as compared with 196 in 1928.

December Lowest

December showed the lowest building activity of the year only two permits were issued both being taken out by W. H. Carl who will build a home and garage at 96 North Cassingham road. The home is valued at $8,500 and the garage at $300.

CAPITAL PLAYS ANTIOCH HERE

Cap Opens Conference Season at Home Saturday After Successful Pre-Season Campaign.

Playing their four preseason games in a fashion that has revived memories of the Bernlohrs and Ridenours, the Capital University basketball squad completes their preseason campaign of four games with a clean slate. The Lutherans defeated Antioch by a score of 31-18 and Bluffton by a count of 43-37 before the Christmas recess.

On January 3rd and 4th, Coach Bernlohr took his band of Purple players into Northwestern Ohio and surprised the folks of that territory by trouncing Findlay College, 46-29 and nosing out Defiance, 31-24. The Lutherans defeated Defiance after trailing at the half, 18-9. In the second period, the Bexley quintet permitted the opponents a solitary field goal and then came from behind in the final four minutes of play to take the contest.

Wednesday evening, Muskingum opened the Capital Conference schedule by defeating the Lutherans 37-31. Saturday evening, Capital makes a stand at home in a return engagement with Antioch at Loy gym. According to advance reports, the Antiochians, who, because of their peculiar system of school, will have a different team than the one Capital defeated earlier, will have a nucleus of eight letter men to oppose the Lutherans.

Gene Mechling, junior center on Bernlohr's squad, has been hitting the loop consistently thus far this season. In the four pre-season games he scored 59 points for an average of 15 points a game. Fritz Brideweser, running guard, has also been dropping some beautiful shots from the center of the floor to be runner-up in the squad race for scoring honors.

The game Saturday night marks the 20th time that the schools have met since 1907. The Horace Mann disciples have won but six of the 19 starts and only two since 1910.

WILL DEDICATE SKINNER ORGAN

Palmer Christian to Dedicate Organ In Special Recital Tuesday.

At a special service Sunday morning in the First Presbyterian church, Bryden road and Ohio avenue, the new organ will be dedicated. The organ was made by the Skinner Organ Co., of Boston, Mass., and is a three manuel instrument.

The specifications were prepared by J. Upton Gribben, of this city. A dedicatory sermon entitled, "The Power of Music," will be preached by the minister, Rev. Geo. L. Willett. The organist is Mrs. J. Roger Williams.

The dedicatory recital will be given on Tuesday evening at 8:15 by Palmer Christian of Ann Arbor, Mich. Mr. Christian is one of America's leading organists today. The Central Ohio Chapter, Guild of American Organists under the leadership of Mr. F. C. Mayer, the Dean, is cooperating with the church committee in sponsoring this recital.

Rededication services were held last Sunday marking the completion of many new improvements such as the installation of new pews and pulpit. Two old handwoven Italian Tapestries, believed to be the oldest in the country have been added to the church furnishings and have been placed over the organ openings to soften the tone.

CAP DEBATERS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE

In the annual race for debating championship honors of Ohio Capital tied with Wittenberg, Muskingum, and Bluffton for first place in the Ohio Debating Conference. Capital defeated the University of Toledo, Otterbein, and Ohio Northern, losing to Heidelberg for their sole defeat. Arrangements are being made at the four schools tied for the championship to debate for the silver cup that goes to the winner.

DANCING OFFERED BY CAPITOL COLLEGE

Announcement was made today by Tom A. Taylor, manager of the South Side Branch of Capitol College of Oratory and Music, that arrangements had been completed with Jorg Fasting School of Dance whereby it will supervise dancing classes at the branch.

Classes in ballet, toe, and tap dancing will be taught by Miss Bess Prewett, of the Fasting school. The large studio is being remodeled to fit the needs of the dancing classes.

Elect Lichtenberg

Fritz A. Lichtenberg, 2508 Bexley Park road, was elected president of the Bexley school board at the annual election of officers. C. L. Brundige, 682 South Remington road, new member of the board, was elected vice president, and J. L. W. Henney, 311 South Columbia avenue, was elected treasurer.

The board approved a general appropriation of $225,523 which is approximately $15,000 less than the estimated receipts.

CAP OBSERVES LIQUIDATION DAY

Every dog has his day. And so does every creditor at Capital University.

Seven years ago, Dr. Otto Mees, Capital prexy, passed the decree that the first Friday after the Christmas holiday recess should always be known and observed as "Debt Liquidation Day." At the Lutheran school this year, the tradition falls on January 10.

On this day any creditor may boldly, and without the least inkling of shame face his debtor and demand an immediate balancing of accounts.

All articles which have been borrowed and not returned may also be reclaimed on this day. Watering the stock is not allowed and co-eds are not exempted.

President Mees, originator of the idea, declares that the plan to have the students pay their debts after returning from home Christmas "flushed" with funds has met with unusual success at Capital since its inception in 1924.

KEDROFF QUARTETTE COMING JANUARY 29

The concert calendar of January in Columbus reveals three concerts and not one is greater from viewpoint of artistic elegance or public projection nationally or internationally that the Russian Male Quartet, the "Kedroffs", which sings at Memorial Hall Wednesday evening, January 29, as second attraction of Barbizon Concert Series.

This Male quartet has run the gamut of America's famous critics from coast to coast and their supremacy of the international musical world is as yet unchallenged. In two seasons in America they have filled 150 concert dates.

These musicians represent the highest types of Russian Aristocracy musically and socially. Tone artists of the first rank, masters of shading, creators of charm, atmosphere, pathos, humor and the latter aplenty. The singing captures and holds you fast. Kedroff, the bass, sings with comfort, below low C, attacking the tone, as if it were one of the easiest feats in the world. With a foundation like this and a golden top tenor always true to pitch. Music lovers have an evening of enjoyment ahead of them.

Mail orders now being received at Heatons Music Store.

Fairfielders Banquet

The Fairfielders, an organization composed of former residents of Fairfield County, will hold their annual banquet and entertainment at the Elks' Home, 256 East Broad street, Monday evening, January 20th, at 6:30 P. M.

Winegarner, 1100 East Main street, A. D. Culp, 911 Sheridan avenue, Mrs. J. O. McClain, 60 East Eighth avenue, Mrs. G. M. Morris, 763 Sheridan avenue, Mrs. J. O. McNaghten, 1388 Fair avenue, and I. H. DeRolph, 152 Eldon avenue.

If you have ever resided in Fairfield County you should plan now to attend this event which promises to be the largest ever held. These gatherings afford a splendid opportunity to renew old acquaintances and visit with old friends you have not seen for a long time.

ORGANIZE CHAPTER OF AMERICAN CADETS

EAST SIDE BOY ENCOURAGED BY AIR CADETS

Boys 9 to 20 Years Eligible for Membership. Chapter Sponsored by Business Men.

Arrangements for a chapter of the American Air Cadets have been launched on the East Side and Bexley to be known as the A. O. Harris Chapter. The object of the chapter is to foster and help build up the character of young America by instructing him in air-mindedness and by teaching him to build model airplanes.

The purpose of this organization is to coordinate the air craft model clubs of the nation in a practical manner for the benefit of all and the advancement of aviation.

The National advisory board includes such well known men as secretary of Labor, James J. Davis; Congressman Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, who heads the aviation and is author of the airmail legislation; Colonel Arthur C. Goebel, president of the Art Goebel Aviation company, and winner of the Dole prize for the first flight across the Pacific ocean to Hawaii; Porter Adams, former president of the National Aeronautical association, Washington, D. C.

The National organization has been functioning for almost two years. Already plans are being made for district, state, and national contests among the boy members.

A membership fee of fifty cents is charged, and when joining each member is furnished with a kit and meterial to build his first plane which will be simple in construction, but each plane thereafter is patterned from blue prints furnished by various well-known manufacturers through out the country who are almost unanimous in their endorsement of this organization.

Arrangements have been made with the A. O. Harris Pharmacy, 1450 E. Main street, to handle the supplies for the local organization. These supplies will be available to members at one-half list price, and everything will be done for the convenience and help of the boys. Any boy between the ages of nine and twenty may become a member, and may do so by calling the Harris Pharmacy where full details of the methods of organization and plan of operation will be available.

Sponsoring the local chapter are the following: A. O. Harris, D. J. Fravel, and the Eastern Times.

Memberships are opened and equipment ready at the A. O. Harris Pharmacy.

East Side and Bexley representatives in the Columbus, Catholic and Central Buckeye leagues are set to open the season tonight.

In the Columbus league, East opens the season opposing South at East High School. In pre-season tilts neither South nor East have shown much scoring ability but South is conceded the edge over East for today's fray. Prior to the Ashland game East had bowed to Coshocton, Zanesville, St. Paris, Cambridge, and Lancaster St. Mary's. South has lost to Coshocton, St. Paris and Portsmouth.

Probable starting line-ups for today's games are: East, Porter, Copeland, Kurtz, Thomas, and Sheaf.

The Bexley-Granville game originally scheduled for tonight was moved to Thursday. The Bexley quintet is touted to be one of the strongest in the Central Buckeye loop. Wins have been scored against Gahanna, Groveport, West Carrollton, and Celina, one game has been lost to Xenia.

High point man on the Bexley squad so far this season has been Dickey, center. Brunner and Sweet have played the forwards and Morris and Maxwell the guards.

Finishing the season with ten straight wins, St. Charles copped the catholic title last year. Joe Karow is the new coach at St. Charles.

Holy Rosary, coached by Tom McQuade, will not open the season until next Friday when they meet St. Mary's at Delaware.

Bexley reserves play at Worthington tonight. Holmes is slated to play center, Baughman and Brandenberg, forwards, and Leahy and Cavey, guards. Bexley girls will play in the Grandview field day Saturday.

PAY UP DAY

Today is "Debt Liquidation Day" at Capital University.

On this day any creditor may without hesitation ask a settlement of debts due. Today, everything that has been borrowed must be returned.

This country has a special week for almost everything. But we need one more. A national Pay Up Week at the first of the year would be of widespread benefit. "You can't pay anyone till I pay you, and I can't pay you till the other fellow pays me," that old run-a-round holds good now but if everyone cooperated during the first week of the year and paid their debts while the balance from the holiday trade was still large all the old accounts would be cleaned up and the business world could start the new year with a clean slate.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR BOYS

Probably the greatest organization for boys developed since the Boy Scouts is the National Air Cadets.

A new chapter of this organization for boys has been organized on the East Side and Bexley, known as the A. O. Harris Chapter.

The National Air Cadets teach the boy how to assemble and construct airplane models that will fly. The common practice in model construction to date has been to assemble ready made parts, the air cadet must not only assemble the parts but must actually construct the plane according to blue prints furnished by several of the large airplane factories in the country.

Necessary parts and blue prints are furnished the members at one half list price thereby assurring the members a greater saving than has heretofore been possible in model construction.

Boys between the ages of nine and twenty are eligible for membership in the National Air Cadets. Membership applications may be filled out at the A. O. Harris Pharmacy, Miller and Main streets.

OUR COMMON PROPERTY

EACH man enters into a world which is not of his own making. What past generations have accomplished furnishes him the materials with which he works out his own future. Values, both moral and material, which have become the common property of all, we have inherited from others. The best we have is a debt we owe to others. Many illustrations from real life could prove this point. One is here selected from the world of art.

L. A. Barrett.

Viewing the works of Michelangelo, that famous sculptor of the Italian school, we realize that there struggled within the soul of the artist something more than a talent he developed in schools. A dominating power and a controlling motive is evidenced in all his work which owes its origin to a source which for a long time it was not easy to explain? No one can study the Last Judgment, the Martyrdom of St. Peter, or, the Conversion of St. Paul without being keenly aware that the artist owed his power to the inspiration of a personality to which he must have been greatly attached. The explanation came late in life through a letter the artist wrote to his brother, in which he expressed his love and admiration for that "Mountain Preacher," Savonarola. Many critics concluded that the spirit of Savonarola lived again in the frescoes on the Sistine chapel. But the connecting link between the genius of the artist and the influence of Savonarola harks back to a little town in Italy, where ministered a humble and obscure friar who, in an address which Savonarola happened to hear, said the words which inspired him to give his life for the restoration of Italy.

"Things and men are the results of causes, and the causes of results." Here is an interesting series of results—the unconscious influence of one man's simple statement awakening the soul of the man who set Italy free, the influence of whose life and sacrificial work fired the soul of Michelangelo.

The entire world of art today owes a profound debt of gratitude to that obscure friar because with "tears mingling with his colors, Michelangelo prayed and painted."

Our common property is a debt we owe to others. Let us ever remember the example of Michelangelo, master of many arts.

Dr. Fowler Speaks

"Not Luck But Ability" was the subject chosen by Dr. Frank Fowler of the Bexley Methodist Church in his chapel address at Bexley High School on the first day of school since the winter recess. Dr. Fowler drew his illustrations from athletics in proving that it is not luck but ability that counts.

THE "LIBERTINE"

TODAY the libertine is a rake, a dissolute person without morals or self-restraint, who places the desire of the moment above thought of right or wrong or consideration for others. And in the history of the term we find an interesting story, a good example of the romance there is in words.

From the Latin "libertinus," libertine means literally "freedman," the original significance of the word. "Libertus" and "Libertinus" are familiar as names given by the ancient Romans to the manumitted slave.

It is said that there is but a short step between liberty and license and the quick assumption would be that from its original meaning of one who is legally free the word "libertine" was corrupted to describe one who was too free and unrestrained and so took on its present significance of dissoluteness. That, however, would be only half the story.

To complete it we must know of a pernicious sect that sprang up in the Sixteenth century in the Reformed Church of France and who called themselves the "Libertines" or Spiritual Brethren and Sisters. Under the guise of a dogma—they professed pantheism, or the worship of all gods rather than one—Libertinism soon degenerated into open and avowed sensualism. And though the cult is long extinct its name survives in the significance of our word "libertine" today.

WHY WE SEEK ADVENTURE

THE life without adventure is like a honeymoon without a bride. Life itself is a great adventure. The thrill of the unknown, the untried, the positively dangerous appeals to us because in every great risk the blood flows faster, we are more thoroughly alive.

In adventure we taste the essence of life.

It is no idle gesture that the world has gone mad over the heroes of the air. The greetings and honors heaped upon the successful pioneers who cross an ocean or conquer the frozen North spring spontaneously from the heart of every man, woman and child of all nationalities. The flyers are called ambassadors of the air because they do more to unite the nations of the world in mutual friendship and good will than the official ambassadors. And this is true because the exploit they go through strikes a responsive chord in the human breast, which points out more clearly than words and diplomacy the inherent sameness of humanity and the fact that humanity is of one piece after all.

It used to be said that all the world loves a lover presumably because love is universal in its appeal. Now we say that all the world loves a successful airman and precisely for the same reason. There is a universal appeal in the spirit of adventure.

No doubt war, with all its barbarity and utter folly, appeals to the adventuring spirit in us. The greater the risk involved the greater the thrill. That is why stolen sweets are so much sweeter. One has to risk something.

The spirit of adventure is illustrated in our plays and games. The popularity of any sport seems to be in the ratio of the risk and danger involved. The inducement of boxing contests is the imminent possibility of a knockout. And how disappointed the fans are when there is not even a knockdown!

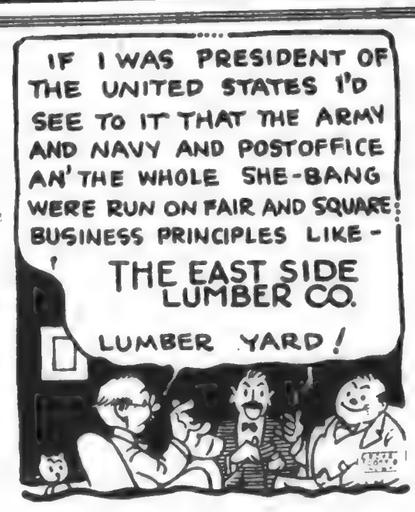
CANCER OF MOUTH

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on Cancer of the mouth, written for the Eastern Times by Dr. R. G. Prather, 2266½ E. Main street.)

By R. G. PRATHER, D.D.S.



What is the treatment? Surgery, radium and X-Ray are three accepted measures of the present day. Carefully kept records show that early operation will eliminate the disease in an encouraging percentage of cases. Surgery followed by radium or X-ray is usually more effective than surgery alone.

The specific cause of cancer has not yet been discovered but large sums are being spent all over the world for researches in this field and all these efforts should be all liberally supported. The discovery of the cause may become a fact at any time. Meanwhile, we know that irritation seems to be of considerable importance as a causative factor. A normal healthy mouth free of irritation from within and without is relatively immune from cancer. The prevention of all irritation in the mouth such as might come from sharp roots or fillings or from mechanical inserts of any kind is important.

Irritation from without, such as might come from too much smoking or taking foods too hot should be guarded against. Moderation is a most desirous virtue. Moderation in eating, smoking and in all other phases of living may go far toward reducing the frequency of cancer.

Through a Woman's Eyes

by Joan Newton

"TOO QUICK TO BELIEVE"

"WHO is quick to believe is quickly mistaken."

Look back over the things that you most regret in your life, and you will find that at least a great part of them were the children of sudden impulse, acted upon without consideration, and usually almost as quickly repented of.

You will find to that those incidents, acts, decisions which were carefully weighed and considered in advance are the ones which have yielded the most satisfaction, which have been fruitful with pleasure and content and without regrets.

"Quick to believe, quickly mistaken." Even in the little matters of life such as selecting clothes, the woman who is quickest in making her choice and apparently the most easily pleased is very likely to be one who is dissatisfied with her purchase after she has taken it home, while the one who gives time and thought to the matter and does not accept so readily whatever is shown her is usually satisfied and pleased with what she has bought, deriving pleasure from it as long as it lasts.

There are two sides to this matter. One is yourself guarding against being too "quick to believe," lest you be "quickly mistaken." The other is not taking too seriously the person who is too easily won over, who is too delightfully "quick to believe."

A salesman is better off with a discriminating buyer, one who is not too easily "sold" because such a one, when finally convinced, remains "sold," while the more quickly accommodating customer is known to frequently change his mind; so all of us are better off with people who do not accept too quickly, who are not too ready to give their confidence, their endorsement, their friendship. Then when these are attained they are more likely to be lasting and worthwhile.

System of Slavery

Economic slavery is as great an injustice, as cruel, as any political slavery ever established by man; and if, by the combination of vast amounts of wealth, the economic, the political and the social functions of our race are controlled and dominated by those who own the combination, then those who are controlled are, in reality, slaves.—Senator George W. Norris.

Where is the leaning tower of Pisa? Right! There are four other leaning towers in Europe, name them. And still they say it doesn't pay to advertise.

FISH

Selecting Fish

The chief point in judging fish is the fresh odor (especially notice inside, along the back bone) even in frozen fish, but other requisites are full, bright eyes, bright gills, and firm flesh. If fish floats in water it should not be used.

BAKED FISH
(Whitefish, Halibut, Pike, etc)

Clean, stuff, and sew up. Rub with butter, dust with flour, salt, and pepper. Lay in well buttered pan, or put strips of bacon or chipped salt pork in pan and lay fish on the strips.

In order to aid in handling the baked fish, a rack may be placed in the bottom of the greased pan, or a greased muslin cloth may be used so the fish can be more easily lifted without breaking when baked; then the bacon is placed on the rack or cloth. Dot fish with butter. Bake in hot oven thirty minutes to one hour, according to size. Baste often. When brown, serve with butter or any preferred sauce. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

Fried Fish

Clean the fish and wipe dry. Leave whole or cut in serving pieces. Sprinkle with salt and dip in flour, cornmeal, or crumbs. Cook in a frying pan with enough fat to keep from sticking, turning when one side is browned.

Flaked Fish With Cheese

2 cups milk
2 cups fish flakes
½ cup grated cheese
2 eggs
3 rolled crackers
Butter

Mix fish flakes and cheese, add beaten eggs and milk. Pour into buttered casserole, cover with crackers rolled and mixed with melted butter. Cover and bake one-half hour in slow oven.

Potato Codfish Balls

Boil and mash as many potatoes as desired, using about ½ lb. (1 cup) soaked and drained codfish to 1 lb. potatoes (2 cups). Have fish picked apart, and cut fine; after soaking and drying, mix thoroughly with potatoes, adding 1 tablespoon butter, yolks of 2 eggs, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and a dash of pepper. Make into balls, or cakes, dip in beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry in hot fat. If preferred the fish may be cooked with the potatoes a few minutes. For lighter balls, fold in the beaten egg whites last. If the fish is very salty, parboil and drain it.

Tuna Souffle

1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 cup tuna fish
1 cup milk
1 heaping tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
Mix and add 2 beaten eggs

Bake twenty to thirty minutes in buttered casserole.

Salmon Gems

These make an excellent luncheon dish. Strain the liquor from 1 can of salmon, shred fish fine, add salt and pepper to taste, and mix with the following:

1½ cups corn flakes
½ cup of milk
2 eggs—yolks first, and whites, beaten stiff, added last

Bake thirty minutes in individual gem pans instead of in a loaf. Serve with a sauce made as follows:

Two tablespoons of butter, 2 tablespoons of flour. Add slowly ¾ cup of milk and the liquor from the salmon. Cook until smooth, remove from fire, and add 1 cup of chopped stuffed olives. Garnish with parsley.

Creamed Tuna on Toast
(For 4 Persons)

Toast bread. Remove skin and oil from small can of tuna. Shred in rather small pieces; add to cream sauce; stir gently on fire. Place on toast. Garnish with parsley and hot hard-boiled eggs sliced, and sprinkle well with paprika.

Mock Chicken Mousse

Flake a large can of tuna fish, add ½ pt. cream and 3 eggs (just well blended, not well beaten). Bake slowly like a custard in a greased glass baking dish. Make a thin cream sauce by cooking 2 slightly rounded tablespoons butter and the same amount of flour for a moment, then adding a pint of milk and cooking two or three minutes until well blended. Then add ¼ lb. fresh mushrooms, fried, and pour over the fish.

29 BOYS JOIN A.A.C. CHAPTER ON EAST SIDE

Boys 9 to 12 Years May Join By Filling Out Coupon In This Issue.

Twenty-nine boys have joined the A. O. Harris chapter of the American Air Cadets.

Some of the members are already building their third plane, a Red Bird. Others are working on the second plane, a R. O. G.

When joining each member is furnished with a membership kit and material to build his first plane. Each plane thereafter is patterned from the blue prints supplied by various airplane manufacturers.

The object of the American Air Cadets is to build up young America by instructing him in airmindedness and by teaching him to build model airplanes of his own that will fly. The A. C. C. coordinates all the air craft model clubs of the nation in a practical manner for the benefit of all and the advancement of aviation.

Through the National Air Cadets the cost of building model planes has been cut to a minimum, parts are furnished to all members at one-half list price.

Plans are already under way for local, sectional, state and national races.

Any boy wishing to join the A. A. C. should fill out the coupon elsewhere in this issue and take it to the A. O. Harris Pharmacy, Miller and Main, and get his "grease monkey" badge.

Those who have joined to date are: Charles Prichet, Tommy Skinner, Robert Seal, Orville McCabe, David Ridenour, Victor Kenney, William Schlitz, Bill Cook, Red Case, Howard Hevaine, Charles Friese, Joe Friese, [illegible], Bernard Rogers, Durwood Latern, Byron Goldman, Jack Stone, Austin Brightman, Courtenary Wakefield, John Durnick, Charles Web, John Harris, Willis Harbison, Paul Mechling, Norman Hannum, Carl Arnold, Willis Miller, Douglas Miller, Jack Mosure.

NEW SEMESTER BEGINS MONDAY

Twenty Eastmoor Students to Attend Bexley High Schools.

Three hundred and one students will enroll at a new school at the opening of the second semester Monday.

Classes were dismissed yesterday and today at East High school and today at all other elementary and junior schools on the East Side. Regular classes will begin Monday.

East High school is graduating 46 and receiving 200, Franklin Junior high is graduating 79 and receiving 110, Fairwood Avenue school is graduating 34 of which 25 go to Roosevelt, 7 to Franklin, 1 to Champion, and 1 to Pilgrim, Fair avenue is graduating 29, Roosevelt graduates 116, and receives 125.

In Bexley, the first semester ends next Friday. Final examinations in elementary, junior and senior high school will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Reorganization for the new semester will be completed by Monday, February 3.

Go To Bexley

The board of education adopted a resolution which permits students now attending Bexley schools and living in Eastmoor to continue during the second semester. The tuition is to be paid to the Bexley Board by the Columbus Board of Education. About twenty students are involved.

Permission was granted with the understanding that students in these grades are to attend Columbus High school in the regular manner beginning September, 1930. The resolution applies only to High School students. Beginning with the next school year pupils must go to Columbus schools unless their tuition to Bexley schools is paid by the parents. This is the last semester the city and township will pay the tuition to the Bexley schools for residents of Eastmoor.

TO PREACH ABROAD

Rev. M. H. Lichliter, 1793 Franklin avenue, pastor of First Congregational Church, is expected to fill the pulpit of Egremont Presbyterian church, Liverpool, England, during the five Sundays in August, if members of his church approve.

Egremont Church is the largest Presbyterian church in England.

BEXLEY HIGH HOST TO BOY ORATOR TODAY

Three National Champions Addressed Student Body In High School

Bexley High School is host today to three young men, one from Mexico, one from Canada, and one from the United States, who are known as the International Boy orators.

In the auditorium of the High school this morning each of the young men gave the oration which won for him the championship of his nation. The same topic, "The Advantages of the Government under which I Live," was used by all three orators. Mr. Fox and Mr. Moore spoke in English, Senor Brito used the Spanish tongue.

In October, 1928, boys representing eight different nations met in Washington, D. C., in an international oratorical contest. These young men debated the question "The Advantages of the Government under Which I Live." Each gave a ten minute oration on this subject, and the occasion was so intensely interesting that it was determined to present certain of the contestants in schools throughout this country.

Three of the young men were chosen to make a tour of the United States. These three are Efrain Brito Rosado of Mexico City, who represented Mexico at the International contest, and had previously been acclaimed champion of his country — William H. Fox, Jr., of Toronto, Canada, champion of Canada—and James Rayborn Moore of Kentucky, champion of the United States. The Mexican representative is 20 years old, the Canadian champion 20, and the American 18.

The young men have now been speaking in high schools on their present tour for the last two months. Before they are through they will have covered practically all of the United States and possibly part of Canada.

Completion of Building Outstanding 1929 Event

[Editor's Note: The following article is the report of the librarian of the Bexley Public Library, Sarah H. Bilby, to the Board of Trustees for the year 1929.]

The outstanding event in the history of the Bexley Public Library for 1929 is the completion of the library building and its opening to the public in September. In our report for 1927 it is stated, "The new library will provide . . . a reading room where one can read or study comfortably, and a children's room with adequate shelves and opportunity to display children's books . . ." This is more than fulfilled and the charm of the building and the completeness of its appointments are generally acknowledged. It is the aim of the Library Staff to furnish to the patrons service of a quality corresponding to that evidenced in the building.

212 Books Daily

The records for 1929 show that 63,303 books were given out for home use during the 298 days the library was open. This averages 212 a day as compared with 167 a day in 1928.

In the Adult department 70% of the circulation was fiction; 28,784 titles of fiction and 12,749 titles of non-fiction being circulated. In the Juvenile department, 16,874 titles of fiction and 4,896 titles of non-fiction were circulated. The juvenile circulation was 34% of the whole circulation. The per capita circulation was 9.4 (estimating the population at 7,000).

Of the books loaned, 47,467 were given out from the Main library and 15,836 from the branches. There are now three school branches: the one in the High school, opened in October, has six hundred books in its permanent collection, supplemented by loans from the main library; the Junior High school branch has 1,079; and the Bexley Grade school has 758. The High school library is open Monday to Friday from 8 A. M. to 4 P. M. The Junior High branch is open Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and the Bexley Grade school on Tuesday.

2,669 New Books

Of the 11,721 books owned by the library, December 31, 1929, 9,269 are shelved in the main library; the remainer in the branches. 2,759 books were added in 1929: 2,546 by purchase, 122 by gift, and 91 bound magazines. Ninety volumes were withdrawn during the year, making the net gain 2,669.

An unusual number of picture books and nice editions of classics have been added to the Juvenile department. A set of the new edition of the Encylopedia Britannica, and a 20 volume set of "America," a source book of American history, are among the purchases for the adult reference collection. The World Book and a set of the Chronicles of America, for the High School, and the Book of Knowledge and the Book of Popular Science for the Junior High school are added to the reference equipment. 795 recorded reference questions have been answered during the year. The student attendance in the libraries during school periods was 8,319.

Story Hour has been conducted twice a week in the first six grades of the Cassingham school by Miss Laudahn and Miss Hayes. Classes in the use of the library are being conducted in the High School in cooperation with the English teachers.

Staff Increased

The library now has 3,244 borrowers; 1940 in the Adult department, and 1,304 in the Juvenile department. 747 adult and 239 juvenile borrowers have been added in 1929. 124 borrowers' cards have been withdrawn, making the net increase 705. 60% of the new borrowers for the year have been registered since the opening of the new building in September.

In the catalog department, 6,444 catalog cards have been made. A card catalog of the books in the High school library has been placed in that library. The adult and juvenile catalogs at the main library have been separated.

The staff has been increased this year. Miss Ruth Laudahn began her second year's work for the library in September. Miss Dorothy L. Hayes, who has been in the library since January, 1928, took a six weeks' course at the Carnegie Library School at Pittsburgh last summer. Miss Audrey Knowlton, who was a part-time assistant from April to September, left to attend Drexel Institute Library School. Miss Bertha Josephson, a graduate of Ohio State University, began work in September. Miss Elsie Kerschbaum and Mr. Marshall Dasher, students at Capital University, are part-time assistants during the school year. Mr. J. P. Mason was appointed Janitor in September.

Member St. Olaf Choir

GLADYS LOHR

Gladys Lohr is one of the members of the St. Olaf Choir, which is coming to Columbus, February 9, under the auspices of the Capital University Conservatory of Music.

The St. Olaf Lutheran Choir is about twenty-five years old. It is a church choir, composed, however, of students from St. Olaf College, singing every Sunday morning during the college year in St. John's Lutheran Church at Northfield, Minnesota. There are 32 women and 27 men in the choir.

It sings without accompaniment and from memory. With no cue for the pitch, it starts with a full, clear chord, exactly on the pitch and never deviated from it in the least. How it gets the proper key is always a marvel to the audiences. All the singing is a capella. The music selected is of the purest kind, being chosen largely from the works of Handel, Bach, Schreck, Mendelssohn, and other outstanding writers of church music.

The freshness of the blended voices, the beauty of tone and the spiritual feeling expressed by the youthful singers invariably are noted by musical authorities. Yet the members of the choir are only ordinary young men and women. Before going to St. Olaf College they probably had little voice training. Most of them are not specializing in voice at all, but are taking a regular college course in liberal arts, with voice training as an elective. How a group of young college folks can be welded into an organization which sings as they do, calling forth the most enthusiastic comments from critics everywhere, is worthy of note.

Credit for such accomplishments must go to the director, Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, whose personality and musical talents fit him most admirably for the task of choir conducting. Dr. Christiansen received his own training under the famous master, Schreck, at Leipzig, Germany. While yet a student it became his ambition to direct a choir in America that would equal in perfection the famous old Thomaner Church choir under the direction of Schreck. Dr. Christiansen has now realized his ambition. The St. Olaf choir organized by him twenty years ago has won for him international fame. Although confronted with the problem of an annually changing personnel of his choir, Dr Christiansen has been remarkably successful in sustaining the enviable reputation of his singers as the years passed on. It will be remembered that on the occasion of the choir's last visit to Columbus, Mr. Christiansen was given the honorary Doctor of Music degree by both Capital University and Oberlin College.

On the date of Feb. 9, which occurs on Sunday, two concerts will be given, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. An entirely different program will be presented at each concert. Seats may now be reserved at the Capital University box office.

E. A. PETERS DIES

The funeral for Edward A. Peters, 546 Linwood avenue, was held Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Peters died Monday at his home.

FIRST CHILDS MOVIE

The first of a series of Educational moving pictures for children will be given Saturday, February 1, at 2 p. m. in Mees Hall. This is the second season for the moving pictures under the auspices of Eastern Circle Child Conservation League. The feature film is "Square Shoulders." In addition to the feature film there will be shown an educational film and Our Gang Comedy. Students from Capital University will furnish the music. The committee in charge of the movies is: Mrs. Edward Schenk, 2347 Bexley Park road, Mrs. Robert Geist, 811 Euclaire avenue, Mrs. Louis L. Montei, 102 South Drexel, Mrs. Guy W. Maize, 939 Studer avenue.

CAP-MUSKIES PLAY TONIGHT IN BEXLEY GYM

Muskingum Only Team to Defeat Lutheran Squad This Season.

With seven victories in eight starts, Coach Bill Bernlohr's fast stepping Capital University basket eagers will stack up against the court squad of Muskingum College Friday night at Loy gym. The game will be a grudge affair, as the Muskies have been the only aggregation able to stop the Lutherans this season and mar an otherwise perfect record. Capital was defeated by Muskingum 37-31, at Cambridge three weeks ago.

Since that time the Lutherans have defeated Antioch again, Otterbein and Ohio Northern. Capital at present is in sixth place in the Ohio Conference.

Muskingum, an ancient rival of Capital, seems to hold a jinx over the Lutherans of the Bexley school. Twenty times have the court squads of the two schools tangled and only on six occasions have the Purple East End players been able to emerge victorious. Coach Bernlohr has been pointing his men all week for the Friday battle and hopes to annex the seventh Capital victory over Muskingum at that time.

Spectators will be watching the scoring of Gene Mechling, lanky Capital center. In the eight games thus far, Mechling has tallied 112 points for a total of 14 points per game. In only one game was he stopped. Otterbein, assigning two men to guard him, held him to four points. Last Saturday against Ohio Northern, he scored 17 points.

Capital may be without the services of Fritz Brideweser, stellar running guard. He has a broken bone in the back of his right hand. In the Ohio Northern game, however, he was inserted for three minutes with Capital trailing by three points. He dribbled the length of the floor with his left hand and counted four points to give his team the lead and victory. Bernlohr may use him again in this manner if necessary.

KEDROFF SINGERS HERE WEDNESDAY

Russian Quartet Will Appear At Memorial Hall

The famous Russian male quartet the Kedroff's, now on its third tour of this country will be presented by the Barbison-Concert Series management, Wednesday evening, January 29. Memorial Hall, in a concert program which will have the tang of real living in it.

Their ensemble reveals the Kedroff Brothers, bass and baritone, famous professors of music, while Denisoff and Kasakoff, tenors were formerly of the Imperial Opera at Petrograd. Born of an ancient and romantic race to which beauty was the immediate expression of life, they project the rich heritage of Slav music.

That does not mean you will be defrauded of the racy humor of a gay waltz of Strauss or a lovely serenade of Abt.

A male quartet whether it has its inception on a plantation, high school campus or college frat house has always been the popular ensemble, and the great Kedroff quartet has perpetuated an art that is at once close to Mother Earth and dear to the heart of the people.

Box office now open at Heaton's Music Store, 33 E. Long street.

In Columbus: Every home in the area from Champion Avenue to Alum Creek between Franklin Avenue and Livingston Avenue
In Bexley: Every home in Bexley south of Broad Street.

An old proverb declares that too much of a good thing is as bad as too little. And that proverb holds for the ever-increasing number of "stop streets."

When Columbus had just three stop streets they were suspected to a measurable extent. Now that the city itself and the suburbs are filled with them few people even slow down and fewer come to a dead stop.

Bexley has always had more "stop streets" than were justified by the number of dangerous crossings. The area from Main to Broad streets is a net work of stop signs. No one stops for them; it seems no one is expected to; they are apparently there to act as blame fixers in case of accidents. There is only one type of driver who approaches crossings recklessly and that is the type that the fool killer gets in spite of all stop signs, traffic lights and other warnings.

More stop streets are appearing on the East Side. Now there are stop signs at all street car crossings. Street cars are notorious traffic jammers and it is unreasonable to give them a greater right of way than they already have.

Stop streets give the driver on the through street a feeling of false security.

There should be only two through streets on the East Side and Bexley and they are Main street and Broad street.

The height of futility, we decided as we tried to work an accounting problem, would be to keep a perpetual inventory in a five and ten cent store.

The most frequent come-back we hear on the crack that prohibition is here to stay is: stay whom and what?

In spite of everything Mr. Hoover says, we still want to know who has all this money we hear is in circulation.

THE DAREDEVIL

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

GROUND-HOG DAY

THE woodchuck or ground-hog comes out of his hole on February 2. If he sees his shadow in the sun he goes back to his hibernation, and there will be six weeks more of winter. Whereas if it is cloudy and he sees not his shadow he stays out, and spring comes early.

This is a pet American superstition. The woodchuck is of the squirrel family and is peculiar to America. In Europe there is the same superstition with the substitution of some other hibernating animal. There is evidence that it was originally always some member of the squirrel family, probably the ground-squirrel, though in modern times in some parts of Germany the badger is designated. There is a saying that a German farmer would rather see a wolf enter his barn on February 2 than the sun.

From early Roman times February 2 was the festival of the goddess Februa, the mother of Mars. The Latin Mars was originally not a god of war but of agriculture. As god of agriculture a sun goddess was his appropriate mother. Each year on February 2 the votaries of Februa appeared with lights, endeavoring by the homeopathic magic of "like causes like" to help the sun to a renewal of its beneficient power. Pluto, the lord of the dark underworld, was the natural enemy of the sun. His story shows him to have been an active one. Those members of the squirrel family who disappeared into holes in the ground at the coming of winter were evidently gone to keep tryst with Pluto in his dim realm. On the day when the votaries of Februa were trying to assist the sun Pluto sent his creatures forth to work a counter spell. But if thick, protecting clouds intervened they could not see the sun to work their magic; the magic of the votaries of Februa took effect, the creatures of Pluto knew that "the jig was up" and there would be an early spring. Had they succeeded they would have returned for a further enjoyment of Pluto's hospitality. Having failed they stay above ground to look after their own affairs. This, in brief, is the "Why" of the ground-hog superstition. There is material enough extant for an interesting monograph on the subject.

What Does Your Child Want to Know ?

Answered by BARBARA BOURJAILY

WHY DOES A LOW NOISE SCARE US MORE THAN A HIGH ONE?

Our an-ces-tors so long ago
Had animals to fear—
A low noire sounds much like the growl
Of creatures prowling near.

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

SHE WHO "DOTH PROTEST TOO MUCH"

HEARING a woman overpraising a really remarkable child, so doing him an unquestionable injury, set my mind off on the thought of how many women spoil something that is good "protesting too much."

With regard to the child, of course, this is a mistake about which volumes might be said.

It is rather the general idea that I want to bring out here of how the woman who "doth protest too much" kills her own point every time.

Just as in enthusing over your child it is far more effective—provided there is indeed something worth talking about—to tell what he did or said, and let others judge of its significance, than to drown the idea in a sea of words like "marvelous," "wonderful," "gorgeous," "brilliant," "incomparable," so with anything that you want to accredit or praise, it is best to give facts.

Justly or unjustly, the man who wants to sell you "a bill of goods" is the last one to whom you would go for an unbiased opinion in regard to it.

And when you are overenthusiastic about anything, no matter how sincere in your belief you may be, you give the impression of having an idea to sell. And that only provides an obstacle to be overcome by the object of your praise.

If restraint is good in all things, it is doubly good in speaking of things or people we like and whom we want others to like.

"There is no necessity for proving the existence of light."

WHY WE WORK

THE motive with which we discharge our daily duties is either love or money. The choice we make between these two motives determines our happiness and contentment. In his Modern Painters, John Ruskin argues at length against the monetary motive. He tells us that nothing ever endures that was created for the mere purpose of receiving a fee for services rendered. Is he not right? Could any person imagine Saint-Gaudens creating the statue of Lincoln for the sake of the price the city of Chicago was willing to pay him for his work? Something metallic creeps into a painting when it is done for the sake of financial remuneration. That wonderful "something" that draws an audience to a singer, and which is the secret of success, is lost the moment the evening's fee is a more important consideration than the self-expression of the artist, which love for his work makes possible. A successful business man recently remarked that he went to his office in the same spirit as he would go to a party. With real pleasure and anticipation he discharged his daily responsibilities. He thought of the annual financial returns as rewards for services faithfully rendered and not as pay for work done. The millions who are driven to drab toil for a mere existence are worse than slaves.

L. A. Barrett.

The spirit of love for one's work occasionally demands the great sacrifice. The air mail route from Cleveland to New York is reported to be extremely dangerous. In fact it is the most dangerous of all the mail routes in the country. During the ten years it has been in operation one pilot lost his life each year. The very interesting thing is that the moment a place thus becomes vacant, another pilot offers his services. Why does he do it? For the sake of the monthly wage? Scarcely would so small a compensation urge one to a task involving tremendous risks. No. He is urged on by the love of adventure. He loves his work.

Why do we work? It must be a very humdrum and monotonous world to any person who works for wages alone. Such a motive sacrifices the spirit which brings true success. Failure is most likely to be the result of such efforts. If we work for the love of it, we are actuated by a motive which assures us happiness and contentment. Success is bound to crown the efforts of all whose work is motivated just for the love of it.

How to Keep Teeth and Mouth Healthy

Why Teeth Have Different Shapes

By R. G. PRATHER, DDS.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles written exclusively for the Eastern Times by Dr. R. G. Prather, 2266½ E. Main street.

All teeth are the same in structure, yet in shape they differ widely. Each tooth is shaped for the particular work it is to do.

In each jaw the teeth are arranged as follows: in front are four incisors, they have sharp edges for cutting off a mouthful when we bite into something. Next to these incisors are two single pointed cuspids—usually called canines—one on each side of the jaw, these rip the food into shreds after it is in the mouth.

Next come four double pointed bicuspids, two on each side, these teeth start the actual masticating of the food. Behind these are the molars, three on each side. Their rough surfaces grind the food into a pulp so that it can be easily swallowed and digested. Nature made these molars big and strong so that our prehistoric ancestors could pulverize tough, raw foods.

It was this very tyye of hard, rough food that kept our ancestors' teeth in good condition. Their teeth were polished by much vigorous chewing, just as the teeth of savage people are today. Their teeth were stronger than ours because they had more exercise.

But with the advance of civilization through the centuries, our life has become easier and our food easier to chew. Modern methods of cooking break down the food tissue so that our teeth have far less to do. As a result, our teeth have become lazy. Nature, who has given us what we need, also takes away those things that we do not need and she will take away our teeth unless we use them and take care of them. So to keep them in good condition we must eat enough coarse food to give our teeth exercise and we must supply artificial cleaning to prevent decay.

NOTICE

WARNING CONCERNING COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.

Materials within the collections of The Ohio Historical Society may be subject to the Federal Copyright Law. The Society permits use and copying of such materials only to the extent authorized by Sections 107 and 108 of the Federal Copyright Law. Any person or organization making, ordering or using a copy of such materials from the collections of The Ohio Historical Society warrants to The Society that his, her or its use of such copy is authorized by the Federal Copyright Law.
